PREFACE.

CÆSAR is usually, and with great propriety, among the first books put into the hands of pupils commencing the study of Latin. In adapting a portion of this work, as well as the Latin Reader, to his Latin Grammar, the chief object of the Editor has been to lead the student, in the beginning of his course, to a minute and thorough acquaintance with the principles of the language. The text of Oudendorp has been generally followed. For the sake of convenience, and also because, with many, Cæsar is the first book studied after the Grammar, the Introduction on the Latin Idioms prefixed to the Latin Reader has been prefixed here also. To this as well as to the Grammar reference is constantly made at the foot of the page, for the purpose of explaining and illustrating principles as they occur; and if the pupil will only take the pains to examine these references as he proceeds, he will gradually, and with comparatively little labor, become so familiar with the grammatical structure and idioms of the language that his future progress will be much more rapid and pleasant than it can be without such a course of training.

To the text copious notes have been added, for the purpose of explaining more particularly some constructions of the language,—aiding the pupil in the selection of an appropriate term, or, in giving variety to his expression,—and, in some cases, of assisting him to apprehend more clearly the meaning of the author. These, together with the references to the Introduction and Grammar above specified, contain such and so much assistance as an industrious and intelligent pupil, at this stage of his progress, in preparing his lessons, may be supposed to need from his teacher; so that by a proper use of this work, both the teacher will be relieved in a great measure from that labor, and interruption of other duties which the rendering of this assistance would require, and the pupil will have always at hand the assistance needed. These notes are taken chiefly from Dymock's Cæsar, Glasgow edition. A few have been added from other sources.

The Vocabulary or index at the end of the work is abridged from the same author, and contains various and important information respecting the persons and places mentioned in the text, and also respecting many things belonging to the antiquities and polity of the Romans and their method of conducting military operations. In this part several wood cuts have been introduced to aid the pupil in forming correct ideas of some of the engines and operations of war, as they existed in the days of Cæsar.

The map of Ancient Gaul has been prepared with special reference to this work, and exhibits the divisions of that country, with the names of nations, tribes, and towns, mentioned by Cæsar, as they existed in his time, so far as their position can be ascertained from authentic sources. The modern names of the same places will be found, generally, by consulting the Index.

A correct pronunciation as it regards quantity should be attended to from the beginning. In order to aid the pupil in forming correct habits in this too much neglected part of study, the quantity of the penult syllable has been marked in all words of more than two syllables, except where the penult vowel is followed by two consonants or a double consonant, in which case it is always long; or where the penult vowel is followed by another vowel, in which case it is almost always short; or when the syllable being common, that is, either short or long, there is no danger of the quantity being given wrong. In words of two syllables there is little danger of wrong pronunciation, and if, in words of more than two syllables, the quantity of the penult is correctly given, there is little danger of error elsewhere.

With a view to render the work as full as was deemed necessary, and at the same time to bring the price so low as to make it more generally accessible, only the first six books of the Commentaries on the Gallic war have been taken. These contain all that portion of this author usually read in academies and schools, and to have taken more would only have increased the size and the price of the book without any corresponding benefit to the purchaser.

The Editor takes this opportunity to renew his grateful acknowledgements to the many learned men, and instructors of youth, for the favor with which his humble labors have been received by them, and for the many important suggestions communicated, by which he has been enabled to add essentially to their value and usefulness. A Greek Reader adapted to the Greek Grammar is now preparing, and will be published as speedily as possible.

NOTICE.

In the text, the references to the Grammar generally will be found at the places indicated, in all the editions. Those marked § 140, 1, 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, will be found in editions previous to the last of 1844, at § 145, Obs. 5, 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th: And those marked § 140, 2, 3, 4, 5, will be found under § 140, Obs. 1, 2d, 3d, 4th, and 5th.

INTRODUCTION.

SENTENCES.

1. A sentence is such an assemblage of words as makes complete sense; as, Man is mortal.
2. Sentences are of two kinds, simple and compound.
3. A simple sentence contains but one subject and one verb; as, Life is short. Time flies.
4. A compound sentence contains two or more simple sentences combined; as, Life, which is short, should be well employed.
5. In the combining of words to form a sentence, observe carefully the following General Principles of Syntax.

1. In every sentence there must be a verb in the indicative, subjunctive, imperative, or infinitive mood, and a subject, expressed or understood.
2. Every adjective, adjective pronoun, or participle, must have a substantive expressed or understood with which it agrees, § 98 and § 146.*
3. Every relative must have an antecedent or word to which it refers, and with which it agrees, § 99.
4. Every nominative has its own verb expressed or understood, of which it is the subject, §§ 100, 101, 102. Or is placed after the substantive verb in the predicate, § 103.
5. Every finite verb; i. e., every verb in the indicative, subjunctive or imperative mood, has its own nominative, expressed or understood, §§ 101, 102, and when the infinitive has a subject it is in the accusative, § 145. The infinitive without a subject does not form a sentence or proposition, § 143.
6. Every oblique case is governed by some word, expressed or understood, in the sentence of which it forms a part.

* The references are to the sections in the Latin Grammar.

Resolution or Analysis.

Every simple sentence consists of two parts, the subject and the predicate, § 94, 6. 7. 8. In analyzing a sentence, it is necessary to distinguish between the Grammatical subject and predicate, and the Logical subject and predicate.

The Grammatical subject is the name or thing spoken of, without, or separated from, all modifying words or clauses, and which stands as the nominative to the verb, or the accusative before the infinitive.

The Logical subject is the same word in connection with the qualifying or restricting expressions, which go to make up the full and precise idea of the thing spoken of.

The Grammatical predicate is the word or words containing the simple affirmation made respecting the subject.

The Logical predicate is the grammatical predicate combined with all those words or expressions that modify or restrict it in any way; thus:

In the sentence, "An inordinate desire of admiration often produces a contemptible levity of deportment;" the Grammatical subject is "desire;" the Logical "An inordinate desire of admiration." The Grammatical predicate is "produces," the Logical, "produces often a contemptible levity of deportment."

In Latin and English, the general arrangement of a sentence is the same, i. e., the sentence commonly begins with the subject and ends with the predicate. But the order of the words in each of these parts, is usually so different in Latin, from what it is in English, that one of the first difficulties a beginner has to encounter with a Latin sentence, is to know how "to take it in," or to arrange it in the proper order of the English. This is technically called construing or giving the order. To assist in this, some advantage may be found by carefully attending to the following Directions for Beginners.

DIRECT. I. As all the other parts of a sentence depend upon the two leading parts, namely, the subject or NOMINATIVE, and the predicate or VERB; the first thing to be done with every sentence, is to find out these. In order to this,

1. Look for the leading verb, which is always in the present, imperfect, perfect, pluperfect, or future of the indicative, or in the imperative mood,* and usually at or near the end of the sentence.

2. Having found the verb, observe its number and person; this will aid in finding its nominative, which is a noun or pronoun in the same number and person with the verb, commonly before it, and near the beginning of the sentence, though not always so, § 151. R. I. with exceptions.

DIRECT. II. Having thus found the nominative and verb, and ascertained their meaning, the sentence may be resolved from the Latin into the English order, as follows:

1. Take the Vocative, Exciting, Introductory, or connecting words, if there are any.

2. The NOMINATIVE.

3. Words limiting or explaining it, i. e., words agreeing with it, or governed by it, or by one another, where they are found, till you come to the verb.

4. The VERB.

5. Words limiting or explaining it, i. e., words which modify it, are governed by it, or depend upon it.

6. Supply everywhere the words understood.

7. If the sentence be compound, take the parts of it severally as they depend one upon another, proceeding with each of them as above.

DIRECT. III. In arranging the words for translation, in the subordinate parts of a sentence, observe the following Rules for construing.

I. An oblique case, or the infinitive mood, is put after the word that governs it.

Exc. The relative and interrogative are usually put before the governing word, unless that be a preposition; if it is, then after it.

II. An adjective, if no other word depend upon it or be coupled with it, is put before its substantive; but if another word depend upon it, or be governed by it, it is usually placed after it.

* All the other parts of the verb are generally used in subordinate clauses. So, also, is the pluperfect indicative. In oblique discourse, the leading verb is in the infinitive, § 141. Rule VI.

III. The participle is usually construed after its substantive, or the word with which it agrees.

IV. The relative and its clause, should, if possible, come immediately after the antecedent.

V. When a question is asked, the nominative comes after the verb; (in English between the auxiliary and the verb.) Interrogative words, however, such as quis, quotus, quantus, uter, &c., come before the verb.

VI. After a transitive active verb, look for an accusative, and after a preposition, for an accusative or ablative, and arrange the words accordingly.

VII. Words in apposition must be construed as near together as possible.

VIII. Adverbs, adverbial phrases, prepositions with their cases, circumstances of time, place, cause, manner, instrument, &c., should be placed, in general, after the words which they modify. The case absolute commonly before them, and often first in the sentence.

IX. The words of different clauses must not be mixed together, but each clause translated by itself, in its order, according to its connection with, or dependence upon, those to which it is related.

X. Conjunctions should be placed before the last of two words, or sentences connected.

L A T I N I D I O M S . *

PARTICULAR DIRECTIONS AND MODELS FOR TRANSLATION.

[The following explanations and directions are intended chiefly for reference. But it will be of great advantage for the pupil to become familiar with them by going through them two or three times, in course, simultaneously with his reading lessons.]

1. BEFORE translating, every sentence should be read over till it can be read correctly and with ease, paying special attention to the quantity and pronunciation. The words should then be arranged according to the preceding general directions, and translated as they are arranged, separately or in clusters, as may be found convenient; always remembering to place adjectives and adjective pronouns with their substantives before translating. The sense and grammatical construction being thus ascertained, the translation may then be read over without the Latin, and due attention paid to the English idiom. The whole sentence, whether simple or compound, may then be analyzed as directed § 152, and last of all, every word parsed separately as directed, § 153.

2. In order to arrange and translate with ease, it is necessary to be familiar with, and readily to distinguish the different cases, genders, and numbers of nouns, pronouns, adjectives, and participles, and to translate them correctly and promptly, in these cases and numbers, &c.; and also to distinguish and correctly translate the verb in its various moods, tenses, numbers, persons, &c. This can be acquired only by continual practice and drilling, which should be kept up till the utmost readiness is attained.

3. The English prepositions used in translating the different cases in Latin, for the sake of convenience, may be called SIGNS of those cases; and in translating these, the English definite or indefinite article is to be used as the sense requires. The signs of the cases are as follows:

Nom. (No sign.)	Acc. (No sign.)
Gen. Of .	Voc. O. or no sign.
Dat. To or for .	Abl. With, from, in, by, &c.

* A Latin idiom, strictly speaking, is a mode of speech peculiar to the Latin language. It is here used in a more extended sense, to denote a mode of speech different from the English, or which, if rendered word for word, and with the ordinary signs of cases, moods, tenses, &c., would not make a correct English sentence.

In certain constructions the idiom of the English language requires the oblique cases in Latin to be translated in a manner different from the above. The chief of these constructions are the following:

4. The Genitive.

1. The genitive denoting the place where, R. XXXVI., is translated at; as, Romæ, "At Rome."

2. Denoting price, sometimes for; as, Vendidit pluris, "He sold it for more;" or without a sign; as, Constitit pluris, "It cost more."

5. The Dative.

1. After a verb of taking away, R. XXIX.; the dative is translated from; as, Eripuit me morti, "He rescued me from death;" Eripitur morti, "He is rescued from death." R. XXXII-III. See § 123, Exp.

2. Denoting the doer after a passive verb, R. XXXIII., it is translated by; as, Vix audior ulli, "I am scarcely heard by any one."

3. Denoting the possessor, R. XV., Obs. 1, it is translated as the genitive; as, Ei in mentem venit, "It came into the mind to him," i. e., of him, or into his mind.

4. After verbs signifying "to be present," at; as, Adfuit precibus, He was present at prayers. § 112, R. I.

6. The Ablative.

1. The ablative denoting a property or quality of another substantive, R. VII., is translated of; as, Vir miræ magnitudinæ, "A man of wonderful size."

2. The place where, R. XXXVI. Exc., commonly at, sometimes in.

3. After the comparative degree, § 120, R. XXIV., than; as, Dulcior melle, "Sweeter than honey."

4. Denoting the material of which a thing is made, § 128, Obs. 2, of; as, Factus ebore, "Made of ivory."

5. After dignus and words denoting origin; also after opus and usus, signifying need, of; as, Dignus honore, "Worthy of honor."

6. Denoting time how long, sometimes in; as, Uno die fecit, "He did it in one day;" sometimes without a sign; as, Uno die abfuit, "He was absent one day."

7. Time when, at, on; as, Solis occāsu, "At the setting of the sun;" Idibus Aprīlis, "On the ides of April."

8. After verbs of depriving, § 125, of; as, Eum veste spoliāvit, "He stripped him of his garment."

Cases without Signs.

7. When the genitive, dative, or ablative, is governed by an intransitive verb which is translated by a transitive verb in English, (§ 38, Obs. 4.) or by an adjective denoting likeness, the sign of the case is omitted; as,

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 1. Gen. Miserere mei , | Pity me. |
| 2. Dat. Præfuit exercitui , | He commanded the army. |
| 3. " Placuit regi , | It pleased the king. |
| 4. Abl. Utitur fraude , | He uses deceit. |
| 5. " Potitus est imperio , | He obtained the government. |
| 6. Dat. Similis patri , | Like his father. |

Obs. But when rendered by an intransitive verb in English, the sign of the case must be used; as,

7. Insidiantur nobis, They lie in wait for us.

8. When a verb governs two datives, by R. XIX., the dative of the end or design is sometimes rendered without the sign; as,

1. Est mihi voluptati, It is to me [for] a pleasure; i. e.,
It is [or brings] a pleasure to me.

9. The ablative absolute, R. LX., (See No. 109,) and frequently time how long, R. XL., are without the sign; as,

1. Bello finito, The war being ended.
2. Sex mensibus abfuit, He was absent six months.

10. When the ablative is governed by a preposition, the English of that preposition takes the place of the sign of the ablative, and no other will be used; thus,

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Ab exercitu , From the army. | 4. Cum dignitate , With dignity. |
| 2. Ex urbe , Out of the city. | 5. Pro castris , Before the camp |
| 3. In agro , In the field. | 6. Tenus pube , Up to the middle |

11. In order to specify more particularly, the English idiom sometimes requires the possessive pronouns, my, thy, his, her, its, our, your their, (not expressed in Latin unless contrasted with others,) to be supplied before a noun, and especially if they refer to the subject of the sentence. The sense will shew when this is to be done and what pronoun is to be used; as,

- | | |
|---------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| 1. Filius similis patri, | A son like his father. |
| 2. Reverere parentes, | Reverence your parents. |

12. Nouns in apposition, (§ 97, R. I.) must be brought as near together as possible, and the sign of the case, when used, prefixed to the first only; as,

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-------------------------|
| 1. Nom. Cicero Orator, | Cicero the orator. |
| 2. Gen. Ciceronis oratoris, | Of Cicero the orator. |
| 3. Dat. Ciceroni oratori, | To Cicero the orator, |
| 4. Abl. Cicerone oratore, | With Cicero the orator. |

13. The noun in apposition is sometimes connected with the noun before it by the words as, being, &c.; as,

- | | |
|-----------------------------|--|
| 1. Misit me comitem, | He sent me as a companion. |
| 2. Hic puer venit, | He came, when [or being] a boy. |

Adjectives and Substantives.

14. In translating an adjective or adjective pronoun and a substantive together, the adjective is commonly placed first, and the sign of the case is prefixed to it, and not to the noun, § 98, R. II.; as,

- | | |
|-----------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1. Nom. Altus mons, | A high mountain. |
| 2. Gen. Alti montis, | Of a high mountain. |
| 3. Dat. Alto monti, | To [for] a high mountain. |
| 4. Abl. Alto monte, | With a high mountain. |

15. When two or more adjectives, coupled by a conjunction belong to one substantive, they may be placed either before or after it; as,

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|--|
| 1. Jupiter optimus et maximus, | Jupiter the best and greatest; or |
| Optimus et maximus Jupiter, | The best and greatest Jupiter. |
| 2. Viri sapientis et docti, | Of a man wise and learned; or |
| Sapientis et docti viri, | Of a wise and learned man. |

16. The adjective must be placed after its substantive when the former has a negative joined with it, or another word in the sentence governed by it, or dependent upon it. So also solus; as,

- | | |
|--|----------------------------------|
| 1. Dux peritus belli, | A general skilled in war. |
| 2. Filius similis patri, | A son like his father. |
| 3. Poeta dignus honore, | A poet worthy of honor. |
| 4. Homines soli sapient, | Men alone are wise. |
| 5. Avis tam parum decora, | A bird so little beautiful. |
| 6. Littore non molli neque arenoso, | With a shore not soft nor sandy. |

17. The adjectives primus, medius, ultimus, extrēmus, infimus, imus, summus, suprēmus, reliquus, cæter, or cætērus, and some others describing a part of an object, are translated as substantives, with the sign of the case prefixed, and of before the substantive following, § 98, Obs. 9; as,

- | | |
|------------------------------|------------------------------------|
| 1. Mediâ nocte , | In the middle of the night. |
| 2. Ad summum montem , | To the top of the mountain. |

18. When these adjectives (No. 17,) describe the whole and not a part only, they are translated as No. 11.; as,

- | | |
|------------------------|------------------------|
| Summum bonum , | The chief good. |
| Suprēmus dies , | The last day. |

19. An adjective without a substantive usually has a substantive understood, but obvious from the connexion, § 98, Obs. 5. Masculine adjectives, (if plural,) commonly agree with homīnes, or, if possessives, with amīci, cives, or mīlites, understood; and neuters, with factum, negotium, verbum, tempus, &c.; as,

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Boni (homīnes) sunt rari , | Good men are rare, |
| 2. Cæsar misit suos (mīlites) , | Cæsar sent his soldiers. |
| 3. Cocles transnāvit ad suos
(cives) , | Cocles swam over to his fellow-
citizens. |
| 4. Labor vincit omnia (negotia) | Labor overcomes all things. |
| 5. In postērum (tempus) , | In time to come,—for the future. |
| 6. In eo (loco) ut. | In such a situation that. |

20. Adjectives commonly used without a substantive, (but still belonging to a substantive understood,) may be regarded as substantives. They are such as mortāles, boni, mali, supēri, infēri, Græcus, Romānus, &c. (See § 98, Obs. 5.); as,

- | | |
|------------------------------------|---|
| 1. Mali odērunt bonos , | The wicked hate the good. |
| 2. Græcos Romāni vicērunt , | The Romans conquered the Greeks. |

21. Adjective words when partitives, or used partitively, take the gender of the noun expressing the whole, and govern it in the genitive plural, (if a collective noun, in the genitive singular,) § 107, RULE X. In this case verbs and adjectives agree with the partitive as if it were a noun; as,

- | | | |
|------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|-------------------|
| 1. Aliquis philosophōrum | Some one of the philosophers | has |
| dixit , | said. | |
| 2. Una musārum | One of the muses | will come. |
| 3. Multi nobiliūm juvēnum , | Many noble young men. | |

22. The comparative degree not followed by an ablative, or the conjunction quam, (than) is usually translated by the positive with too or rather prefixed. For explanation see § 120, Obs. 5.; as,

1. Iracundior est, (scil. æquo.) He is too (or rather) passionate.
2. Ægrius ferēbat, He took it rather ill.
3. Altius volāvit, He flew too high.

Obs. In a comparison, ed or tanto with a comparative in one clause, and quod or quanto in the other, may be rendered "the ;" (See No. 44. 7. 8.) as,

4. Quod plures, ed feliciores, The more the happier.

23. The superlative degree expressing comparison, is usually preceded by the article the in English, (§ 25,) as,

1. Doctissimus Romanorum, The most learned of the Romans.
2. Fortissimus miles in exercitu, The bravest soldier in the army.

24. When the superlative does not express comparison, but only eminence or distinction, it is translated with the article a or an prefixed in the singular, and without an article in the plural; or by the positive, with very, eminently, &c., prefixed, (§ 25,) as,

1. Homo doctissimus. A most learned (or a very learned) man.
2. Homines doctissimi, Most learned (or very learned) men.

25. Alius repeated with a different word in the same clause, renders that clause double, and requires it to be translated as in the following examples:

1. Alius aliā viā, One by one way, another by another.
2. Aliud aliis videtur, One thing seems good to some, another to others, i. e. Some think one thing, and some another. (See other varieties. § 98. Obs. 11.)

The same usage occurs with words derived from alius. See Gr. § 98, Obs. 12.

26. The distributive numeral adjectives are usually translated by the cardinal number indicated, with "each," or "to each," annexed; sometimes by repeating the cardinal thus, "one by one;" "two by two," &c., § 24, 11; as,

1. Consules binas naves habebant, The consuls had each two ships, or, had two ships each.
2. Quas singuli carri ducuntur, Where wagons could be led one by one.
3. Tigna bina, Beams two by two, or in pairs.
4. Singulis singulas partes distribuit æquales, He distributed equal parts, one to each.
5. Singulis mensibus hoc fecit, This he did every (or each) month.
6. Plures singuli uxores habent, They have each many wives.

Pronouns.

27. 1st. The adjective pronoun, hic, hæc, hoc, with a noun following, is used as an adjective, and means, in the singular, "this,"—in the plural, "these."—Ille, illa, illud,—is, ea, id,—iste, ista, istud, with a noun, in the singular, mean "that,"—in the plural, "those."

2d. Without a noun following they are all used substantively, and mean, in the singular, he, she, it; in the plural, they; thus,

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|---|
| 1. Hic vir , This man. | 4. Hic fecit , He did it. |
| 2. Illa femina , That woman. | 5. Illa vēnit , She came. |
| 3. Ea urbs , That city. | 6. Ea (Dido) condidit eam , She built it, (Carthage.) |

Obs. In sentences containing an enumeration of particulars, the same pronoun is sometimes used in successive clauses, but they require to be translated differently, (§ 98, Obs. 12.); thus,

- | | | | |
|--------------------|---------------------|------------------|---------------------------|
| 7. Hic , | } "one," "the one." | — hic , | } "another," "the other." |
| 8. Is , | | — is , | |
| 9. Ille , | | — ille , | |
| 10. Alter , | | — alter , | |

When antithesis or contrast is stated, hic is translated "this," and refers to the nearer antecedent, ille, "that," and refers to the more distant; as,

11. Hic minor natu est, ille major, This is the younger, that, the older.

28. Is, ea, id, followed by ut, or the relative, qui, quæ, quod, in the next clause, means "such," and implies comparison. The relative after it may be translated, that I, that thou, that he, that they, &c., according as the antecedent requires, or it may be translated as, and its verb by the infinitive (§ 31, Obs. 2.); thus,

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|--|
| 1. Is homo erat ut, &c. , | He was such a man that, &c. |
| 2. Neque is sum qui terrear , | I am not such that I may be frightened. Or better thus, I am not such a one as to be frightened. |

Obs. The adverb eò with ut following it means "so far," "to such a degree," "to such a point," "in such a state;" as,

3. Eò pervēnit ut,
- "He came so far, (i. e. made such progress.) that;"

Possessive Pronouns.

29. The possessive pronoun is equivalent in meaning to the genitive of the substantive pronoun, and may often be so translated; as,

1. Beneficio suo populiq̄e Romāni, By the kindness of himself and of the Roman people.
2. Cum mea nemo scripta legat, vulgo recitare timentis, Since no one reads the writings of me, fearing to recite them publicly.

30. The possessives, suus, sua, suum, in Latin, agrees in gender, number, and case, with the noun denoting the object possessed, but in English must be translated by a pronoun denoting the possessor; thus,

1. Pater diligit suos liberos, A father loves his children.
2. Parentes diligunt suam sobolem, Parents love their offspring.
3. Frater diligit suam sororem, A brother loves his sister.
4. Soror diligit suum fratrem, A sister loves her brother.

Obs. In the first sentence, "suos," agrees with "liberos," but must be translated "his," denoting "pater," the possessor. In the second, suam, though singular, to agree with sobolem, must be translated "their," so as to denote the possessors, "parentes," &c.

Usage of Sui, Suus;—Ille, Iste, Hic, Is.

31. The reflexive, sui, and its possessive, suus, generally refer to the subject of the leading verb* in the sentence; ille, iste, hic, is, never refer to that subject, but to some other person or thing spoken of; thus,

1. Cato occidit se, Cato killed himself.
2. Pater diligit suos liberos, A father loves his (own) children.
3. Parentes diligunt suam sobolem, Parents love their (own) offspring.
4. Dicit se valere, He says that he is well.

Obs. In the second and third sentence, suos, "his," and suam, "their," referring to some other person than pater or parentes, would be made by the genitive of ille, iste, hic, is. In the first and fourth, se would be made eum. For the difference between these words usually translated "he," see Gr. § 28, Obs. 3.

* See Gr. § 28, Obs. 3, 1st., with note.

Note. If a second subject and verb be introduced, the reflexive governed by that verb will belong to the new subject, unless the whole clause refer to the words, wishes, or actions, of the first subject; as,

5. Scipio civitatibus Italiae reddidit omnia quæ sua recognoscēbant, Scipio restored to the States of Italy, all the things which they recognised as their own.

Usage of Ipse.

32. Ipse renders the word with which it is joined emphatic, whether expressed or understood, and is equal to the English, myself, thyself, himself, themselves, &c., annexed to it; sometimes to the word very prefixed. With numbers it denotes exactness, and sometimes it is used by itself as a reflexive instead of sui, § 28, Obs. 3, 2d.; as,

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1. Ipse faciam, (i. e. ego ipse), | I will do it myself . |
| 2. Ipse fruēris otio, (i. e. tu ipse), | Thou thyself enjoyest ease. |
| 3. Jaculo cadit ipse, (i. e. ille ipse), | He himself falls by a dart. |
| 4. Cæsar ipse venit, | Cæsar himself came. |
| 5. Tempus ipsum convēnit, | The very time was agreed on. |
| 6. Ad ipsas portas, | To the very gates. |
| 7. Decem ipsi dies, | Ten whole days. |
| 8. Precatus est ut ipsum liberaret, | He begged that he would liberate him . |
| 9. Donum ipsi datum, | A present given to him . |

33. When joined with the personal pronouns, used in a reflexive sense, and in an oblique case, it sometimes agrees with them in case, but more commonly with the subject of the verb in the nominative or accusative. It is always, however, to be translated with the oblique case, to which it adds the force of the word self, or simply of emphasis; thus,

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1. Se ipse interfecit (or se ipsum), | He slew himself . |
| 1. Nosce te ipse (or te ipsum), | Know thyself . |
| 2. Mihi ipse (or ipsi), faveo, | I favor myself . |
| 3. Agam per me ipse, | I will do it myself . |
| 4. Virtus est per se ipsa laudabilis, | Virtue is to be praised for it-
self . |
| 5. Se ipsos omnes naturâ diligunt. | All men naturally love them-
selves . |

RELATIVE AND ANTECEDENT.

General Principle.

34. Every sentence containing a relative and its antecedent, is a compound sentence, of which the relative with its clause forms one of the parts, and is used further to describe or limit its antecedent word in the other part. That word may be the subject, or belong to the predicate, or to some circumstance connected with either. But to whichever of these it belongs, the relative and its clause must all be translated together, and in immediate connexion with its antecedent word. Hence the following

General Rule of Arrangement.

35. The relative with its clause should be placed immediately after, or as near as possible to the antecedent, and, unless unavoidable, another substantive should not come between them; thus,

Latin Arrangement.

1. Urbi immānet mons, qui ad Arcadiam procurrit. Here "qui" with its clause, "ad Arcadiam procurrit," belongs to, and further describes the antecedent subject, "mons." As then the subject with all that belongs to it must be taken before the verb, (Gr. § 152, Direct. 2, 2d, 3d,) the above sentence should be arranged for translation, thus: Mons qui procurrit ad Arcadiam, immānet urbi, A mountain, which extends to Arcadia, hangs over the city.

Or, the English order may be inverted, thus: Urbi immānet mons, qui procurrit ad Arcadiam, Over the city hangs a mountain, which, &c.

But not, Mons immānet urbi, qui, &c., because this arrangement would place "urbi" between the antecedent, "mons," and the relative, "qui," and so lead to a false translation. The following sentence also affords an example:

2. Proxīme urbem Eurōtas fluvius delabitur, ad cuius ripas Spartāni se exercere solēbant. Arrange, Proxīme urbem delabitur, &c., Close to the city flows; or, Eurōtas fluvius, ad cuius ripas, &c.

36. When another noun necessarily comes between the relative and its antecedent, there is more danger of ambiguity in English than in Latin, as the gender and number of the Latin relative will generally direct to the proper antecedent, to which in English we are directed chiefly by the sense. The following sentence affords an example of this kind: Ad Byzantium fugit, oppidum naturá munítum et arte, quod copiá abundat.

37. The antecedent in Latin is often understood when the English idiom requires it to be supplied. It is generally understood, and should be supplied in the proper case :

1st. When it is intentionally left indefinite, or is obvious from the gender and number of the relative, and the connexion in which it stands, as in No. 19; as,

1. Sunt (h o m i n e s) quos juvat, There are men whom it delights.
2. Hic est (i d) quod quærimus, That which we seek is here.
 “ Hic sunt, (e a) quæ quærimus Those things which we seek are here.
3. (I s) qui cito dat, bis dat, (He) who gives promptly, gives twice.

Note. In the preceding sentences the antecedent supplied is in parentheses.

2d. The antecedent is usually understood before the relative, when it is expressed after it, and in the same case, (§ 99, Obs. 1, 2d.); as,

4. (P a r s) quæ pars terrêna fuit, The part which was earthy.
5. (L o c u s) in quem locum venit, The place into which he came.
 “ Apud Actium (l o c u m) qui locus est, &c.

Note. 1. When the antecedent word is expressed in the relative clause, as in the examples Nos. 4, and 5, or is repeated, as in the following, No. 6, (§ 99, Obs. 1, 3d.) it is omitted in translating; as,

- 6 Erant omnino duo itinera, quibus itineribus domo exire possent, There were only two ways by which they could go from home.

Note. 2. Quisquis, quidquid, or quicquid, (and also quicumque, quæcunque, quodcunque,) “whoever, whatever,” used as a relative without an antecedent, includes a general or indefinite antecedent, in such case as the construction requires, and is equivalent to omnis, or quivis qui,—omne, or quidvis quod; as,

7. Fortunam quæcunque (i. e. quæ) a mvis fortunam quæ accidat experiantur, They would hazard whatever fortune (i. e. any fortune which) might happen.
8. Quidquid tetigerat aurum fîbat, Whatever (i. e. every thing which) he had touched became gold.

Note 3. When the antecedent is a proposition, or clause of a sentence, § 99, Exp., the relative is put in the neuter gender, and sometimes has id before it referring to the same clause; as,

9. Servi, quod (or id quod) nunquam ante factum, manumissi et milites facti sunt; The slaves, which never had been done before, were set free and made soldiers.

38. In the beginning of a sentence, a relative, with or without quum, or other conjunctive term, and referring to some word, clause, or circumstance, in a preceding sentence, usually has the antecedent word repeated, or, if evident, understood; and instead of who or which, may be rendered this, that, these, those, or, and this, and that, &c., according as the closeness of the connexion may require, (§ 99, Obs. 8.); as,

1. Quæ urbs quum infestaretur, And since (or because) this city was infested.
 “ Qui legati quum missi essent, When these ambassadors had been sent.
 2. Quæ contentio cuncta permiscuit, This contention threw all things into confusion.
 3. Quibus nunciis acceptis, These tidings being received.
 4. Quod quum ille cerneret, And when he saw this.
 5. Quo facto, This being done (or accomplished)
 6. Quæ dum omnia contemplantur, And while they were contemplating all these things.
 7. Quod quum impetrasset, And when he had obtained this.
 8. A quo consilio quum revocaret. When he recalled him from this design.
 9. Quo ictu ille extinctus est, And by this blow he was killed.

Note. To this construction belongs quod, (apparently for propter or ad quod, § 128,) in the beginning of a sentence, referring to something previously stated, and meaning, “on account of, with respect to, or as to, THIS THING;” as,

10. Quod diis gratias habeo, On account of this, (for this thing, wherefor,) I give thanks to the gods.
 11. Quod diceret se venturum, As to what (as to that thing which) he said, that he would come.

39. When the antecedent word is not repeated, as in No. 38, the relative, with or without quum, or other conjunctive term, may be rendered he, she, it, they, or and he, and she, &c., according as the antecedent word requires, (§ 99, Obs. 8.); as,

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Qui quum admitteret, | And when he admitted. |
| 2. Quæ quum vidisset,
Quæ quum visa esset, | And when she had seen.
When she had been (or was) seen. |
| 3. Quam quum dare nollet, | And when he would not give it. |
| 4. Quibus quum occurrisset, | When he had met them. |
| 5. Qui (quæ; pl. qui, quæ,) res-
pondit, | And he, (she, they) replied. |
| 6. Qui (or quæ) quum ades-
sent. | And when they were present. |
| 7. Quem Meleāger interfecit, | And Meleager slew him. |
| 8. Quam quum duceret, | And when he was leading her. |
| 9. Ad quem quum venissent, | And when they had come to him. |
| 10. Quem ut vidit, | As soon as, (or when) he saw him. |

40. When the relative in any case is followed by the subjunctive mood, and the two clauses, viz: the antecedent and relative, involve a comparison; or the latter expresses the purpose, object, or design, of something expressed by the former, the relative is better translated by the conjunction that and the personal pronoun; thus, that I, that thou, that he, that they, &c., as the antecedent word may require, (See Gr. § 141, R. II. and Explanation,);

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1. Missus sum qui te adducērem, | I have been sent that I might bring you. |
| 2. Neque is qui facias id, | You are not such a person that you should do that. |
| 3. Quis est tam lynceus qui, &c. | Who is so sharp sighted that he. |
| 4. Misit legātos qui cognoscē-
rent, | He sent ambassadors that they might find out. |
| 5. Fruges mandāvit quæ disse-
mināret, | She gave him fruits that he might scatter them. |

41. In the expressions, quippe qui, ut qui, utpōte qui, the relative is better translated by the personal pronoun which represents the antecedent, (§ 141, Obs. 4,); as,

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|--|
| 1. Quippe qui nunquam legērim, | For, (or because) I have never read them. |
|---------------------------------------|--|

42. After dignus, indignus, idoneus, and the like, in the predicate, the relative and subjunctive mood may be rendered by the infinitive, (§ 141, Obs. 2. 1st.); as,

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Dignus qui amētur, | Worthy to be loved. |
| 2. Si dignum qui numerētur
crearitis, | If you shall elect a person worthy to be reckoned, &c. |

43. Sometimes the natural order of the sentence is inverted, so that the relative clause stands first and the antecedent follows it. In translating, the antecedent clause should generally be placed first; as,

1. Qui bonis non recte utitur, ei bona mala fiunt, Good things become evil to him who does not use good things well.
2. Qui cito dat, (is) bis dat, He gives twice who gives quickly.

Correlative Adjectives.

44. The demonstratives, tot, so many, and totidem, just so many; tantus, as great, so great, as much, so much; talis, such; are followed by their relatives, quot, quantus, qualis, signifying as, to denote comparison; as,

1. Tot homines quot, As many men as.
 2. Totidem naves quot, Just so many ships as
 3. Tantus exercitus quantus, As great (or so great) an army as.
 4. Talis homo qualis, Such a man as.

So also the correlative adverbs.

5. Toties — quoties, As often — as.
 6. Tam — quam, So — as.
 7. Eò — quò By so much — as.
 8. Tanto — quanto, By so much — as; or
 In proportion — as.

45. Instead of the relative in such sentences, the conjunctions ac, atque, (§ 149, Obs. 6,) ut, and the relative qui, quæ, quod, are sometimes used and may generally be translated, "as," or "that."

1. Honus talis paucis est delatus ac mihi, Such honor has been bestowed upon few persons, as upon me.
 2. Cum totidem navibus atque profectus erat, rediit, He returned with just as many ships as he had departed with.
 3. Nulla est tanta vis quæ non frangi possit, No power is so great as (or, that it) cannot be broken.

46. When the relative only is expressed in sentences implying comparison, the demonstrative (No. 44,) must be supplied and the sentence translated as above; as,

1. Crocodylus parit (tanta) ova quanta anseres, The crocodile lays (as large) eggs as geese lay.
 2. (Tot) millia quot unquam venere Mycenis, As many thousands as ever came from Mycenæ.

47. Sometimes, as in No. 43, the natural order of the sentence is inverted, so that the relative clause stands first and the antecedent follows it. In translating, the antecedent clause should be placed first; as,

1. Quot homines tot causæ, arrange } As many causes as there are men.
Tot causæ quot homines, }

48. The relatives, quot, quoties, quantus, qualis, used interrogatively, or in an exclamation, or indefinitely, in the indirect interrogation, and without implying comparison, have no reference to an antecedent term either expressed or understood, and are translated respectively, "how many," "how often," "how great," or "how much," "what," or "of what kind;" as,

1. Inter. Quot annos habet? How many years has he? i. e. how old is he?
2. Indef. Nescio quot, I know not how many.
3. Excl. Cum quantâ gravitate! With how much gravity.
4. Indef. Doce quales sint, Tell us of what kind they are.

THE VERB AND ITS SUBJECT.

General Principle.

49. Every finite verb (§ 95, 5,) has its own subject, expressed or understood, in the nominative case.

Obs. The subject of the verb is the person or thing spoken of, and may be a noun, a pronoun, a verb in the infinitive mood, a clause of a sentence, or any thing which, however expressed, is the subject of thought or speech. (§ 101, Exp.)

General Rule of Arrangement.

50. The subject and all the words agreeing with it, governed by it, connected with it, or dependent upon it, must be arranged in the order of their connection and dependence, and translated before the verb.

1. Cânis latrat, The dog barks.
2. Ego scribo, I write.
3. Ludere est jucundum, To play is pleasant.
4. Dulce est pro patriâ mori, To die for one's country is sweet.
5. Totus Græcorum exercitus Aulide convenerat, The whole army of the Greeks had assembled at Aulis.
6. Vir sapit qui pauca loquitur, The man who speaks little is wise.

51. When the subject of a verb is the infinitive, either alone or with its subject; or a clause of a sentence, connected by ut, quod, or other conjunctive term, the English pronoun, it, is put with the verb referring to that infinitive or clause following it, and which is its proper subject; as,

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1. Facile est jubere, | It is easy to command. |
| 2. Nuntiātum est classem devinci, | It was announced that the fleet was conquered. |
| 3. Semper accidit ut absis, | It always happens that you are absent. |
| 4. Qui fit ut metuas, | How happens it that you fear. |
| 5. Nunquam Romānis placuisse imperatōrem a suis militibus interfici, | That it never had pleased the Romans, that a commander should be killed by his own soldiers. |

52. The verb must always be translated in its proper tense, and in the same person and number with its nominative. (See paradigms of the verb, §§ 54-70.) But when it has two or more nouns or pronouns in the singular, taken together, or a collective noun expressing many as individuals, as its subject, the verb must be translated in the plural; as,

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|--|
| 1. Et pater et mater venerunt, | Both his father and mother have come. |
| 2. Turba quoquoversum ruunt, | The crowd rush in every direction. |

53. The nominative to a verb in the first or second person, being evident from the termination, is seldom expressed in Latin; but must be supplied in translating; as,

- | | |
|---------------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 1. Scribo, I write. | 3. Scribimus, We write. |
| 2. Legis, Thou readest. | 4. Legitis, You read. |

54. When the verb in the third person has no nominative expressed, it refers to some noun or pronoun evident from the connection; and, both in translating and parsing, the pronoun ille, or is, in the nominative case, and in the gender and number of the noun or pronoun referred to, must be supplied; as,

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1. (Ille) scribit, (He) writes. | 2. (Illi) scribunt, (They) write. |
|---|---|

55. When the same word is the subject of several verbs closely connected in the same construction, it is expressed with the first and understood to the rest, both in Latin and English; thus,

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Cæsar venit, vidit, et vicit, | Cæsar came, saw, and conquered. |
| 2. Dicitur Cæsarem venisse, vidisse, et vicisse, | It is said that Cæsar came, saw, and conquered. |

Interrogative Sentences.

56. A question is made in Latin in four different ways, as follows:

1st. By an interrogative pronoun; as, Quis venit? "Who comes?" Quem misit? "Whom did he send?" Cujus pecus hoc? "Whose flock is this?" &c.

2d. By an interrogative adverb; as, Unde venit? "Whence came he?" Cur venit? "Why did he come?"

3d. By the interrogative particles, num, an, and the enclitic, ne. Thus used these particles have no corresponding English word in the translation; they merely indicate a question; as, Num venit, or an venit, or venitne? "Has he come?" Num videtur? "Does it seem?"

4th. By simply placing an interrogation mark at the end of the question; as, Vis me hoc facere? "Do you wish me to do this?"

57. The interrogative pronoun or adverb, in all cases, is translated before the verb; as,

- | | |
|-----------------------------|---|
| 1. Quis fecit? | Who did it? or who has done it? |
| 2. Quem misit? | Whom did he send? |
| 3. Quanto constitit? | How much did it cost? |
| 4. Qualis fuit? | What sort of a man was he? |

This is true also of the indirect question, i. e., when the substance of a question is stated but not in the interrogative form; as,

- | | |
|--|--|
| 5. Nescio quanto constitērit, | I know not how much it cost. |
| 6. Docuit quam firma res esset
concordia, | He shewed them how firm a thing agreement was. |

Note. When the verb in the direct or indirect question comes under § 103, R. V., the predicate, or nominative after the verb, is translated first, and the subject or nominative, in the direct question after the verb, as in Ex. 4; but in the indirect, before it, as in Ex. 6. Thus, in Ex. 4, qualis is the predicate, and ille understood, the subject; in Ex. 6, res is the predicate, and concordia the subject.

58. In all forms of interrogation not made by an interrogative pronoun, as in No. 57, the nominative or subject is translated after the verb in English, in the simple forms, and after the first auxiliary in the compound forms; as,

- | | |
|------------------------|---|
| 1. Videsne? | Seest thou? or dost thou see? |
| 2. An venisti? | Hast thou come? or have you come? |
| 3. Scribetne? | Will he write? |
| 4. Num ibimus? | Shall we go? |
| 5. Nonne fecit? | Has he not done (it)? |

- | | |
|------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 6. An egisset melius? | Would he have done better? |
| 7. Nosne alēmus? | Shall we support? |
| 8. Nonne Dei est? | Does it not belong to God? |
| 9. Iste est frater? | Is that your brother? |

59. When a sentence not interrogative is introduced by nec or neque, not followed by a corresponding conjunction, (See No. 124,) in a connected clause, the verb will be translated by an auxiliary, and the English nominative will stand after the first auxiliary; as,

- | | |
|--------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1. Neque hoc intelligo, | Neither do I understand this. |
| 2. Nec venisset, | Neither would he have come. |
| 3. Nec adeptus sum, | Nor have I attained. |

The object of the verb.

60. In translating, the object of a transitive verb in the accusative is arranged after the verb, and as near to it as possible. That object may be a noun, a pronoun, an infinitive mood, or a clause of a sentence, (§ 116, Exp.); as,

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Romulus condidit urbem, | Romulus built a city . |
| 2. Vocavit eam Romam, | He called it Rome. |
| 3. Disce dicere vera, | Learn to speaking the truth . |
| 4. Obtulit ut captivos redimerent, | He offered that they should redeem the captives . |

61. The interrogative or relative pronoun is always translated before the verb that governs it; as,

- | | |
|------------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| 1. Quem mittemus? | Whom shall we send? |
| 2. Cui dedisti? | To whom did ye give it? |
| 3. Deus quem colimus, | God whom we worship. |
| 4. Cui omnia debemus, | To whom we owe all things. |

62. When a transitive verb governs two cases, the immediate object in the accusative, according to the natural order, is usually translated first, and after that the remote object in the genitive, § 122; dative, § 123; accusative, § 124; or ablative, § 125; as,

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1. Arguit me furti, | He accuses me of theft. |
| 2. Comparo Virgilium Homero, | I compare Virgil to Homer. |
| 3. Poscimus te pacem, | We beg peace of thee. |
| 4. Onerat naves auro, | He loads the ships with gold. |

Note. The accusative of the person after verbs of asking, is translated by of, or from; as,

- | | |
|---|--|
| 5. Pyrrhum auxilium poposcerunt, | They demanded aid of (or from) Pyrrhus. |
|---|--|

63. But when the remote object is a relative, or when the immediate object is an infinitive, or a clause of a sentence, or a noun further described by other words, the remote object must be translated first; as,

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1. Cui librum dedimus, | To whom we gave the book. |
| 2. Da mihi fallere, | Give me to deceive. |
| “ Dixit ei confiteor meum peccatum, | He said to him, I confess my fault. |
| 3. Eum rogaverunt, ut ipsos defenderet, | They entreated him, that he would defend them. |
| 4. Docuit illos quam firma esset, | He shewed them how firm it was. |
| 5. Civitatem, antea sollicitatam, armis ornat, | He supplies with arms, the city already excited. |

64. When a verb, which in the active voice governs two cases, is used in the passive form, that which was the immediate object in the accusative, becomes the subject in the nominative, and the remote object in its own case immediately follows the verb. Thus, the examples No. 62, may be arranged and translated as follows, § 126.

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Arguor furti, | I am accused of theft. |
| 2. Virgilius comparatur Homero, | Virgil is compared to Homer. |
| 3. Pax poscitur te, | Peace is begged of thee. |
| 4. Naves onerantur auro, | The ships are loading with gold. |

So also the participles.

- | | |
|------------------------------|---------------------------|
| 5. Accusatus furti, | Accused of theft. |
| 6. Comparatus Homero, | Compared to Homer, |
| 7. Onerata auro, | Loaded with gold. |
| 8. Nudata hominibus, | Stripped of men. |
| 9. Ereptus morti, | Saved from death |

Impersonal Verbs.

65. The impersonal verb has no nominative before it in Latin. It is translated by placing the pronoun it before it in English; as, (§ 85, 2.)

- | | | | |
|--------------------|-----------------------|---------------------|----------------------|
| 1. Decet, | It becomes. | 4. Pugnatur, | It is fought. |
| 2. Constat, | It is evident. | 5. Itur, | It is gone. |
| 3. Tonat, | It thunders. | 6. Curritur, | It is run. |

66. Impersonal verbs governing the dative or accusative in Latin, may be translated in a personal form by making the word in the dative or accusative the nominative to the English verb, taking care always to express the same idea, (§ 85, 6, and § 113; thus,

	Impersonally.	Personally.
1. Placet mihi,	It pleases me ;	I am pleased.
2. Licet tibi,	It is permitted to you ;	You are permitted
3. Decet eum,	It becomes him ;	He ought.
4. Pudet nos,	It shames us ;	We are ashamed.
5. Tædet vos,	It wearies you ;	You are wearied.
6. Favetur, illis,	Favor is done to them ;	They are favored.
7. Nocetur hosti,	Hurt is done to the enemy ;	The enemy is hurt.
8. Misæret me tui,	It moves me to pity of you ;	I pity you .
9. Pænitet eos,	It repents them ;	They repent.
10. Pænitet me pe- casse,	It repents me , i. e.,	I repent of having sinned.

67. When the doer of an action denoted by an impersonal verb, or by a passive verb used impersonally, is expressed by the ablative with a, (§ 85, 6,) the verb may be translated personally in the active voice, and the doer, in the ablative, be made its English subject or nominative; as,

	Impersonally.	Personally.
1. Pugnâtur a me,	It is fought by me ;	I fight.
2. Currîtur a te,	It is run by thee ;	Thou runnest.
3. Favetur a nobis	It is favored by us ;	We favor.
4. Favetur tibi a no- bis,	It is favored to you by us ;	We favor you ; or you are favored by us .

Note. The doer in the ablative with a, is frequently understood, (especially when no definite person or thing is intended,) and must be supplied as the context requires; as,

5. Ubi perventum est (ab illis),	When it was come by them , i. e., when they came.
6. Descenditur (ab hominibus),	Men (or people ,) go down.
7. Conveniebâtur (ab hominibus),	People assembled.

68. Some verbs, not impersonal, are used impersonally, when used before the infinitive of impersonal verbs, (§ 113, Obs. 1,); as,

	Impersonally.	Personally.
1. Potest credi tibi,	It can be trusted to you ;	You can be trusted ; 66. 2.
2. Non potest noceri hosti,	It cannot be hurt to the enemy ;	The enemy cannot be hurt ; 66. 7.
3. Ut fieri solet,	As it is wont to be done ; or, As is usual.

69. Verbs usually impersonal are sometimes used personally, and have their subject in the nominative, (§ 113, Obs. 1,); as,

1. Doleo I grieve, (Impersonally Dolet mihi,) It grieves me,
2. Candida pax homines decet, Candid peace becomes men.
3. Ista gesta mihi nostra hu- These arms become my shoulders.
mēros decet,

Usage of Videor, "I seem."

70. Videor, "I seem," though never impersonal in Latin, is often rendered impersonally in English; and the dative following it, seems properly to come under Rule XXXIII, § 126, to denote the person to whom any thing seems or appears, i. e., by whom it is seen; thus, Videor tibi esse pauper, I seem to you, (i. e., I am seen by you,) to be poor. Videor mihi esse pauper, I seem to myself, (i. e., I am seen by myself,) to be poor; or, I think that I am poor. So the following:

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Videor esse liber , | I seem to be free; or, It seems that I am free. |
| 2. Videor mihi esse liber , | I seem to myself to be free; or, It seems to me, (or, I think) that I am free. |
| 3. Vidēris esse , | You seem to be; or, It seems that you are. |
| 4. Vidēris tibi esse , | You seem to yourself to be; or, It seems to you, (i. e., you think) that you are. |
| 5. Vidēris mihi esse , | You seem to me to be; or, It seems to me, (i. e., I think) that you are. |
| 6. Tu, ut vidēris, non scribis , | You, as you seem, (or, as it seems) do not write. |

Obs. The third person singular of videor followed by an infinitive, with its subject in the accusative, or by a dependent clause after ut, or quod, may be said to be used impersonally; though strictly speaking, that infinitive with its accusative, or that clause, is the subject, (See No. 51.); as,

- | | |
|------------------------------------|--|
| 7. Vidētur mihi te valēre , | It appears to me that you are well; strictly rendered, That you are well appears to (or, is seen by) me. |
| 8. Illi vidētur ut valeat , | It appears to him, (or, he thinks) that he, (another person) is well. |
| 9. Vidētur sibi valēre , | It appears to him, (or, he thinks) that he, (himself) is well. He seems to himself to be well. |

Verbs.—Indicative Mood.

71. Verbs in the indicative mood are translated as in the paradigm in the Grammar. Care must be taken, however, to notice when the sense requires the simple, or emphatic, or progressive form.

72. When the perfect tense expresses a past action or event extending to, or connected with the present, in itself or in its consequences, it is used definitely, and must be rendered by the auxiliaries, have, hast, has, or hath; as,

1. Regem vidi hodie, I have seen the king to day.

73. When the perfect tense expresses a past action or event, without reference to the present, it is used indefinitely, (Gr. § 44, III.) and cannot be rendered by have, hast, has, or hath; as,

1. Regem vidi nuper, I saw the king lately.

Subjunctive Mood.

The subjunctive mood is used in two different ways, viz: subjunctively and potentially. (Gr. § 42, II. and §§ 139–141.)

Subjunctive used subjunctively.

74. This mood is used subjunctively, but for the most part translated as the indicative, when it expresses what is actual and certain though not directly asserted as such. This it does,

1st. When it is subjoined to some adverb, conjunction, or indefinite term in a dependent clause, for the purpose of stating the existence of a thing, (without directly asserting it,) as something supposed, taken for granted, or connected with the direct assertion, as a cause, condition, or modifying circumstance, (§ 140, Obs. 4.); as,

1. Ea cum ita sint discēdam, Since these things are so, I will depart.

2. Si m a de at, If it is wet.

3. Quum Cæsar rediret, When Cæsar returned—was returning.

4. Ita perterritus est ut mori- r e t u r, He was so frightened that he died.

5. Gratūlor tibi quod rediēris, I am glad that you have returned.

6. Si imperitaverint, If they have commanded.
 7. Si reliquissem iniqui dicērent, If I had left him, &c.
 8. Quum Cæsar profectus esset, When Cæsar had departed.

Obs. In the first of the above examples the direct assertion, is discēdam, "I will depart." The dependent clause, ea cum ita sint, "since these things are so," expresses the existence of certain things referred to without directly asserting it, but taking it for granted as a thing admitted or supposed, but still affecting in some way the event directly asserted. This holds good of all the other examples above.

* The dependent clause connected by ut, or ubi, "when;" dum, "whilst;" priusquam, "before;" postquam, "after;" and other conjunctions, (§ 140, Obs. 2 and 3,); and also by quum or cum, "when," (Obs. 4,) sometimes take the indicative mood.

2d. The subjunctive mood is used subjunctively, as above, after an interrogative word used indefinitely, in a dependent clause, or in what is called the indirect question, i. e., an expression containing the substance of a question without the form. All interrogative words may be used in this way, (See § 140, 5,); thus,

9. Nescio quis sit—quid fiat, I know not who he is—what is doing.
 10. Doce me ubi sint dii, Tell me where the gods are.
 11. Nescio uter scriberet, I know not which of the two wrote.
 12. Nescio quid scriptum esset, I know not what was written.
 12. Scio cui, (a quo) scriptum esset, I know to whom (by whom) it was written.
 13. An scis quis hoc fecerit? Do you know who has done this?
 14. An scis a quo hoc factum fuerit? Do you know by whom this has been done?
 15. Nemo sciēbat quis hæc fecisset, None knew who had done these things.
 16. Percunctatus quid vellet, Having enquired what he wished.

Note. The direct question requires the indicative; as, Quis fecit? "Who did it?" The indirect requires the subjunctive; as, Nescio quis fecerit, "I know not who did it."

75. This mood is used subjunctively, and usually translated as the indicative in a relative clause, after an indefinite general expression, (§ 141, R. I.) a negation, or a question implying a negation, and also after the relative in oblique narration, (§ 141, R. VI.); as,

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1. Est qui dicat, | There is one who says . |
| 2. Nullus est qui neget, | There is no one who denies . |
| 3. Quis est qui hoc faciat? | Who is there that does this? |
| 4. Antonius inquit, artem esse earum rerum quæ sciantur, | Antonius says that art belongs to those things which are known . |

The Subjunctive used Potentially.

76. The subjunctive mood is used potentially; 1st, in interrogative sentences; and 2d, to express a thing not as actual and certain, but contingent and hypothetical, (Gr. § 42, II. 2, and Obs. 3.) Thus used it is much less definite with respect to time, and is translated with some variety; as follows:

- | | |
|-----------------------|---|
| 1. Present, | by may, can, shall, will, could, would, should. |
| 2. Imperfect, | by might, could, would, or should. |
| 3. Perfect, | by may have, can have, must have, &c. |
| 4. Pluperfect, | by might have, could have, would have, should have, and denoting futurity, should. |

The most usual renderings of each tense are the following:

77. Present. The present subjunctive used potentially expresses present liberty, power, will, or obligation, usually expressed by the English auxiliaries, may, can, shall, will, could, would, should. (§ 45, 1.)

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Licet eas, | You may go. |
| 2. An sic intelligat? | Can he so understand it? |
| 3. Men' moveat cimex Panti-lius? | Shall (or should) the insect Panti-
lius discompose me? |
| 4. Quis istos ferat? | Who could bear those men? |
| 5. Si hic sis, aliter sentias, | If you were here you would think otherwise. |

Imperatively.

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|---|
| 6. Sic eat, | Thus let her (or him) go. |
| 7. Eāmus, | Let us go. |
| 8. Pugnētur, (Impersonally,) | Let it be fought. |
| 9. Dii faciant, | May the gods grant. |

78. Imperfect. The imperfect subjunctive used potentially, is preceded by a past tense, and expresses past liberty, power, will, or duty, but still in its use expresses time very indefinitely. It is usually rendered by the English auxiliaries, might, could, would, should, sometimes had, would have, should have; as,

- | | |
|---|--|
| 1. Legēbat ut discēret, | He read that he might learn. |
| 2. Quid facērem? | What could I do? |
| 3. Iret si jubēres, | He would go if you should order it. |
| 4. Cur venīret, | Why should he come. |
| 5. Rogavērunt ut venīret, | They entreated that he would come. |
| 6. Si quis dicēret, nunquam putārem, | If any one had said it, I would not have thought it. |

Note. After verbs denoting to hinder, forbid, and the like, quo minus with the subjunctive, may be rendered by from and the present participle, (§ 45, II. 3.); thus,

7. Impedivit quo minus iret, He hindered him from going

Obs. An action or state which would, or would not exist, or have existed, in a case supposed, but the contrary of which is implied, is expressed in Latin by the imperfect or pluperfect subjunctive, without an antecedent verb or conjunction, (§ 139, 2.); as,

- | | |
|--|--|
| 8. scribērem, si necesse es- | I would write , if it were necessary. |
| 8. scripsissem, si necesse fuisset, | I would have written , had it been necessary. |

79. Perfect. The perfect subjunctive properly expresses what is supposed to be past, but of which there exists uncertainty. Thus used it is commonly rendered by the auxiliaries may have, can have, &c. It is also used sometimes in a present and sometimes in a future sense, with much variety of meaning, according to its connection, (§ 45, III.); as,

- | | |
|--------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 1. Fortasse erravērim, | Perhaps I may have erred. |
| 2. Etsi non scripsērit, | Though he cannot have written. |
| 3. Ut sic dixērim, | That I may so speak. |
| 4. Citius credidērim, | I would sooner believe. |
| 5. Facile dixērim, | I could easily tell. |
| 6. Quasi affuērim, | As if I had been present. |

80. Pluperfect. The pluperfect (§ 45, IV.) is usually rendered by the auxiliaries, might have, could have, would have, should have, as in the paradigm of the verb. But when an action is related as having been future at a certain past time, it is expressed in Latin in the pluperfect subjunctive, and translated should; as,

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Quodcumque jussisset me facturum dixi, | I said that I would do whatsoever he should order. |
|--|---|

2. Promisisti te scripturum, si You promised that thou would rogavissem; write, if I should desire it.
3. Dum convaluisset, Until he should get well.

81. The pluperfect subjunctive active, with quum, in verbs not deponent, is used instead of a past participle active, (§ 49, 8,) and may be rendered by the compound perfect participle in English; as,

1. Cæsar, quum hæc dixisset Cæsar having said these things;
 (literally, Cæsar, when he had said these things.)

82. When the subjunctive has a relative for its subject, and the relative and antecedent clause involve a comparison, they may be rendered as in No. 40, or the sense will be expressed if we render the relative by as, and the subjunctive by the infinitive; thus,

1. Quis tam esset amens qui sem- Who would be so foolish as to live per vivëret, always.
2. Neque tu is es qui nescias, You are not such a one as not to know.

83. When the relative and subjunctive follow such adjectives as dignus, indignus, idoneus, (§ 141, Obs. 2.) and the like; or when they express the end or design of something expressed in the antecedent clause, their meaning will be expressed as in No. 40, or by the infinitive alone, or preceded by the phrase "in order to;" thus,

1. Dignum qui secundus ab Ro- Worthy to be ranked next after mulo numeretur, Romulus.
2. Legatos miserunt qui eum a c- They sent legates to accuse (or, in cusarent, order to accuse) him.
3. Virgas iis dedit quibus He gave them rods to drive, (in agerent, order to drive; or, so that with these they might drive.)

84. The subjunctive with, or without ut, after verbs signifying to bid, forbid, tell, allow, hinder, command, and the like, (§ 140, 1, 3d, and Obs. 5,) may be rendered by the English infinitive preceded by the subject of the verb in the objective case; as,

1. Precor venias, I pray that you may come; i. e.,
 I pray you to come.
2. Dic veniat, Tell her to come.
3. Sine eat, Permit him to go.
4. Non patieris ut eant, You will not suffer them to go.
5. Non patieris ut vescamur, You do not suffer us to eat.

85. When several verbs in the same mood and tense, have the same nominative, and are connected in the same construction, the auxiliary and "to," the sign of the infinitive, in the translation is used with the first only, and understood to the rest; as,

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Et vidisset et audivisset, | He might have both seen and heard. |
| 2. Et visus et auditus esset, | He might have been both seen and heard. |
| 3. Cupimus et vidēre et audire, | We wish both to see and hear. |

The Infinitive Mood.

86. When the infinitive is without a subject, it is to be considered as a verbal noun, (§ 144,) and translated as in the paradigm of the verb; as,

- | | |
|----------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1. Volo scribēre, | I wish to write. |
| 2. Dicitur didicisse, | He is said to have learned |
| 3. Dicitur itūrus esse, | He is said to be about to go. |
| 4. Dicitur itūrus fuisse, | He is said to have been about to go. |

87. When the verbs possum, volo, nolo, malo, in the indicative or subjunctive, are translated by the English auxiliaries, can, will, will not, will rather, and sometimes, in the past tense, by could, would, &c., the infinitive following is translated without to before it; as,

- | | |
|---|--------------------------------|
| 1. Potest fieri, | It can be done. |
| 2. Volo ire, | I will go. |
| 3. Nolo facere, | I will not do it. |
| 4. Malo facere, | I will rather do it. |
| 5. Ut se volucrem facere vellet, | That he would make her a bird. |
| 6. Nihil jam defendi potuit, | Nothing could now be defended. |
| 7. Hoc facere non potuit, | He could not do this. |
| 8. Nolite timere, | Do not fear. |

88. The present is generally translated as the perfect without "to," after the imperfect, perfect and pluperfect tenses of possum, volo, nolo, malo, when translated could, would, would not, would rather; and with "to" after the same tenses of debeo, and oportet, translated ought; as,

- | | |
|------------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 1. Melius fieri non potuit, | It could not have been done better. |
| 2. Volui dicere, | I would have said. |
| 3. Sumere arma noluit, | He would not have taken arms. |
| 4. Maluit augere, | He would rather have increased. |
| 5. Quam potuisset edere, | Than he could have caused. |
| 6. Debui mihi ignoscere, | You ought to have pardoned me. |
| 7. Dividi oportuit. | It ought to have been divided. |

Note. A strictly literal translation of most of the above sentences would not express the precise idea intended; thus, in the third sentence, "He would not have taken arms," and "He was not willing to take arms," manifestly do not mean the same thing.

89. After verbs denoting to see, hear, feel, and the like, the present infinitive is often translated by the English present participle; as,

- | | |
|----------------------------------|-------------------------------------|
| 1. Audivi eum dicere, | I heard him saying. |
| 2. Surgere videt lunam, | He sees the moon rising. |
| 3. Terram tremere sensit, | He felt the earth trembling. |

Obs. So also when the infinitive alone, or as part of a clause, is the subject of another verb; as,

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|--|
| 4. Morari periculōsum est, | Delaying is dangerous. |
| 5. Morari periculōsum (esse) | They think that delaying is dan-
arbitrantur, |

The Infinitive with a subject.

90. The infinitive with its subject in the accusative, though but seldom, is sometimes translated in the same form in English; as,

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1. Cupio te venire, | I wish you to come. |
| 2. Quos discordare novē-
rat, | Whom he had known to differ. |
| 3. Hoc optimum esse judicavit, | He decided this to be the best. |
| 4. Eum vocari jussit, | He ordered him to be called. |

91. The infinitive with a subject, usually is, and always may be, translated by the English indicative or potential, according to the sense intended. When so rendered, its subject must always be translated in the nominative; and this, if not a relative, is usually preceded by the conjunction that, (§ 145,); as,

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Cupio te venire, | I wish that you would come. |
| 2. Dicit me scribere, | He says that I write. |
| 3. Eos ivisse putabat, | He thought that they had gone. |
| 4. Quem nunquam risisse ferunt, | Who they say never laughed. |
| 5. Rogavit quid faciendum
(esse) putaret, | He asked what he thought
ought to be done. |

92. Both the Latin and the English infinitive, by their tenses, represent an act, &c., as present, past or future, at the time of the governing verb. Hence, when the one is translated by the other; that is, the Latin infinitive by the English infinitive, (Nos. 86 and 90,) any tense of the one will be correctly translated by the same tense in the other, (except as in No. 83,) no matter what be the tense of the governing verb; as,

1. Pres. Dicitur,	}	Pres.	Past.	Future.
2. Past, Dicebatur,		habere;	habuisse;	habiturus esse.
3. Fut. Dicetur,
1. Pres. He is said	}	to have; to have had; to be about to have.
2. Past, He was said
3. Fut. He will be said

93. But when the Latin infinitive, with its subject, is translated by the English indicative or potential, the tense used in these moods, must be that which will correctly express the time of the act expressed by the Latin infinitive as estimated, not from the time of the governing verb, as in Latin, but as estimated from the present. That is, events present at the same time, or past at the same time, will be expressed in English by the same tense; an event represented in Latin as prior to the present time, (perfect infinitive after the present tense,) will be expressed by the English imperfect or perfect indefinite; and an event represented in Latin as prior to a past event, (perfect infinitive after a past tense,) will be expressed by the English pluperfect: thus:

1. Pres. Dicunt eum venire, They say that he is coming, or comes.
2. Past, Dixerunt eum venire, They said that he came.
3. Pres. Dicunt eum venisse, They say that he came.
4. Past, Dixerunt eum venisse, They said that he had come.
5. Past, Cœperunt suspicari illam venire, They began to suspect that she came.

Note. The infinitive after the future does not follow this analogy, but is always translated in its own tense; as,

- | | | | |
|------------------------------|-------|------------------|-----------------------|
| | Pres. | Perf. | Future. |
| 6. Dicent eum venire, | | venisse, | venturum esse. |
| They will say that he comes, | | has come, | will come. |

94. 1. Present, past, and future time, are variously expressed as follows:

- 1st. Present time is expressed by the present tense, and sometimes by the perfect definite.
- 2d. Past time is expressed by the imperfect, perfect definite and pluperfect.—by the perfect participle,—the present infinitive after a past tense,—the present tense used to express a past event, § 44, I, 3,—and by the pre- sent participle, agreeing with the subject of the governing verb in any of these tenses, § 49, 5.

3d. Future time is expressed by the future, and future perfect.

2. The infinitive of deponent verbs, is translated in the same manner as the infinitive active in the following examples in Nos. 95 to 100.

3. After verbs denoting to promise, request, advise, command, and the like, implying a reference to something future, the present infinitive, with its subject, is usually translated as the future, by should, or would, (See No. 100, 1, 2, 3, 7, 8, 9,); as, Jussit, eos per castra duci, He ordered that they should be led through the camp.

4. The Latin words for "he said," "saying," or the like, introducing an oblique narration, are often omitted, and the infinitive takes the form of translation corresponding to the time expressed by the word to be supplied.

From these principles are deduced the following directions for translating the infinitive with a subject.

Present Infinitive after Present or Future time.

95. DIRECT. I. When the preceding verb is in the present, the perfect used definitely, or future tense, the present infinitive is translated as the present; as,

Active Voice.

- | | |
|------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1. Dico eum laudare, | I say that he praises . |
| 2. Dixi eum laudare, | I have said that he praises . |
| 3. Dicam eum laudare, | I will say that he praises . |

Passive Voice.

- | | |
|------------------------------|---|
| 4. Dico eum laudari, | I say that he is praised . |
| 5. Dixi eum laudari, | I have said that he is praised . |
| 6. Dicam eum laudari, | I will say that he is praised . |

Present Infinitive after Past time.

96. DIRECT. II. When the preceding verb is in the imperfect, perfect indefinite, or pluperfect, or in the present infinitive after a past tense, the present infinitive is translated as the imperfect, or perfect indefinite; as,

Present Infinitive Active.

1. Dicēbam eum laudāre, I said that he praised.
2. Dixi eum laudāre, I said that he praised.
3. Dixēram eum laudāre, I had said that he praised.
4. Cēpi dicere eum laudāre, I began to say that he praised.

Present Infinitive Passive.

5. Dicēbam eum laudāri, I said that he was praised.
6. Dixi eum laudāri, I said that he was praised.
7. Dixēram eum laudāri, I had said that he was praised.
8. Cēpi dicere eum laudāri, I began to say that he was praised.

Exc. I. When the present infinitive expresses that which is always true, it must be translated in the present, after any tense, § 44, I. 1; as

9. Doctus erat deum gubernāre mundum, He had been taught that God governs the world.

Exc. II. When the present infinitive expresses an act subsequent to the time of the governing verb, it is translated after any tense, by the potential with should; would; as,

- | | | | | | |
|---------------------|---|-----------------|----------------|---|-----------------------------|
| 10. Jubet | } | te ire , | He orders | } | that you should go . |
| 11. Jussit | | | He ordered | | |
| 12. Jussērat | | | He had ordered | | |

Perfect Infinitive after Present or Future time.

97. DIRECT. III. When the preceding verb is in the present, perfect definite, or future tense, the perfect infinitive is translated as the imperfect or perfect indefinite; as,

Active Voice.

1. Dico eum laudavisse, I say that he praised.
2. Dixi eum laudavisse, I have said that he praised.
3. Dicam eum laudavisse, I will say that he praised.

Passive Voice.

4. Dico eum laudatum esse, I say that he was praised.
5. Dixi eum laudatum esse, I have said that he was praised.
6. Dicam eum laudatum esse, I will say that he was praised.
7. Dico eum laudatum fuisse, I say that he has been praised.
8. Dixi eum laudatum fuisse, I have said that he has been praised.
9. Dicam eum laudatum fuisse, I will say that he has been praised.

Perfect Infinitive after Past Tenses.

98. DIRECT. IV. When the preceding verb is in the imperfect, perfect indefinite, or pluperfect, or in the present infinitive after a past tense, the perfect infinitive is translated as the pluperfect; as,

Active Voice

1. Dicēbam eum laudavisse, I said that he had praised.
2. Dixi eum laudavisse, I said that he had praised.
3. Dixeram eum laudavisse, I had said that he had praised.
4. Cæpi dicere eum laudavisse, I began to say that he had praised.

Passive Voice.

5. Dicēbam eum laudatum esse, I said that he had been praised.
6. Dixi eum laudatum esse, I said that he had been praised.
7. Dixeram eum laudatum esse, I had said that he had been praised.
8. Cæpi dicere eum laudatum esse, I began to say that he had been praised.
9. Dicēbam eum laudatum fuisse, I said that he had been praised.
10. Dixi eum laudatum fuisse, I said that he had been praised.
11. Dixeram eum laudatum fuisse, I had said that he had been praised.
12. Cæpi dicere eum laudatum fuisse, I began to say that he had been praised.

Future Infinitive after the Present Tense.

99. When the preceding verb is in the present, or perfect definite, or future tense, the future infinitive with esse, is translated as the future indicative; and with fuisse by would have, or should have, in the pluperfect potential in a future sense, and fore, for futurum esse, by will be.

Active Voice.

1. Dico eum laudaturum esse, I say that he will praise.
2. Dixi eum laudaturum esse, I have said that he will praise.
3. Dicam eum laudaturum esse, I will say that he will praise.
4. Dico eum laudaturum fuisse, I say that he would have praised.
5. Dixi eum laudaturum fuisse, I have said that he would have praised.
6. Dicam eum laudaturum fuisse, I will say that he would have praised.

Passive Voice.

7. Dico eum laudatum iri, I say that he will be praised.
 8. Dixi eum laudatum iri, I have said that he will be praised.
 9. Dicam eum laudatum iri, I will say that he will be praised.

Future Infinitive after Past Tenses.

100. DIRECT. VI. When the preceding verb is of the imperfect, perfect indefinite, or pluperfect, the future of the infinitive with esse, is rendered by would or should; and with fuisse, by would have, and should have; and fore for futurum esse after any past tense, by would be; as,

Active Voice.

1. Dicēbam eum laudatūrum esse, I said that he would praise.
 2. Dixi eum laudatūrum, &c. I said that he would praise.
 3. Dixēram eum laudatūrum I had said that he would praise.
 4. Dicēbam eum laudatūrum fuisse, I said that he would have praised.
 5. Dixi eum laudatūrum, &c. I said that he would have praised.
 6. Dixēram eum laudatūrum fuisse, I had said that he would have praised.

Passive Voice.

7. Dicēbam eum laudatum iri, I said that he would be praised.
 8. Dixi eum laudatum iri, I said that he would be praised.
 9. Dixēram eum laudatum iri, I had said that he would be praised.
 10. Dicēbam (dixi) eum fore tutum, I said that he would be safe.

Usage of Fore.

Obs. Fore is used for futurum esse, and, with a subject after present tenses means "will be," after past tenses "would be." Both of them when followed by a subjunctive with ut (§ 145, Obs. 6,) after a present tense, may be translated by the future indicative of that verb; and after a past tense, by the imperfect potential; as,

11. Credo eum fore tutum, I believe that he will be safe.
 12. Credēbam, or credidi, (credidēram) eum fore tutum, I believed, (had believed) that he would be safe.
 13. Credo fore (or futurum esse) ut discas, I believe that you will learn.
 14. Credēbam or credidi (credidēram) fore (or futurum esse) ut disceres, I believed, (had believed) that you would learn.

Participles.

101. Participles are usually translated after their nouns, as in the paradigms of the verb; thus,

- | | | |
|---------------------|----------------------------|---|
| 1. Present active, | Homo carens fraude, | A man wanting guile. |
| 2. Future active, | Homo scripturus, | A man about to write. |
| 3. Perfect passive, | Vita bene acta, | A life well spent. |
| 4. ———— , | Cæsar coactus, | Cæsar being (or having been) compelled. |
| 5. (Deponent,) | Cæsar regressus, | Cæsar having returned |
| 6. Future passive, | Mala vitanda, | Evils to be avoided,
i. e., which ought to be avoided. |

Exc. But when a participle is used as an adjective, (§ 49, 3,) it is translated, like the adjective, before its substantive; as,

7. Tigrin ostendit mansue- He exhibited a tamed tiger.
factam;
8. In ferventibus arenis Standing on the burning sands.
insistens,

Future Participle Active.

102. When the Future participle active is used to express a purpose, end, or design of another action, (§ 146, Obs. 3,) it is rendered by "to," or the phrase "in order to," instead of "about to;" as,

1. Pergit consulturus ora- He goes to consult (or, in order to cûla, consult) the oracle.

Obs. The present participle is also sometimes used in this sense; as,

2. Venerunt postulantes ci- They came to (or, in order to) ask bum, food.

Perfect Participle Passive.

103. As the Latin verb has no perfect participle in the active sense, (except in deponent verbs,) its place is usually supplied by the perfect participle passive in the case absolute, (§ 146, Obs. 8,); thus, "Cæsar having consulted his friends," rendered into Latin, will be, Cæsar amīcis consultis, literally, "Cæsar, his friends being consulted. Hence,

104. When the action expressed passively by the perfect participle in the case absolute, or agreeing with the object of a verb, is something done by the subject of the leading verb in the sentence, the participle is rendered more in accordance with English idiom, by the compound perfect active participle in English, agreeing with the subject of the verb, and followed by its noun in the objective case, (§ 49, 8, and § 146, Obs. 8.); thus,

1. Cæsar, his dictis, profectus est, translated in the Latin idiom, Cæsar, these things being said, departed.
English idiom, Cæsar, having said these things, departed.
2. Opere peracto, ludemus,
Latin idiom, Our work being finished, we will play.
English idiom, Having finished our work, we will play.
3. Pythiam ad se vocatum pecuniâ instruxit,
Latin idiom, He supplied with money Pythias being called to him.
English idiom, Having called Pythias to him, he supplied him with money.

105. The perfect participle of deponent verbs having an active signification, accords with the English idiom, and is best translated literally; as,

1. Nactus naviculum, Having found a boat.
2. Cohortatus exercitum, Having exhorted the army.

106. When the perfect participle of deponent or common verbs, expresses an act nearly or entirely contemporaneous with the leading verb, it may be translated by the English present participle in ing, (§ 48, 5, Note.); as,

1. Rex hoc facinus miratus The king, admiring this act, dismissed the youth.
2. Columba delapsa refert sagittam, The dove falling brings back the arrow.

The Future Participle Passive.

107. After verbs signifying to give, to deliver, to agree or bargain for, to have, to receive, to undertake, and the like, the participle in dus generally denotes design or purpose, and is rendered simply as in the paradigm, or with the phrase "in order to," prefixed, (§ 146, Obs. 4.); as,

1. Testamentum tibi tradit legendum, He delivers his will to you to (or in order to) be read.
2. Attribuit nos trucidandos He has given us over to Cethegus (in order) to be slain.

108. The participle in dus, especially when agreeing with the subject of a sentence or clause, generally denotes propriety, necessity, or obligation, and is rendered variously, as the tense of the accompanying verb and the connection require, (§ 146, Obs. 5.); the following are examples :

1. Legātus mittendus est, An ambassador must (or should) be sent.
2. Legātus mittendus erat or An ambassador had to be sent.
fuit,
3. Legātus mittendus erit, An ambassador will have to be sent.
4. Legātum mittendum esse, That an ambassador should be sent.
5. _____ mittendum fu- _____ ought to (or is se, should) have been sent.
6. Dissimulanda loquitur, He speaks things that ought to be concealed.
7. Dissimulanda loquebā- He spake things which ought to tur, have been concealed.
8. Quæ dissimulanda Which will have to be concealed.
erunt,
9. Dic, quid statuendum Say, what is to be (or must be) sit thought.

Ablative Absolute.

109. When a participle stands with a substantive in the ablative absolute, R. LX., the substantive is translated without a sign, No. 9, and after it the participle, as in the paradigm of the verb ; as,

1. Romūlo regnante, Romulus reigning.
2. Hac oratiōne habitā, This oration being delivered.
3. Cæsāre ventūro, Cæsar (being) about to come.
4. Præceptis tradendis, Rules being to be delivered.
5. Bello orto, War having arisen.

Note. The future participles, Ex. 3, 4, are seldom used in the case absolute.

110. When two nouns,—a pronoun and a noun,—a noun or a pronoun and an adjective, are used in the ablative without a participle, (§ 146, Obs. 10,) they are translated in the nominative without a sign, and the English participle “being,” inserted between them ; as,

1. Adolescentūlo duce, A young man being leader.
2. Mario consule, Marius being consul.
3. Me suasore, I being the adviser.
4. Annibālī vivo, Hannibal being alive.
5. Se invito, He being unwilling.

Gerunds and Gerundives.

111. The gerund, being a verbal noun, is translated in the same manner as other nouns of the same case, and at the same time may govern the case of its own verb, § 147; as,

- | | |
|---|-----------------------------------|
| 1. N. Petendum pacem, | Seeking peace. |
| 2. G. Petendi pacem, | Of seeking peace. |
| 3. D. Utendo libris, | To (or for) using books |
| 4. Ac. Obliviscendum injuriarum, | Forgetting injuries. |
| 5. Abl. Parendo magistratui, | By obeying the magistrate. |
| 6. Abl. Petendo pacem, | With, from, in, by seeking peace. |

112. Of verbs that govern the accusative, instead of the gerund in the oblique cases, the Latins commonly used the participle in dus, in the sense of the gerund, and agreeing with its object in gender, number and case; the case being governed by the same word that would have governed the gerund. When thus used it is called a gerundive. (§ 147; R. LXII.)

Gerunds.Gerundives.

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|---|
| 1. Ars libræm legendi, | 5. Ars libri legendi,
The art of reading a book. |
| 2. Utile vulnera curando, | 6. Utile vulneribus curandis.
Useful for healing wounds. |
| 3. Ad literas scribendum, | 7. Ad literas scribendas,
For writing a letter. |
| 4. De captivos commutando, | 8. De captivis commutandis,
Respecting exchanging captives. |

113. When the gerund is the subject of the verb est, and governs the dative, it implies necessity, and is variously translated into the English idiom, as the tense of the verb requires, (§ 147,); as,

Latin Idiom.English Idiom.

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Legendum est mihi,
Reading is to me; i. e., | I must read; I ought to read;
I should read. |
| 2. Legendum erat (fuit) mihi.
Reading was to me; | I had to read; I ought to have read; I should have read. |
| 3. Legendum fuerat mihi,
Reading had been to me; | I had been obliged to read. |
| 4. Legendum erit mihi,
Reading will be to me; | I will have to read; It will be necessary for me to read. |
| 5. Dicit legendum esse mihi,
He says that reading is to me; | He says that I must read—
ought to read—should read. |
| 6. Dicit legendum fuisse mihi,
He says that reading was to me; | He says that I had to read—ought to—or should—have read. |

Obs. The dative is frequently omitted, and generally when it denotes persons or things, in a general or indefinite sense. In such cases, homīni, homīnibus, nobis, or the like, must be supplied; as,

7. Vivendum est recte (scil. homīnibus,) Living honestly, is viz: to men; i. e., men ought to live honestly.
8. Dicit vivendum esse recte, (scil. homīni,) He says that living honestly is, viz: to a man; i. e. a man ought to live honestly.

Supines.

114. The Supines are rendered without variation, as in the paradigm, and under the rules, (§ 148,) ; as,

1. Abiit deambulatum, He has gone to walk.
2. Facile dictu, Easy to tell, or to be told.

Passive Voice.

115. The passive voice, in the indicative mood, is translated as in the paradigms. The subjunctive mood is subject to all the variety of construction and translation used in the active voice, Nos. 74–84, acting on the verb to be, which as an auxiliary with the perfect participle, makes up the passive form of the verb in English.

In the compound tenses, (§ 53, 3,) when two or more verbs in a sentence are in the same tense, and have the same nominative, or are in the same construction, the verb sum is commonly expressed with the last and understood to the rest, as in the following Ex. 1. But when the nominative is changed, the verb “to be” should be repeated as in Ex. 2.

1. Nisus a Minōe victus et occisus est, Nisus was conquered and killed by Minos.
2. Tres naves captæ, decem demersæ, duo millia hostium capta, tredċim millia occisa sunt. Three ships were taken, ten sunk; two thousand of the enemy were taken, thirteen thousand killed.

Passive Voice in a Middle Sense.

116. The Latin passive voice is often used to represent its subject, not as acted upon by another, but as acting on itself, or for itself, or intransitively, by its own impulse; and so corresponds in sense to the middle voice in Greek. Thus used, it is best translated by the active voice followed by the reflexive pronoun as an object, or by an intransitive verb expressing the idea intended, (§ 41, Obs. 3.) The following are examples.

- | | |
|---|---|
| 1. Paludibus abditi sunt, | They concealed themselves in the marshes. |
| 2. Cum omnes in omni genere scelerum volutentur, | Since all give themselves up to every kind of wickedness. |
| 3. Fertur in hostes, | Rushes against the enemy. |
| 4. Volutati super poma, | Rolling themselves over the apples. |
| 5. Cingitur armis, | Girds himself with his armor. |
| 6. Sternuntur tumulo, | Throw themselves on the grave. |
| 7. Gallus victus occultatur, | The cock, when conquered, hides himself. |

117. The verb sum governing the genitive by R. XII., § 108, may generally be translated by the phrase "belongs to," "is the part," "is the property," &c. See explanation under Rule; as,

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|--|
| 1. Est regis, | It belongs to the king. |
| 2. Pecus est Melibæi, | The flock belongs to Melibæus. |
| 3. Prudentia est senectutis, | Prudence is the characteristic of old age. |

118. The verb sum, (also desum,) in the third person, governing the dative by § 112, Rule II., may generally be translated by the corresponding tenses of the verb "to have," with the Latin dative for its subject, and the Latin subject for its object; as,

	Latin Idiom.	English Idiom.
1. Liber est mihi,	A book is to me,	I have a book.
2. Liber erat mihi,	A book was to me,	I had a book.
3. Liber fuit mihi,	A book was (or has been) to me,	I had, or have had a book.
4. Liber fuerat mihi,	A book had been to me,	I had had a book.
5. Liber erit mihi,	A book will be to me,	I will have a book.
6. Liber sunt mihi,	Books are to me,	I have books.
7. Est mihi,	It is to me,	I have it.
8. Liber deest mihi,	A book is not to me,	I have not a book.

119. When a compound verb, rendered by the simple verb and a preposition, is followed by two cases, the simple verb with the immediate object (always in the accusative,) is usually translated first, and then the preposition with the remote object.

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| 1. Flumen copias transduxit, | He led his forces across the river. |
| 2. Circumdare mœnia opido, | To build walls around the city |
| 3. Caput dejecit saxo, | He threw the head down from the rock. |

120. An adverb, adverbial phrase, or clause expressing some circumstance in translating, may often be arranged in different situations in a sentence, due regard being paid to the sense and harmony of the whole; thus, Magna debemus suscipere dum vires suppētunt, may be arranged variously for translating, as follows:

1. Debemus suscipere magna, dum vires suppētunt; or,
2. Dum vires suppētunt, debemus suscipere magna; or,
3. Debemus, dum vires suppētunt, suscipere magna.

121. The negative conjunction ne, is variously rendered lest, lest that, that-not, not; and after verbs signifying to fear, forbid, and the like, it is translated that, while ut in the same situation, means that not.

- | | |
|--|---|
| 1. Ne quis eat, | Lest (or that not) any one may go. |
| 2. Orat ne se perdat, | She entreats that he would not destroy her. |
| 3. Egi ne interessem, | I managed that I should not be present. |
| 4. Dum ne veniat, | Provided he do not come. |
| 5. Respondit ne cogitata quidem latent. | He replied that not even the thoughts are concealed. |
| 6. Vereor ne cadas, | I am afraid that you may fall. |
| 7. Timui ut veniret, | I feared that he would not come. |

Note 1. But when the fear expressed, refers to such things as we wish, ne means that-not; as, Paves ne ducas illam, You are afraid that you do not get her to wife.

Ne, after a command implying a negative, or prohibition, is often omitted; as, cave titubes, take care that you do not stumble.

Note 2. Ne quidem, (always separate,) is an emphatic negative, and has the emphatic word between; as, ne hoc quidem, not even this; ne tum quidem, not even then.

122. When a verb is translated into English by the aid of an auxiliary, an adverb, or clause modifying it, will often have to be placed between the auxiliary and the verb, (Eng. Gr. § 74.); as,

1. Dixit ne ob hoc alios con- He said that we should not on this temnāmus, account despise others.

123. Some prepositions are variously translated according to the meaning of the words, or the case with which they are connected; thus,

1. In followed by an accusative, means to, into, towards, for, against. &c., (§ 136, R. L.)
2. In, followed by the ablative, means in, upon, among, in, in the case of, (§ 136, R. LI.)
3. Inter, referring to two, means between; to more than two, among.
4. Sub means under, at the foot of, close up to.
5. Præ means before, in comparison of;—sometimes, more than.

124. When the following conjunctions, adjectives, and adverbial particles, are placed, one before each of two successive words or clauses, the first is commonly translated differently from the second, and usually in the following manner, (§149, Obs. 5.)

1. Et	— et ,	Both	— and.
2. Que	— que ,	Both	— and.
3. Aut. vel,	} — aut, vel,	Either	— or.
sive,				sive,
4. Nec	— nec.	Neither	— nor.
5. Neque	— neque,
6. Sive, seu	— sive, seu,	Whether	— or.
7. Tum	— tum.	{	Not only	— but also.
			Both	— and.
8. Cum or quum	— tum,	{	Not only	— but also.
			Both	— and.
9. Jam	— jam,	{	Now	— then.
10. Nunc	— nunc,		At one time	— at another.
11. Simul	— simul,	{	Not only	— but also.
			No sooner	— than.
			As soon as	— instantly.
12. Modo, alias	— modo, alias,	{	At one time	— at another
			Sometimes	— sometimes.

Corresponding Conjunctive Terms.

13. Ne	— an,	Whether	— or.
14. Utrum	— an,	Whether	— or.
15. Ita, sic, tam, adeo	— ut,	So	— that; so — as.
16. Talis, tantus	— ut.	Such, so great	— that.
17. Is, ejusmodi	— ut,	Such, of such a kind	— that.
18. Simul	— ac, or atque,	As soon	— as.
19. Tamdiu	— quamdiu,	As long	— as.
20. Ut	— sic,	As	— so.

Ne is frequently omitted with the first word or clause, and must be supplied when an stands with the second; as,

21. Rectè an perpèram, (Whether) right or wrong.

General Rules for Accentuation.

1. Words of two syllables have the accent on the first or penult; as, pă'-ter, mŭ'-sa, au'-rum.

2. Words of more than two syllables, when the penult is long, have the accent on the penult; when the penult is short, they have the accent on the antepenult; as, a-mŭ'-cus, dom'-i-nus.

3. When the enclitics, que, ve, ne, are added to a word the two words are considered as one, and it is accented accordingly; as, pă'-ter, pă'-ter'-que; dom'-i-nus, dom-i-nus'.ve.

General Rules for the Quantity of Syllables.

1. A vowel before another vowel, is short; as, via, Dŕus.

2. A vowel before two consonants, or a double consonant, is long by position; as, arma, fallo, axis.

3. A vowel before a mute and a liquid, (l, r,) is common, i. e. either long or short; as, volŭcris, or volŭcris.

4. A diphthong is always long; as, aurum, Cŕsar.

Note. In this work when the quantity of the penult, in words of more than two syllables, is determined by any of these rules, it is not marked, otherwise it is marked.

Explanation of References.

The references at the foot of each page, to which a section mark (§) is prefixed, are to the sections and their subdivisions in the Grammar, and are intended chiefly to explain the construction.

In those references which have no section mark prefixed, the first number directs to the same number in the preceding Introduction, and the second, to the example under that number. Thus for example, in p. 53, § 38, 8; the number 38 refers to Introduction 38, (p. 22,) which shows how the relative in the beginning of a sentence is to be translated; and the number 8 refers to example 8, A quo consilio, &c., showing that the relative quŕ is here to be translated "this," and Quŕ de causŕ, "for this cause." These references are intended to explain particular phrases and idioms, and to give an example of the mode of translating them.

The references made by figures are to the notes on the text, commencing p. 207, where it will be observed that all the notes belonging to a page are contained in one paragraph, at the beginning of which is the number of the page to which the notes refer.

N. B. In the text the reference letter stands after, and the reference figure stands before the word or words to which they respectively belong.

C. JULII CÆSARIS COMMENTARII
DE BELLO GALLICO.

BOOK I.

GENERAL ARGUMENT.

I. General description of Gaul—Chap. 1. II. The war with the Helvetii—Chap. 2-29. III. War with Ariovistus—Chap. 30-54.

1. GALLIA est omnis divisa in partes tres, ¹ quarum ^a unam incolunt Belgæ, aliam Aquitani, tertiam, ² qui ipsorum lingua Celtæ, ^b nostrâ Galli, ^b appellantur. Hi omnes linguâ, ^c institutis, ^c legibus ⁴ inter se ^d differunt. ⁵ Gallos ab Aquitanis Garumna flumen, a Belgis Matrona et Sequana dividit. Horum ^a omnium fortissimi sunt Belgæ, propterea quod a ⁶ cultu atque humanitate Provinciae longissime absunt, ⁷ minimeque ad eos mercatores saepe comitant, atque ea, quæ ad effeminandos ^e animos pertinent, important; proximique sunt Germanis, ^f qui trans Rhenum incolunt, quibuscum continenter bellum gerunt: quâ ⁸ de causâ Helvetii quoque reliquos Gallos virtute ^e præcedunt, quod ferè quotidianis præliis ^h cum Germanis contendunt, cum aut suis ⁱ finibus ⁸ eos prohibent, aut ⁹ ipsi in ¹⁰ eorum finibus bellum gerunt. ¹¹ Eorum una pars, quam Gallos ^k obtinere dictum est, initium capit a flumine Rhodano; continetur Garumnâ flumine, ^h Oceano, finibus Belgarum; attingit etiam ab Sequanis et Helvetiis flumen Rhenum; ¹² vergit ad septentriones.

Belgæ ¹ ab extrēmis Galliæ finibus oriuntur; pertinent ad inferiorem partem fluminis Rheni; ² spectant in septentriōnes et orientem solem. Aquitania a Garumnâ flumine ad Pyrenæos montes, et eam partem Oceani, quæ est ³ ad Hispaniam, pertinet; spectat inter occāsum solis et septentriōnes.

2. Apud Helvetios longè nobilissimus et ditissimus fuit Orgetōrix. Is, Marco Messalâ et Marco Pisōne ⁴ Consulibus, ^a regni cupiditate ^b inductus, conjurationem nobilitatis fecit, et ^c civitati ^c persuasit, ut de finibus suis cum omnibus copiis exirent: ^d perfacile ^e esse cum virtute omnibus præstarent, ^f totius Galliæ imperio ^g potiri. Id hoc facilius eis ^m ⁷ persuasit, quod undique loci ⁸ naturâ ^b Helvetii continentur: unâ ex parte flumine Rheno, ^b latissimo ^b atque altissimo, qui agrum Helvetium a Germanis dividit: alterâ ex parte, monte ^b Jurâ altissimo, ^h qui est inter Sequanos et Helvetios; tertiâ, lacu Lemanno, ^b et flumine ⁱ Rhodano, qui Provinciam nostram ab Helvetiis dividit. His rebus fiebat, ^k ut et minus latè vagarentur, ^l et minus facillè finitimis ^m bellum inferre possent: ¹ quâ de causâ homines bellandi ⁿ cupidi magno dolore ^b afficiebantur. ⁹ Pro multitudīne autem hominum, et pro gloriâ ¹⁰ belli atque fortitudinis, angustos se fines habere ^o arbitrabantur, ¹¹ qui in longitudinem millia ^p passuum ducenta et quadraginta, in latitudinem centum et octoginta patēbant.

2. Iis nuntiis literisque commõtus, Cæsar duas legiõnes in citeriõre Galliâ novas conscripsit, et, ¹¹ in itâ æstâtè, in interiõrem Galliam qui deducëret,ⁱ Quintum Pedium legatum misit. 1. CUM in Italiam proficisceretur Cæsar, Servium Galbam cum legiõne duodecimâ, et parte equitatus, in Nantuâtes, Verâgros, Sedunosque misit, qui ab finibus Allobrogum, et lacu Lemanno, et flumine Rhodano, ad summas^a Alpes pertinent. Causa mittendi fuit, quod iter^b per Alpes, ¹quo, magno cum periculo ²magnisque cum portoriis, mercatores ire consueverant, patefieri^c volebat. Huic^d permisit, si opus esse arbitraretur, uti in eis locis legionem hiemandi causâ collocaret.^e Galba, secundis aliquot preliis^f factis, castellisque compluribus eorum expugnatis, missis ad eum undique legatis,^f obsidibusque datis, et pace factâ, constituit, cohortes duas in Nantuatibus collocare, et ipse^g cum reliquis ejus legionis cohortibus in vico Veragrorum, qui appellatur Octodurus,^h hiemare: quiⁱ vicus, positus in valle, non magnâ adjectâ planitie, altissimis montibus undique continetur. Cùm^hhic in duas partes flumine divideretur, alteram^l partem ejus vici Gallis^k concessit, alteram,^l vacuum ab illis relictam, cohortibus ad hiemandum attribuit. ⁴Eum locum vallo fossaque munivit.

GENERAL ARGUMENT.

I. Commotions throughout nearly all Gaul in consequence of the overthrow and death of Tiberius—Chap. 1–8. II. Cæsar's expedition against the Suevi—Chap. 9–28. III. Punishment of Ambiorix and the Eburones—Chap. 29–44.

1. MULTIS de causis Cæsar, majorem Galliæ motum expectans, per Marcum Silanum, Caium Antistium Reginum, Titum Sextium, legatos, ¹ dilectum habere instituit: simul ab Cneio Pompeio proconsule petit, ² quoniam ipse ad urbem cum imperio reipublicæ causâ remaneret, ^a quos ^b ex Cisalpina Galliâ consulis sacramento rogavisset, ^a ad signa convenire et ad se proficisci juberet: ^c magni ^d interesse etiam in reliquum tempus ad opinionem Galliæ existimans, tantas videri Italiæ facultates, ^e ut, si quid esset in bello detrimenti acceptum, non modò id brevi tempore ³ sarciri, sed etiam majoribus adaugeri copiis posset. ^f ⁴ Quod ^g cum Pompeius et reipublicæ et amicitie tribuisset, ^h celeriter confecto per suos dilectibus ante exactam hiemem et constitutis et adductis legionibus, duplicatòque earum cohortium numero, quas cum Quinto Titurio amiserat, et celeritate et copiis docuit, quid Populi Romani disciplina atque opes possent.ⁱ

2. Interfecto Indutiomaro, ⁵ ut docuimus, ad ejus propinquos a Treveris imperium defertur. Illi finitimos Germanos sollicitare et pecuniam polliceri non desistunt: cum ab proximis impetrare non possent, ulteriores tentant. Inventis nonnullis civitatibus, jurejurando inter se confirmant, ⁶ obsidibusque de pecuniâ cavent: Ambiorigem sibi societate et fœdere adjungunt. Quibus rebus cognitis, Cæsar, cum

3. Itaque ²nondum hieme confecta, proximis quatuor coactis legionibus, de improvise in fines Nerviorum contendit, et prius, quam illi aut convenire aut profugere possent,^d magno pecoris atque hominum numero capto, atque eam praedam militibus^e concessa, vastatisque agris, in ditionem venire atque obsides sibi dare coegit. Eo celeriter confecto negotio, rursus in hiberna legiones reduxit. Concilio Galliae primo^f vere, ³ uti instituerat, indicto, cum reliqui, praeter Senones, Carnutes, Trevirosque, venissent, initium belli ac defectiois hoc esse arbitratus,^f ut ⁴omnia postponere videretur, concilium Lutetiam Parisiorum transfert. P. 136.—1. Suis quoque rebus eos timere voluit, wished they should be alarmed for their own possessions.—2. Et posse et audere, had both the power and the courage.—3. Accessit etiam, it was added also; i. e. another reason was.—4. Cur sui quicquam, &c., why should he (Cæsar) demand that any command or authority should belong to him beyond the Rhine?—5. Occupationibus reipublicæ, by the business of the republic.—6. Neque sui neque Populi Romani, and thought that it became neither his own dignity nor that of the Roman people.—7. Proponebatur, was placed before him, was manifest.

P. 139.—1. Instituit, &c., he determined on this plan of a bridge.—2. He joined together at the distance of two feet, tigna bina, beams, or piles, two by two, (or in pairs,) sharpened a little at the lower end, and measured, (or proportioned) to the depth of the river.—3. Hæc cum machinationibus, &c., when he had fastened these, being let down into the river by machines, and had driven them down with rammers (fistucis).—4. Non sublicæ, &c., not perpendicularly after the manner of a stake, but bending forward and sloping (downward, or down the stream).—5. Iis item contraria, &c., likewise opposite to these, at the distance of forty feet down the river, (ab inferiöre parte fluminis,) he placed two others joined in the same manner, but turned (up the stream) against the force and current of the river.—6. Hæc utraque insuper, &c., both these (viz: the pair above and the pair below,) were kept apart (or from falling towards each other,) by beams let in from above, two feet thick, being as much as the joining of these piles was apart, (i. e. as the piles, joined by the braces, were apart,)—each having two braces, one on each side near the end.—7. Quibus disclusis, &c., these (pairs) being kept apart, and (at the same time,) bound together in the contrary direction.—8. Ea rerum natūra, such the nature of the materials.—9. Quo major vis, &c., literally, by how much a greater force of water urged itself on; i. e. that the more the force of the current pressed on, the more closely were they held bound together.—10. Hæc (tigna, i. e. beams of two feet square, reaching from one pair of piles to the other below it,) directa materie, &c., were fastened together with timbers laid lengthwise (directa) of the bridge; i. e. from beam to beam.—11. Longuriis, &c., and covered over with long poles and hurdles.—12. Ac nihilo secius, &c., and besides all this, piles were driven in obliquely at the lower part of the stream.—13. Pro pariëte, for a buttress, or support.—14. Et aliæ item, and likewise others.—15. Dejiciendi opëris (causâ), for the sake of throwing down (destroying) the work,—the bridge.—16. (Ex) Quibus materia, &c., after the days in which, or, after that the materials had been begun to be brought together:—Quibus, i. e. ex diebus quibus, is here used instead of the more common expression, postquam, or ex (tempore) quo;—See also B. III. Chap. 23d. and Gr. § 131, Obs. 3d.—17. Ad utramque partem, at each end.

P. 140.—1. Iis hortantibus, by the advice of those.—2. In solitudinem ac silvas abdiderant, had gone into the deserts and forests to conceal themselves;—This rendering gives the force of the accusative after in, which is evidently a better reading than in solitudine, &c., which excludes the idea of going to;—So also, in silvas deponeret, below.—3. Hunc esse delectum, that this was selected as nearly the middle, or centre.—4. Ulcisceretur, that he might punish.—5. Satis et ad laudem et ad utilitatem profectum, that enough had been done, both for his honor and for utility, (profectum is from proficio, and means the same as perfectum).—6. Matüræ, early.—7. Inde, thence, i. e. from Britain.

P. 141.—1. Temërè, rashly, without good reason.—2. Neque iis ipsis quicquam notum est, nor is any thing known even by them. 3. Quem usum belli, &c., what experience they had in war, or what customs they followed.—4. In eâ sententiâ, in that mind, resolution. 5. Horteturque, and that he should urge them.—6. Fidem sequantur,

P. 189.—1. Aliënum, improper, foreign to the purpose.—2. Proponēre, to treat of, lay before, to give some account of.—3. In omnibus pagis partibusque, in all the cantons and parts of cantons.—4. Principes eârum factiōnum, &c., the heads of these factions are (persons) who in their opinion are considered to have the greatest interest, on whose will and decision all their most important affairs and resolutions hinge, depend.—5. Idque ejus rei causâ, &c., and this custom seems to have been instituted from early times, for this reason.—6. Quisque non patitur,—neque habent, each leader (patron),—neither do they have:—The pupil may here notice the transition from the singular, patitur, with quisque, to the plural, habent; § 102, Obs. 5.—7. Hæc eâdem ratio est, &c., this same principle exists, prevails. in the government of all Gaul.—8. Principes, chief, at the head of.—9. Jactūris, expenses, gifts:—This is a pure use of the word, which denotes a present loss in expectation of future benefit.—10. Tantum potentiâ antecesserunt, they (the Sequani) so far excelled (the Ædui) in power.—11. Re infectâ, the business, his object, being accomplished.—12. Eōrum amicitiam their (the Ædui's) friendship.

P. 190.—1. Reliquis rebus, &c., here the participle, amplificatâ, agrees with the nearest noun; See § 98, Obs. 4.—2. Dimiserant, (for amisērant,) had lost.—3. Quos quod adæquāre, &c., and because it was understood that they (the Remi) equalled the Ædui in Cæsar's favor; i. e. had an equal share of Cæsar's favor with the Ædui; stood as high in &c.—4. Vetēres inimicitias, ancient feuds.—5. Dicābant se Remis in clientelam, gave up themselves to the Remi for protection; put themselves under the protection of the Remi, 6. Aliquo numëra, of any note;—genëra, classes.—7. Aere aliëno, by debt, literally, the money of another.—8. In hos eãdem, &c., over these the nobles have all the same rights as masters have over their slaves.—9. Altërum est Druïdum, one is that of the Druids (See Index)—the other, that of the knights.—10. Illi, the former;—ad hos, to the latter.—11. Procurant, have charge of.—12. Ii (Druïdes) sunt apud eos (adolescentes) they (the Druids) are in great honor among them, viz: their pupils.—13. Non stetit decreto, &c., has not stood by, has violated their decree,—they exclude them from the public rites, excommunicate them.—14. Ii quibus ita interdictum est, those who are thus excommunicated (Idioms, 66,).—15. Defugiunt aditum eõrum, &c., shun their company and conversation.

P. 191.—1. Habet summam auctoritãtem, possesses the supreme authority; whose authority is absolute.—2. Arrange: Quæ regio habëtur media (regio) totius Galliæ, which is esteemed the middle, or central region of all Gaul.—3. Parent, obey, abide by, acquiesce in.—4. Disciplina, &c. this institution is thought to have originated in Britain.—5. Diligentiùs, more accurately.—6. Militiæ vacatiõnem, exemption from military service.—7. Immunitãtem omnium rerum, immunity, privilege, free use, enjoyment, of all things; all immunities.—8. Præmiis, rewards, advantages, privileges.—9. Ediscëre, to learn by heart; to commit to memory.—10. Ea litëris mandãre, to commit these things to writing.—11. Instituisse id, to have instituted this custom.—12. Disciplinã efferrì, that their doctrine should be spread abroad.—13. In primis hoc volunt, &c., they (the Druids) in particular wish to inculcate this idea; it is a favorite maxim of the Druids.—14. Anïmas nõn interïre, &c., that souls do not die, but pass from one body to another.—15. Dispütant, &c., they reason and impart their reflections to the young.

P. 192.—1. Cùm est usus, when there is need.—2. Versantur, are engaged.—3. Ambactos, retainers.—4. Dedita religionibus, given, addicted to religious rites, to superstitions.—5. Contexta viminibus, interwoven with twigs.—6. Ejus genëris (nocentium), of this class of offenders.—7. Deum maximè Mercurium colunt, they (the Gauls) worship chiefly the god Mercury; i. e. Mercury is the chief or favorite deity of the Gauls:—Not however the Mercury of the Grecian mythology, but a Gallic deity.—8. (Colunt) Apollinẽm, &c.—9. Initia, the beginnings, the first knowledge.

P. 193.—1. Quæ superaverint, &c. they sacrifice the captured animals which remain.—2. Posita, deposited (in sacred places).—3. Spatia omnis temporis, all their periods or divisions of time.—4. Ut noctem dies subsequatur, that the day follows the night; i. e. their day is from sunset to sunset as among the Jews.—5. Palam, openly; i. e. publicly, in public.—6. Conjunctim ratio habetur, a joint account is kept.—7. Fructusque servatur, and the interest is laid up.—8. Vitâ superârit, shall survive the other.—9. Habent questionem de uxoribus in servilem modum, they examine their wives by torture, after the manner of slaves; like slaves.—10. Si comperitum est, if any discovery is made.—11. Pro cultu, considering their mode of life.—12. Vivis cordi fuisse, to have been pleasing to them living.

P. 194.—1. Commodius, to greater advantage than others; more judiciously.—2. Quæ visa sunt, what seemed proper to them; i. e. what they thought proper.—3. Per consilium, through, or during; i. e. in the time of the council.—4. Neque student, nor do they pay attention to.—5. Opibus quorum, &c., by whose power they are manifestly benefited.—6. Vulcânium, fire.—7. Constitit, is spent.—8. Impubères, chaste.—9. Rhenonum, of deer's hides.—10. Quantum et quo loco, &c., as much land as, and where they think proper.—11. Afferunt multas causas ejus rei, they produce many reasons for this practice.

P. 195.—1. Accuratiùs, with greater care.—2. Animi æquitate, in evenness of mind, contentment.—3. Proprium virtutis, peculiar to, or a proof of, their valor.—4. Dicunt jus, controversiasque minuunt administer justice and decide controversies.—5. Qui velint sequi profiteantur, let those who wish to follow signify it, give their names.—6. Ac tempus fuit antea, but there was a time formerly.—7. Ultero bella inferrent, they (the Gauls) without provocation brought war:—Germânis, upon the Germans.

P. 196.—1. Summam opinionem, a very high character, reputation for justice, and military glory.—2. Gallis autem, &c., the nearness of the (Roman) province to the Gauls, and their acquaintance with foreign commodities.—3. Largitur multa ad copiam atque usus, supplies many articles of luxury and convenience.—4. Expedito, to a traveller without baggage; to an expeditious traveller.—5. Finiri, be measured.—6. Sinistrorsus, to the left hand (viz. of the Danube,) stretches northward from the Danube.—7. Memoria prodenda videantur, seem worthy to be handed down to remembrance.—8. Bos, See Index, Bison.—9. Sicut palmæ, like palms.

P. 197.—1. Alces, elk; See Alce.—2. Varietas pellium, the spots, varied color, of their skins.—3. Si afflictæ quo casu conciderint, if, being thrown down by any accident, they have fallen.—4. Applicant se ad eas, they lean themselves against these.—5. Infirmas, being weakened.—6. Uri; See Urus.—7. Quæ sunt testimonio, to serve as a proof.—8. Ne parvuli quidem excepti, not even those caught young.—9. Amplissimis, their most splendid.—10. Cæsar:—Cæsar having finished his digression, respecting the manners of the Gauls and Germans, (Ch. 11—28,) here resumes his narrative.

P. 198.—1. Si quid celeritate, &c., to see if he may be able to gain any thing by rapidity of march and favorable opportunity.—2. Ut imperatum est, as was ordered.—3. Fortuna potest (facere) multum, &c. fortune can do much; i. e. has great influence, not only, &c.—4. Magnæ fuit fortuna, it was a piece of great good fortune.

P. 199.—1. Multum fortuna valuit, fortune can do much, has great power or influence.—2. Judicio, from choice, designedly.—3. Exclusus tempore, prevented by want of time.—4. Sed certè, but it is certain.—5. Alienissimis to total strangers.—6. Omnibus precibus, with every sort of execration.—7. Taxo, with yew; i. e. with a decoction of the leaves or berry, both of which were regarded as poisonous.—8. Causam omnium Germanorum esse unam, that the cause of all the Germans was one and the same.—9. Questione captivorum, from an examination of the captives.

P. 200.—1. Post diem septimum (inchoatum), after the seventh day was begun; i. e. on the seventh day;—2. Ut supra, Ch. 31.—3. Nulla certa manus, no regular force.—4. Vicinitatibus, to the neighborhoods; i. e. to the people in the neighborhood:—a very common mode of speech in our own language.—5. Ex parte, partly, in a measure.

P. 201.—1. Confertos, in large parties.—2. Si vellet, if he (Cæsar) wished.—3. Instituta ratio, established discipline.—4. Ut potius in nocendo, &c., that some opportunity of injuring the enemy should be omitted, rather than that this injury should be inflicted with any danger to his soldiers.—5. Legionarius miles, the legionary soldiery; the soldiers of the legion; i. e. the regular troops.—6. Appetebat, was drawing near.—7. Quantos casus afferat, how great accidents she brings; i. e. how great changes she brings about.—8. Manus erat nulla, there was no collected body.—9. Suprà documus, we have shewn above; B. IV. Ch. 16.

P. 202.—1. Non palus non silvæ morantur hos, &c., no marsh, no woods hinder these men, &c.—2. Tantum præsidii ut ne, &c., so little of garrison that not even the walls could be surrounded with men; i. e. could be manned.—3. Duce, guide,—indicio, information. 4. Qui illius patientiam pæne obsessiõnem, &c., who called his forbearance almost a siege, since they were not permitted to go out of the camp.—5. Qui convalescerant, &c., those who had recovered during this interval.—6. Subsederat, had remained.—7. Casu, by chance, by accident.

P. 203.—1. Mercatores qui sub vallo tenderent, the suttlers who pitched their tents close to the ramparts.—2. Reliquos aditus, and other places of entrance.—3. Plerique novas sibi, &c., most of them form to themselves strange superstitious notions from the place; and they place before their eyes the disaster of Cotta and Titurius, since they were overthrown in that fort.—4. Qui primum pilum, &c., who had led the first rank with Cæsar; i. e. who had been his chief centurion.—5. Superioribus præliis; See B. II. Ch. 25, and B. III. Ch. 5.—6. Relinquit animus Sextium, Sextius faints.

P. 204.—1. Imperiti usus militaris, not acquainted with the usages of war.—2. Cuneo facto, a wedge being made; being drawn up in the form of a wedge.—3. Si, if, even if:—at, still, yet.—4. Nullo usu militaris rei percepto, &c., no experience in military affairs being yet acquired.

P. 205.—1. Non faceret fidem, he did not gain credit, was not believed.—2. Pæne alienatâ mente, with a mind almost alienated; devoid of reason.—3. Questus unum, having complained of only one thing.—4. Locum debuisse relinquî, ne minimo quidem casu, that a place, or occasion, ought not to have been left, for even the smallest accident; See § 16; Exc. 2.—5. Quarum omnium rerum maxime, &c., of all these things it seemed the most astonishing.—6. Obtulêrint optatissimum beneficium Ambiorigi, rendered the most acceptable service to Ambiorix.—7. Ad vexandos hostes, to annoy the enemy.

P. 206.—1. Pæne naturam studio vincerent, they almost overcame nature by exertion.—2. Ad summam felicitatem, to complete success.—3. Ille eripêret, &c., he continued to snatch himself from them; to escape from them by the aid of lurking places and forests: 4. Sumsit supplicium more majorum, he inflicted punishment according to the practice of their ancestors.—5. Cùm interdixisset quibus aquâ atque igni, when he had interdicted them from water and fire;

i. e. had banished them:—This was the Roman judicial mode of inflicting the sentence of banishment, “To forbid the use of water and fire”—6. Frumento proviso exercitui, having provided corn for the army.

INDEX,

HISTORICAL, GEOGRAPHICAL AND ARCHÆOLOGICAL,

FOR THE FIRST SIX BOOKS OF

CÆSAR'S COMMENTARIES ON THE GALLIC WAR.

Acco, ōnis, a general of the Gauls, who was at the head of the confederacy formed against the Senōnes, Carnūtes, and Trevīri. Cæsar, by the rapidity of his marches, prevented the execution of his plans, and ordered a general assembly of Gaul to inquire into the conduct of these nations, in which he pronounced sentence of death on Acco, who was instantly executed; B. VI. Ch. 4, and 44.

Adcantuannus, Adiomātus, vel, Adbuātus, i, the chief man, for many years, among the Allobroges.

Aduatūca, æ, f. a fort nearly in the middle of the country possessed by the Eburōnes,—a different place from Aduatūcum, the capital of the Aduatūci, now called Tongres, with which it appears to have been confounded by Ptolemy;—A small part of the town only may have been built when Cæsar was in that country. Hence he mentioned it as a castle, or fort. It stood near the river Mosa, (Mæse,) between Liege and Mæstricht.

Aduatūci, ōrum, m. a people of Gallia Belgica, whose country lay on the west bank of the Mosa, (Mæse,) between Namur and Liege.

Ædui, ōrum, (sing. Æduus, i.), v. Hedui, ōrum, one of the most powerful and wealthy nations of Gallia Celtica. Their territory lay on the W. of the Arar, (Soane,) between that river and the Ligēris, (Loire,) a little to the N. of the junction of the former with the Rhodānus, (Rhone,) At an early period they became the allies of Rome, to which, in some degree, their influence among the other nations of Gaul may be attributed. See Sequāni.

Æmilius, i, (Lucius), an officer in Cæsar's army, who commanded a part of the Gallic cavalry.

Æquinoctium, i, n. (from Æquus, equal, and Nox, night,) the Equinox, or time when the days and nights are equal, all over the globe. This happens twice a year, on 22d March, and 22d September. The former is called the Vernal, the latter the Autumnal Equinox. The circle, which passes through the place of the sun at these two periods of the year, has, from the phenomenon above mentioned, received the name of the Equinoctial, or Equinoctial Line, and is directly over the Equator.

Agendicum, i, n. (now Sens,) the chief city of the Senōnes, a brave and powerful people of Gaul, who inhabited the left bank of the Sequāna, (Seine). It stood below the confluence of the Vanne and Icauna, vel, Itumna, (Yonne,) a southern branch of the Seine.

Agger, is, the name of a mound raised by the Romans in besieging cities. It was composed of earth, wood, hurdles, stone, &c. The agger commenced at a distance from the walls, gradually advanced towards the town, always increasing in height, till it equalled or overtopped the walls. This mound was secured by towers of different stories, (See Turris,) from which showers of missiles were discharged on the defenders by means of engines, and from which, when advanced near enough, a temporary platform or bridge was sometimes thrown to the top of the wall, on which the soldiers marched into the city.

Ala, æ, the wing of an army, properly the cavalry, so called from being placed on the right and left of the infantry. In the plural this term is often used to designate the troops of the allies, which (both infantry and cavalry,) were stationed on the right and left of the Roman army.

Alarii, ōrum, those belonging to the Alæ, or wings.

Allobrōges, um, (sing. Allobrox, ōgis,) a people of Gaul, whose country lay between the Isāra, (Isere,) and the river Rhodānus, (Rhone.) They bravely, and for a long time, resisted the power of the Roman legions, but were at last defeated by Pomtīnus. Cicero extols them for their fidelity to his countrymen, of which they gave a remarkable proof in Catiline's conspiracy (See Sallust, B. C.) Horacē censures them for their love of novelty, which seems characteristic of the inhabitants of that country, both in ancient and modern times. Cæsar De Bel. Gal. IV. 5. The chief town of the Allobrōges was Vienna, (Vienne,) on the left bank of the Rhone, 13 miles below Lugdūnum, (Lyon.)

Alpes, ium, a chain of mountains separating Italy from Gaul and Germany. They are in the form of a crescent, and extend from the Sinus Flanaticus, (the gulf of Quarnero,) at the top of the gulf of Venice, to Vada Sabatia, (Savona), on the gulf of Genoa, a distance of 600 miles. They have been divided into different portions, the principal of which are the following: 1. Alpes Maritimæ, (or Maritime Alps,) extending from the vicinity of Nice to Monte Viso. 2. Alpes Cottæ, (or Cottian Alps,) from Monte Viso to Mont Cenis. 3. Alpes Graiæ, (or Graian Alps,) between Mont Iseran and Little St. Bernard. 4. Alpes Penninæ, (or Pennine Alps,) from Great St. Bernard to the sources of the Rhone and Rhine. To this range belongs Mt. Blanc, 14,676 feet high. 5. Alpes Rhetiæ, (or Rætian Alps,) from St. Gothard to Mount Brenner in the Tyrol. 6. Alpes Noricæ, (or Noric Alps,) from Mount Brenner to the head of the river Plavis. 7. Alpes Carniæ, sive Julia, (the Carnic or Julian Alps,) from the head of the river Plavis to the confines of Illyricum. Over these mountains there are several passes, of which the principal are, that over the Great St. Bernard, that over Mont Simplon, and that over Mont St. Gothard.

Aambarri, ōrum, a people of Gaul, related to the Ædui, supposed to have lived on the Arar, (Saone), a little to the N. of its Junction with the Rhodānus, (Rhone.)

Ambiānum, i, n. anciently Samarobrīva, now Amiens, a town of the Belgæ.

Ambiani, ōrum, the inhabitants of Ambiānum. They entered into a conspiracy against Cæsar, (B. G. II. 4,) and appear to have held a considerable rank among the Belgic tribes.

Ambiliāti, ōrum, m. a nation of Gallia Celtica whose geographical position is not precisely ascertained. They are mentioned (B. G. III. 9,) along with the Osismii, Lexovii, Nannētes, &c., and therefore their country must have been included in the province of Bretagne or Normandy. Some éditions have Ambiani.

Ambiōrix, īgis, king of the Eburōnes, was a great enemy to the Romans. After many narrow escapes, he at last evaded the pursuit of Cæsar's men who followed him too closely, when only four of his attendants remained.

Ambivarīti, ōrum, a nation of Gaul, between the Mosa, (Mæse), and the Rhēnus, (Rhine), who were subject to the Ædui. B. IV. Ch. 9.)

Anartes, ium, et Anarti, v. Anartii, ōrum, a people of Dacia, who inhabited the east bank of the river Tibiscus, (Teissk, or Teyss), one of the northern branches of the Danube. Their country now forms part of Hungary.

Ancalītes, ium, a people of South Britain, who were neighbors to

- the Trinobantes. Some have thought the Atrebates of Ptolemy and Antonine's Itinerary, the same with the Ancalites of Cæsar. See Horsley's Brittania Romana, p. 17, and Gale's Anton. Itiner. p. 105, 106.
- Andes, ium, ïbus, a nation of the Celtæ in Gaul. Their territory lay on the north bank, and near the mouth, of the river Ligëris, (Loir..)
- Annus, i, m. a year. See Gr. App. I.
- Antebrogius, i, m. a man of great influence amongst the Rhemi, who was sent ambassador to Cæsar in the second year of the Gallic war.
- Antesignāni, ōrum, (Ante and signum,) a name given to the soldiers who fought before the standards, or in the first line, as those who were stationed behind the standards were called Postsignāni, or Subsignāni.
- Antistius, i, (Caius A. Rhegīnus), one of Cæsar's lieutenants in Gaul. Cæsar, in consequence of his expecting greater commotions in that country, gave orders in the sixth year of the war, to Marcus Silānus, C. Antistius Rhegīnus, and T. Sextius, to levy troops. We find him, at other times, appointing this lieutenant to honorable commissions.
- Antistius, (See Turpio.)
- Apollo, ïnis, the son of Jupiter and Latōna, the god of music, medicine, augury, painting, poetry, and all the fine arts. He was born at the same birth with his sister Diana, near the foot of Cynthus, a mountain in Delos, an island in Mare Ægeum, (Archipelago.) Hence he was called Cynthius and Delius; and Diana, Cynthia and Delia. Among beasts, the wolf; among insects, the grass-hopper; among birds, the cock, the crow, the swan, and the hawk; and among trees, the palm, the olive, and the laurel, were sacred to Apollo. He was represented as a tall beardless young man, of handsome shape, holding in his hand a bow, hence called Deus Arcitēns, or a lyre, and his head surrounded with rays of light.
- Aquila, æ, m. an eagle, also the standard of a Roman Legion. From the second consulship of Marius, and under the Emperors, the standards were most commonly of silver, seldom of gold, in the form of an eagle, from which the name is derived. The preference was given to the former metal, according to Pliny, because it is seen at a greater distance than the latter. But though the figure of the Roman ensigns was always that of an eagle, they were not always precisely alike. Sometimes they resembled an eagle in a standing posture, at others, with outstretched wings, which was the most common form, and not unfrequently with a turret on their backs. The Roman standard, at first, was a bundle of hay fixed to a pole, Manipulus,—a term afterward used to denote the third part of a cohort, then of wood, sometimes of silver, and more rarely of gold, in different forms. Marius, during his second consulship, introduced into the Roman army the eagle, which continued to be ensign till the destruction of the empire. The merit of originality does not belong to the Romans, for we have the authority of Xenophon to maintain, that it was first used as a military standard by the Persians.

Aquilifer, féri, m. standard-bearer, whose office seems, in some degree, to correspond to that of ensign with us. His place was in the first line. To allow the standard to fall into the hands of the enemy was reckoned highly disgraceful to the whole legion, which is still the case in modern times, but particularly to the person who carried it. In one instance recorded by Livy, the standard-bearer was, for this crime, put to death. But the centurions suffered the same punishment at that time, and the army was decimated for cowardice and treachery.—It does not appear from Roman history, that recourse was had to such severity, unless in instances of wilful dereliction of duty, proceeding either from unmanly timidity or treacherous intention.

Aquiléia, æ, f. a famous seaport belonging to the Venéti on Mare Hadriaticum, (Gulf of Venice.) Strabo says it was built by the Romans, to repel the inroads of the barbarians, when their territory on that coast did not extend farther north. The name has been thought to be derived from an eagle, Aquila, flying over the site at the time the foundation was laid; but more probably from the Roman standard, in consequence of two legions having been long stationed in that place. From its splendor and magnificence, it was sometimes called Roma Secunda. Altilla, king of the Huns, after a long and obstinate siege, plundered it, A. D. 452, and so completely was the city destroyed, that the next generation could scarcely discover its ruins. Since that time, a few fishermen's huts point out the place near which it stood. Aquiléia, according to Pliny, was at the distance of 1500 paces from the coast.

Aquitania, æ, f. one of the three principal divisions of Gallia, (France,) bounded on the east by Provincia, (Languedoc, Provence, and Dauphiné;) on the north by the river Garumna, (Garonne,) which separates it from Gallia Celtica, on the west by Oceānus Cantabricus, (Bay of Biscay,) and on the south by Py-renæi Montes, (Pyrenees, or Pyrenean Mountains,) which divide Gallia from Hispania, (Spain.) As Aquitania was much less than either of the other two divisions, Augustus extended its northern boundary to the river Ligëris, (Loire.)

Aquitani, òrum, (sing. Aquitanus, i,) the inhabitants of Aquitania. Arar, äris, m. (Saone,) a smooth flowing river of Gaul, which takes its rise near Mount Vosëgus, (Vosge,) runs southward, and after receiving several streams, falls into the river Rhodänus, (Rhone,) at Lugdünüm, (Lyon, or Lyons.) B. I. Ch. 12.

Arduenna, æ, f. Ardennes, a forest of Gaul, the largest in that country, reaching, according to Cæsar, from the Rhenus, (Rhine,) to the territory of the Remi, upwards of fifty miles in length. Others make the extent of this forest much larger. If it reached from the territory of the Treviri to that of the Remi, it would greatly exceed fifty miles. The ground is now in many places cleared, and cities built upon it. Strabo says, the trees of this forest were not of a great height, and its length did not exceed forty miles.

Arecomïci, òrum, a people of Gaul, who lived on the Gallicus Sinus, (Gulf of Lyons,) to the west of the river Rhodänus, (Rhone.) See Volcæ.

Aries, ëtis, m. a ram:—also a military engine for battering down walls. It is said to have been first used by the Carthaginians at the siege of Gades, (Cadiz.) This instrument was originally very simple. To the end of a beam, varying in length and thickness according to circumstances, was affixed a piece of iron in the form of a ram's head, to which it owes its name. This powerful engine of war rested on the arms of the soldiers who worked it. The first improvement made on the battering ram, was to suspend it by a chain or a rope from the top of two logs of wood, having the lower ends fixed firmly in the ground at a considerable distance from each other, and terminating in a point at the upper, by which contrivance the men who wrought it were wholly relieved of its weight. To protect them from the destructive weapons thrown by the besieged, a shed or mantlet, with a strong roof, was formed around it. The whole stood on wheels, so that the besiegers easily moved the engine at pleasure. It does not appear from ancient history, that the battering ram received any important improvement after the one just stated. The discovery of gunpowder and introduction of artillery have quite superseded the use of this military engine, which the Romans long held in great esteem.

The number of men employed at once in working the ram, and the length of time they continued, would vary according to the number of the troops, the magnitude of the beam, the thickness of the wall, &c. It is certain that in some instances, upwards of fifty men plied on each side, and from the severity of the labor, they must, in ordinary cases, have been frequently relieved. The following wood cut represents the battering ram protected by the Testudo, or vineæ, under which the men employed in working it were protected from the missiles of the enemy.

ARIES.

Ariovistus, i, king of the Germans, who invaded Gallia, (France,) conquered a considerable part of that country, and subjected the inhabitants to the most cruel and oppressive treatment. Cæsar marched up to his very camp, compelled him to fight, and gained such a complete victory, that a very few only, among whom was Ariovistus himself, escaped. These continued their flight, until they reached the banks of the Rhine, which they crossed, some by swimming, others by boats. Ariovistus, in a little vessel, got safely to the other side. From this period nothing of his history is known.

Armoricæ civitates, Armoric States, namely, those of the Rhedōnes Namnētes, Venēti, Curiosolites, Osismii, Corisopīti, Unelli, Ambrincatui, Bajocasses, Viducasses, and Lexovii, who inhabited the western part of the countries, between the Ligēris, (Loire,) and the Sequāna, (Seine.) They had this name from their situation on the sea coast; Armor signifying, in the language of the ancient Gauls, on the sea.

Armorīci, ōrum, the inhabitants of Armoricæ.

Arpinus, i, (Caius,) a Roman knight whom Cæsar sent along with Quintus Junius to Ambiōrix, after he himself had declined an interview with that prince.

Arverni, ōrum, a people of Gallia Celtica, whose territories lay between the sources of the Eleāver, (Allier,) and Duranius, (Dordogne,) branches of the Ligēris and Garumna. From the numerous wars which they had carried on against the Romans, Strabo infers their power and resources must, in former ages, have been very great. Like the Romans, they boasted of being descended from the Trojans.

Atrebātes, ium, a people of Gallia Belgica, the neighbors of the Morīni whose country lay along the English Channel, opposite to Dover.

Atrius, i, (Quintus,) an officer to whom Cæsar gave the command of the shipping, which had carried him and his army to the coast of Britain.

Atuatūci, v. Aduatūci. ōrum, a people of Belgic Gaul, whose territories lay between the rivers Mosa, (Mæse,) and the Scaldis, (Scheld,) adjoining to those of the Nervii and Toxarari. Their capital was Atuatūca, æ, f. Tongres, in Brabant.

Aulerci, ōrum; of this name Cæsar mentions four nations of Gaul—Aulerci Brannovices, whose territories, (Morienne,) were adjoining to those of the Ædui, Segusiāni, and Ambivariti; Aulerci Cenomanni, whose country, (Mans,) lay between the rivers Sarta (Sarte,) and Lædus, two of the northern branches of the Loire Suindinum, vel, Subdinium, afterwards Cenomanni, on the Sarte was their chief city; Aulerci Eburovices inhabited the left bank of the Sequāna, (Seine,) below Lutetia, (Paris.) Their chief town was Mediolanum, afterwards Eburovices, (Evreux.)

The Aulerci Diablintes, Diablitæ, et Diavlitæ, lived between the two last mentioned nations. Neodunum, afterwards Diablintes, (Jublens,) was their largest town. These three, probably, formed but one people, and might, with more propriety, have been denominated tribes, than separate or distinct nations.

Aurunculeius, i, (Lucius A. Cotta) one of Cæsar's lieutenants in the Gallic War. He opposed the rash measure of his colleague, in wishing to leave their winter quarters, at the deceitful suggestion of Ambiörix, but at last yielded to the timidity of Titurius, which cost him his life. He is frequently called L. Cotta, and sometimes Cotta.

Ausci, örum, a people of Aquitania in Gaul. Their capital was Climberris, v. Climberrum, Augusta, and at a latter period, Auci, (Auch,) which stood on the west branch of the Ger, one of the southern branches of the river Garumna, (Garonne.)

Auxilia, örum, troops sent by foreign kings and states. They usually received pay and clothing from the republic, although sometimes they were supported by those who sent them.

Axöna, æ, m. (Aine, or Aisne,) a river of Gaul, which Ausonius calls Præceps, from its rapidity. Its source was in the territories of the Rhemi, which form the department of the Meuse. It runs in a southwest direction, joins the Isära, (Iser,) a little below Campaigne, and both fall into the Sequäna, (Seine,) about five miles south of Pointoise.

B.

BACENIS, is, f. a forest of Germany, forming part of the Hercynia Silva, or Black Forest. Cæsar says it was of prodigious extent, (infinitæ magnitudinis,) and like a natural wall, prevented the mutual incursions of the Suëvi and Cherusci.

Bacölus; See Sextius.

Baleäres, ium, a name anciently given to the islands of Majorca and Minorca off the coast of Spain, the inhabitants of which were celebrated for their skill in the use of the sling.

Baleäris, e, adj. of or belonging to the Balearic isles.

Balista, æ, (from the Greek ἐλάλω to throw,) a species of military engine used by the Romans for throwing darts, arrows, and stones. These were of different sizes, and were used with great effect both in battles and sieges. Stones of great weight were often thrown by these engines to a great distance, by which battlements were thrown down and whole files of men swept from the deepest phalanx. Their effect is said to have been little inferior in sieges to that of artillery. The balista used for throwing darts or javelins, represented in the following wood cut, taken from Folard's commentary on Polybius, resembled in its operation an immense crossbow, the two ends of which consisted of two levers so twisted in coils of ropes as to acquire a powerful spring. The extreme ends were united by a strong rope which was drawn back by means of a windlass after the manner of a bowstring, bringing the ends of the lever back and closer together, thereby twisting the coils of ropes to their greatest tension. When thus drawn back, the javelin or dart was placed in the shaft, directed to the object aimed at, and, at the pleasure of the operator, letting go the rope, was hurled with prodigious force from the engine by the recoil of the levers.

BALISTA FOR THROWING DARTS AND JAVELINS.

The balista for throwing stones, (represented in the following wood cut,) consisted of a strong lever, one end of which was made fast in a twist of ropes, and the other scooped out in the form of a spoon, for containing the stone &c. to be thrown. When unbent the lever stood perpendicular. In working it, the end of the lever was brought down, by means of a windlass, to a horizontal position, by which the ropes were twisted to their greatest tension; the stone or missile was laid on in its proper place and thrown by the recoil of the lever to a great distance, often with tremendous effect. Engines of both kinds, of a larger size, were more commonly called Balistæ, those of a smaller size, Catapultæ, which see

BALISTA FOR THROWING STONES OR OTHER HEAVY BODIES.

Balventius, i, (Titus, i,) a man of distinguished courage, who had both his thighs pierced with a dart, in the attack which Ambiorix made upon the legions which he had deceitfully persuaded to leave their camp.

Basilius; See Minucius.

Batavia, æ, f. v. Insula Batavorum, (United Provinces,) often called Holland, from its being the largest of them; a country at the mouth of the Rhine. It was denominated an island, from being bounded on two sides, by the southern and northern branches of the Rhine, and on the third by the sea. B. IV. Ch. 10.

Batavi, òrum, the people of Batavia, originally a branch of the Catti, a German nation.

Belgæ, arum, a people originally of German extraction, who inhabited the third division of Gaul, which was bounded on the south by the Matróna, (Marne,) and the Sequana, (Seine;) on the east and north by the Rhēnus, (Rhine,) and on the west by Fretum Britannicum, (English Channel.) Strictly speaking, Fretum Britannicum, v. Gallicum, was confined to the Straits of Dover, but seems generally to have had a more extended signification, and to have nearly corresponded to the modern appellation, the English Channel. Cæsar calls it Oceanus, i. e. Atlanticus, of which the English Channel and the German Sea form only a very small part. In the division of Gaul made by Augustus, whose object was to render the different provinces more equal in point of extent, the countries of the Helvetii and Sequāni, which till that time were included in Gallia Cēltica, were added to Gallia Belgica. According to Cæsar, the Belgæ were, of all the Gauls, the most warlike; and he attributes their superiority in arms to their being strangers to luxury and refinement. B. I. Ch. 1.

Belgium, i, n. is, in general, used by Cæsar to denote a part of Gallia Belgica, not the whole country. See Belgæ.

Bellovāci, ōrum, a numerous and powerful tribe of the Belgæ, adjoining the Bellocassi. Calēti, Ambiāni, Veromandui, and Silvānectes.

Bibracte, is, n. afterwards Angustodūnum, i, n. (Autun,) a town of the Ædui, upon the Arroux, one of the northern branches of the Ligēris, (Loire,) towards the source of that river. At this town in the 7th year of the Gallic war a general assembly of the whole country was held, to choose a commander in chief, on whom the uncontrolled direction of all their military operations should be conferred. The Ædui, who claimed that honor, had to submit to the unanimous election of Vercingetōrix, q. v.

Bibrax, ācis, f. (Bievre,) a town of the Remi on the Axōna, (Aisne.)

Bibrōci, ōrum, a British nation, inhabiting what now forms the N. W. part of Berkshire. Their chief town was Bibracte, (Bray.) At the time Cæsar invaded Britain, they, with the Cenomāgni, Ancalītes, and Cassii, seem to have been subject to Cassivelaunus.

Bigerrīōnes, v. Bigerrōnes, ium, a people of Aquitania, who, with several other adjoining tribes, surrendered to Crassus, one of Cæsar's lieutenants. Their territory was bounded on the south by the Pyrenees, and was nearly at equal distances from the Mediterranean and the Bay of Biscay.

Bison, ontis, v. ōnis, m. a buffalo, a kind of wild ox, of which Cæsar has given the best description to be found in the writings of the ancients, (B. G. VI. 25.) The natural history of this animal is unknown.

Biturīges, um, a nation of Gallia Cēltica, on the west side of the river Ligēris, (Loire.) Their chief city, Avaricum, was afterwards called by the name of its inhabitants, (now Bourges.)

Boduognātus, i, the commander of the Nervii, at the time they attacked the Roman army under Cæsar.

Boii, ōrum, a people of Gallia Celtica, who came originally from beyond the Rhine and settled in the country south and west of the Ædui on the banks of the Liger and Eläver,—a territory originally belonging to the Ædui, but which they gave up to the Boii with the consent of Cæsar; B. I. Ch. 28. There were several tribes of the Boii, who lived in different parts of Gaul and Germany. In the latter country their name is still recognized in the districts, Bavaria; and Bohemia, in the German language, Boierheim, i. e. the residence of the Boii.

Bratuspantium, i, n. a town of the Bellovaci. It is supposed to have stood between Cæsaremagnus, afterwards Belvacus, or Belvacum, (Beauvais,) and Samarobriva, (Amiens.) This town is not mentioned by any writer after the commencement of the Christian Æra.

Britannia, æ, f. Britain, or Great Britain, (anciently called Albion,) is the largest island in Mare Atlanticum, (Atlantic Ocean,) belonging to Eurōpa, (Europe.) That part of the Atlantic which separates Britain from France, was called Fretum Britannicum, (strictly speaking, Strait of Dover,) but its signification seems often to have been more extensive, and to have corresponded nearly with the modern appellation, English Channel. Oceānus Verginius, (St. George's Channel,) lies between Britain and Hibernia, (Ireland.) On the west, Oceānus Calydonicus, (Scottish Sea,) washed the west and northwest parts of Scotland, Oceānus Hyperboreus, (Northern Sea,) the northern coast, and Oceānus Germanicus, (the German Ocean,—which is more properly called a sea,)—formed its boundary on the east. Cæsar's account, both of the form and extent of this island, is not very far from the truth. But of the characters, manners and customs, of the Britons, a very general description only is to be found in the writings of the ancients. Little was known, to the Romans, of this island until the invasion of Cæsar. This commander endeavored, although ineffectually, to reduce it. After a long interval, Ostorius, in the reign of Claudius, subjugated the southern part; and Agricola, subsequently, in the reign of Domitian, extended the Roman dominion to the Frith of Forth and Clyde. The whole force of the empire, although exerted to the utmost under Severus, could not, however, reduce to subjection the hardy natives of the highlands. Britain continued a Roman province, until A. D. 426, when the troops were in a great measure withdrawn, to assist Valentinian III. against the Huns, and never returned. The Britons had become so enervated under the Roman yoke, as to be unable to repel the incursions of the inhabitants of the north. They invoked, therefore, the aid of the Saxons, by whom they were themselves subjugated, and compelled at last to take refuge among the mountains of Wales.

Britanni, ōrum, (sing. Britannus, i,) et Britōnes, v. Brittōnes, um, (sing. Britto, ōnis, v. ōnis,) the people of Britania.

Britannus, et, Britannīcus, a um, adj. of, or belonging to Britain.

Brutus, i, (Decīmus, i,) one of Cæsar's officers, to whom he gave the command of his fleet in the Gallic war, with which he defeated the Venetians, (B. G. III. 15,) and afterwards the people of Marseilles, in two engagements during the civil war.

C.

CÆRÆSI, ōrum, a nation of Gallia Belgīca, who, with the Condrūsi, Eburōnes, and Pæmāni, went under the general appellation of Germans, and were supposed to send 40,000 men to the Belgic army, which was raised against the Roman dominion in Gaul, (B. G. II. 4.) Their country was situated between that of the Trevīri and the river Mosa, (Meuse.)

Cæsar, āris, (Caius Julius,) the first distinguished character of the Cæsars, was the son of Caius Cæsar and Aurelia the daughter of Cotta. He was born in the sixth consulship of Marius, 99 years B. C. He lost his father in the 16th year of his age, and the following year obtained the office of Flamen Dialīs, (High Priest of Jupiter.) He procured many friends by his eloquence, and after passing through the different offices of Quæstor, Edile, High Priest, (Pontifex Maximus,) &c., he was sent as governor into Spain, and upon his return, being elected Consul, he entered into an agreement with Pompey and Crassus, that nothing should be done in the state without their joint concurrence. This was called the First Triumvirate, and was in fact a conspiracy against the liberties of Rome.

Previous to the expiration of his consulship, he obtained from the people the province of Cisalpine Gaul and Illyricum, with three legions for five years; and the Senate, at the desire of Cæsar, added Transalpine Gaul and another legion. These legions were gradually increased to thirteen.

Cæsar set out for Transalpine Gaul in the end of March, B. C. 57, in the 42d year of his age. With wonderful conduct and bravery he subdued this country in about ten years, and carried the terror of his arms into Germany and Britain, till then unknown to the Romans. The account of these wars is given by Cæsar himself, in his Commentaries on the Gallic war, in seven books. These Commentaries, or Journals, were composed on the spot where his battles were fought. The purity and neatness of his style, notwithstanding the rapidity with which they must have been written, have not been surpassed by any Roman writer. His narrative is perspicuous, simple, and natural. It is at once chaste and animated. His lucid and picturesque description places the whole scene distinctly before the reader, who accompanies him in all his marches, and is a witness of every engagement. No passage occurs in all his writings, which the most illiterate do not understand, and the most polished do not approve. To compose a simple narrative of his campaigns, for the amusement of himself and his friends, seems rather to have been his object, than to give a specimen of his talents as a profound historian, or deep politician. Hence, it were absurd to expect in the Commentaries, a finished history. They are mere outlines, which he perhaps entertained the hope of seeing filled up, either by himself, or by some other hand.

These Commentaries in seven books, and three books concerning the civil war, are the only genuine writings of Cæsar which now remain. Of the character of Cæsar as a general and historian, Dunlop, in his History of Roman Literature, Vol. II. p. 171, &c., speaks thus:

“Though the Commentaries on the Gallic War comprehend but a small extent of time, and are not the general history of a nation, they embrace events of the highest importance, and detail, perhaps, the greatest military operations to be found in ancient story. We see in them all that is great and consummate in the art of war. The ablest commander of the most warlike people on earth records the history of his own campaigns. Placed at the head of the finest army ever formed in the world, and one devoted to his fortunes, but opposed by prowess only second to their own, he and the soldiers he commanded may be praised almost in the words in which Nestor praised the heroes who had gone before him; for the Gauls and Germans were among the bravest and most warlike nations then on earth. In his clear and scientific details of military operations, Cæsar is reckoned superior to every one, except, perhaps, Polybius. In general, too, when he speaks of himself, it is without affectation or arrogance. He talks of Cæsar as of an indifferent person, and always maintains the character which he has thus assumed; indeed, it can hardly be conceived that he had so small a share in the great actions he describes, as would appear from his own representations. With the exception of the false colors with which he disguises his ambitious projects against the liberties of his country, every thing seems to be told with fidelity and candor."

Respecting the future history of this illustrious man the following notices may here suffice. After the conquest of Gaul, Pompey, having become jealous of Cæsar's power, induced the Senate to order him to lay down his command; upon which Cæsar crossed the Rubicon, the boundary of his province, and led his army to Rome, Pompey and all the friends of liberty fleeing before him. Having subdued Italy in sixty days, Cæsar entered Rome, and seized upon the money in the public treasury. He then went to Spain, where he conquered the partizans of Pompey, and at his return was created Dictator, and soon after Consul. Leaving Rome and going in search of Pompey, the two hostile generals engaged on the plains of Pharsalia. The army of Cæsar amounted to 22,000 men, while that of Pompey amounted to 45,000; but the superior generalship of Cæsar prevailed, and he was victorious. Making a generous use of his victory, Cæsar followed Pompey into Egypt, where he heard of his murder, and making the country tributary to his power, he hastened to suppress the remainder of Pompey's party in Africa and Spain. Thus triumphing over all his enemies, he was created perpetual Dictator, received the names of Imperâtor and Pater Patriæ, and governed the people with justice. The consequence, however, of his engrossing all the powers of the state and ruling with absolute authority, engendered a spirit of opposition and general disgust; a conspiracy was formed against him by more than sixty senators, the chief of whom were Brutus and Cassius. Accordingly, on the 15th of March, 44 years B. C., and in the 56th year of his age, on his entrance into the Senate house, he was stabbed, and fell, pierced with twenty-three wounds, at the foot of Pompey's statue.

Of Cæsar's intrepidity as a soldier, and abilities as a commander, the armies which he defeated and the countries which he conquered are sufficient proofs. To the talents of a consummate general he added those of an elegant historian and a persuasive orator. He spoke with the same spirit with which he fought, and had he devoted himself to the bar, he would have been the only man capable of rivalling Cicero.

Calētes, ium, v. Calēti, ōrum, a people of Gaul, whose country lay a little to the north of the mouth of the Sequāna, (Seine.)

Cantābri, ōrum, (sing. Cantāber, ri,) a very brave and warlike people, who inhabited the northern part of Spain. They seem to have extended from the mouths of Ibērus, (Ebro,) to the shores of the Bay of Biscay, which was, from them, called Oceānus Cantabricus. The term is often used to denote the Spaniards in general.

Cantium, i, n. (Kent,) a district of England which, in modern times, is bounded by the Strait of Dover, (Fretum Gallicum, vel, Britannicum) on the east, by Sussex on the south, on the west by Surry, and on the north by the Thames, (Tamesis,) which separates it from Essex. But the ancient boundaries of Kent are not precisely ascertained.

Carcāso, ōnis, f. Carcassonne, a town of that part of Provincia, now called Languedoc, on the river Atax, (Aude.) Here are preserved some records of the place, written upon the bark of trees.

Carfulēnus, i, an officer of Cæsar, who was dispatched to attack the highest part of the camp of the Alexandrians, which he carried. He was afterwards killed in an engagement at Mutīna, fighting against Anthony.

Carnūtes, um, v. ti, ōrum, a powerful nation of Gaul, between the rivers Sequāna, (Seine,) and Ligēris, (Loire,) south of Lutetia, (Paris.)

Carvilius, i, one of the four kings of Cantium, (Kent,) who, at the command of Cassivelaunus, made an attack on Cæsar's naval camp, in which they were repulsed, and lost a great number of men.

Cassi, ōrum, the hundred of Caishow, a British nation, supposed to be subject to Cassivelaunus at the time Cæsar invaded Britain, who submitted to that conqueror Cassius, i, (Lucius, i,) a Roman consul, who was killed by the Helvetii, who defeated his army and obliged it to pass under the yoke.

Cassivelaunus, i, one of the British kings, whose territories lay on the north bank of the Tamēsis, (Thames,) towards the mouth of that river. On the arrival of the Roman forces in Britain under Cæsar, he was, by common consent, appointed Commander-in-chief. After making some attempts to check the progress of the enemy, he was obliged to submit, and accept of such terms as Cæsar chose to offer.

Casticus, i, one of the Sequáni, the son of Catamantalëdis, whom Orgetörrix persuaded to seize on the sovereignty of the state, which his father had formerly held.

Castra, òrum, a camp. The discipline of the Romans was chiefly conspicuous in their marches and encampments. They never passed a night, even in the longest marches, without pitching a camp, and fortifying it with a rampart and ditch. The form of the Roman camp, till later ages, was square, and was always of the same figure. It was surrounded by a ditch, usually nine feet deep, and twelve feet broad, and by a rampart or vallum, composed of the earth dug from the ditch, and having sharp stakes stuck into it. The camp had four gates, one on each side. They were called porta PRÆTORIA, next the enemy; DEGUMANA, opposite to the former; porta PRINCIPALIS DEXTRA, on the right side of the camp, at one end of the main street called PRINCIPIA; and PRINCIPALIS SINISTRA, on the left side, at the other end. The camp was divided into two parts, called the upper and lower, by the main street just mentioned. In the lower part the troops were disposed in the following order. The cavalry were in the middle; on both sides of them were the triarii, princìpes, and hastāti, or the third, second, and first Roman ranks; and next to these, on both sides, were the cavalry and foot of the allies, who were always posted in separate places, lest they should form any plots by being united. The velites commonly occupied the empty space between the ramparts and tents, which was 200 feet broad. The tents were covered with leather or skins, extended by means of ropes. In each tent were usually ten soldiers, with their decanus or petty officer who commanded them. The different divisions of the troops were separated by intervals called VIE. Of these there were five longwise, i. e. running from the decuman towards the prætorian side; and three across, one in the lower part of the camp, called quintāna, and two in the upper, namely, the principia, and another between the prætorium and the prætorian gate. The following wood cut and illustration will give a good idea of its shape and arrangements.

GROUND PLAN OF THE ROMAN CAMP.

1. The Prætorium, or general's tent, with a sufficient space around for the tents of his suite.
2. Ground behind the tents of the Tribunes, for their horses, baggage, &c.
3. The tents of the Tribunes.
4. Ground behind the tents of the Præfects of the Allies, for their horses, baggage, &c.
5. The tents of the Præfects of the Allies.
6. A cross street, one hundred feet wide, called Principia. (Vid. PRINCIPIA.)
7. A cross street, fifty feet wide, on both sides of which were the tents of the Roman horse.
8. The Horse of two Roman legions, in ten turmæ or troops each.
9. The Triarii of two Roman legions (Vid. TRIARII), in ten maniples each, facing on two different streets.

10. Two streets, each fifty feet wide, between the Triarii and Principes of two legions.

11. The Principes of two Roman legions (Vid. PRINCIPES), in ten maniples each.

12. The Hastati of two Roman legions (Vid. HASTATI), in ten maniples each.

13. Two streets, each fifty feet wide, between the Hastati of the two Roman legions and the Horse of the Allies.

14. The Horse of the Allies, wanting the Extraordinarii (Vid. No. 25), and placed in two different parts of the camp. The forces of the allies, both cavalry and infantry, were always separated in this manner, to prevent plotting, as remarked above.

15. The Infantry of the Allies, wanting the Extraordinarii, and, like the horse, placed in two different parts of the camp.

16. The Quintana (scil. via), a street fifty feet wide, running across the camp, between the fifth and sixth maniples of each line. Hence, as it comes after the fifth maniple, reckoned from the Principia, it received the name of Quintana.

17. The Quæstorium, or Quæstor's tent.

18. The tents of the Legati. The space in front of these and the Quæstorium was called the Forum, where things were sold, &c.

19. Evocati Equites, or Veteran Horse. (Vid. EVOCATI.)

20. Evocati Pedites, or Veteran Foot.

21. Ablecti Equites (Vid. No. 25), or Horse of the Consular life-guards.

22. Ablecti Pedites, or foot of the Consular life-guards.

23. A cross street one hundred feet wide.

24. A street fifty feet wide.

25. Extraordinarii Equites. A third part of the allied horse, and a fifth part of the allied foot, were selected, and posted near the consul, under the name of Extraordinarii, and one troop of horse, and maniple of foot, called ABLECTI, or Selecti, to serve as his life-guard.

26. Extraordinarii Pedites.

27. Quarters for strangers coming to the camp.

28. A space two hundred feet broad, between the outermost tents and the rampart.

29. Rampart, or Vallum.

30. Ditch, usually nine feet deep and twelve feet broad.

31. Porta Principâlis Dextra.

32. Porta Principâlis Sinistra.

33. Porta Decumāna (i. e. Decimāna, from decem, ten,) so called because all the tens of the maniples end here.

34. Porta Prætoria.

35. A traverse breastwork, with a ditch, opposite to, and protecting, each of the gates. (Anthon's Cæsar.)

Catapulta, a military engine for discharging stones, arrows, and other missiles. (Vid. BALISTA.)

Catamantalēdes, is, a nobleman of the nation of the Sequāni, who, for many years, enjoyed the supreme authority over that people.

Cativolcus, i, a nobleman of the nation of the Eburōnes. He and Ambiōrix, at the instigation of Indutiomārus, excited the people to take up arms against the Romans. Having made an unsuccessful attack upon the Roman camp under the lieutenants, Titurius Sabīnus, and L. Aurunculēius Cotta, they demanded a conference, in which Ambiōrix stated, that from gratitude to Cæsar, he considered himself bound to inform his lieutenant, that all the states of Gaul had agreed to attack the Roman camp in one day, that a great body of Germans had passed the Rhine, and that no time was to be lost in joining Cicëro or Labiēnus, neither of whom were fifty miles distant. At the same time, he gave his solemn promise, that they should have a secure retreat through his territories. This artifice, through the folly or cowardice of Sabīnus, succeeded. They left their camp, were attacked by a powerful army under Ambiōrix and Cativolcus, and were almost to a man cut in pieces. Cæsar afterwards completely routed them; and Cativolcus, from his great age, being unable to bear the fatigues of war, poisoned himself by drinking the juice of the yew-tree.

Caturīges, gum, a people of Gaul, who lived near the Alpes Maritimæ, at the S. E. extremity of Dauphiné.

Cavarinus, i, a nobleman whom Cæsar, in prejudice of his brother Moritasgus, the reigning sovereign, appointed king over his countrymen, the Senōnes, an honor which his ancestors had long enjoyed. The Senōnes formed the design of publicly assassinating him, but having received intelligence of the plot, he saved his life by fleeing to the camp of Cæsar.

Celtæ, arum, the most powerful and numerous of all the nations of Gaul, who occupied nearly one-half of the country, and from whom that division was called Celtica. Their territories were bounded by the river Garumna, (Garonne,) on the south; the Sequāna, (Seine,) and the Matrōna, (Marne,) on the north; by Mount Jura on the east; and Mare Atlantīcum, (Atlantic Ocean,) on the west.

Cenimagni, ōrum, an ancient people of Britain, who, with the Segontiāci, Ancalites, Bibrōci, and Cassi, followed the example of the Trinobantes, and submitted to Cæsar. These nations are supposed to have inhabited the counties of Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk, Hertford, Buckingham, Oxford, and Berkshire.

Censor, is, a Censor, a Roman magistrate whose number from first to last was uniformly two. They were appointed (A. U. 312,) to take an account of the number of the people, and the value of their fortunes, and superintend the public morals. They were chosen from the most reputable persons of consular rank, at first only from the patricians but afterwards likewise from the plebians. They were chosen every five years, but continued in office only a year and a half. For any dishonorable action they had the power to erase the name of a Senator from the list, deprive an eques of his horse and ring, and any other citizen they could degrade and deprive of all the privileges of a Roman citizen, except liberty.

The title of Censor was even more honorable than that of Consul, though attended with less power. No one could be elected a second time, and those who filled it were remarkable for leading an irreproachable life; so that to be descended from a censorian family was considered a distinguished ornament of nobility.

Census, ūs, m. was a general review of the people, estimating their estates, and proportioning their share of the public taxes. Every man was obliged to give in to the Censors his own name, residence and occupation, his wife's name, and the names of his children with their ages, the number of his slaves, and a minute and accurate account of his property. The goods of the person, who made a false return, were confiscated, and he himself, after being scourged, was sold for a slave. By that act he had, in the opinion of the state, deemed himself unworthy of the privileges and honors of a Roman citizen. Servius Tullius, the 6th king of Rome, appointed the Census, in order to ascertain the number of men able to bear arms, and the amount of the whole wealth possessed by the citizens, and consequently what sums could be levied from them. It was held in the Campus Martius, where the Censors, seated in curule chairs, attended by their clerks and public officers, commanded the citizens to be called before them, each in his own tribe. If nothing immoral or improper could be charged against a senator or knight, they passed without remark; but if otherwise, the senators were expelled the senate, and the public horse taken from the knight. The other citizens were raised to a higher tribe, if their wealth had increased, or sunk to a lower tribe, if diminished; improper conduct deprived them of their right of voting, or subjected them to be taxed like strangers. A minute register of the whole was kept, and must have been of great advantage to the whole community, as determining with precision not only their number, but also their wealth. It ought to have been held at the end of every five years; but it is manifest from Roman history, that this period was not pointedly observed. At the end of this survey of the people they were ordered to attend a lustration, called, from sacrificing, a sow, a sheep, and a bull, Suovetaurilia. The precedence at this sacrifice was decided by lot, and he on whom the lot fell was at the conclusion said "lustrum condere."

Centurio, ōnis, f, (from centum, a hundred,) a centurion or commander of a hundred men. The constitution of the Roman legion admitted of a gradation from the lowest centurion of the Hastāti, up to the first of the Triarii, who was called Primpilus, q. v. To the first captaincy, the meanest common soldier might aspire. Promotion in the Roman army could be obtained only by merit; appointments by purchase were unknown. This wise regulation produced the happiest effects. Besides each cohort having six centurions, and consequently each legion sixty, opened a wide field for promotion, and suggested numerous excitements to valor and heroism.

Centrōnes, um (B. G. I. 5,) a nation of Gaul in the Alpes Graiæ, who, along with the Garocēli and Caturīges, were defeated by Cæsar in several engagements. There was another tribe, or horde, of this name, who were subject to the Nervii, a nation of Gallia Belgica, (B. G. Ch. V. 38.)

Cherusci, ōrum, m. a nation of Germany, between the rivers Albis, (Elbe,) and the Visurgis, (Weser.)

Cicēro, ōnis, (Quintus Tullius,) the brother of Marcus Tullius Cicēro, the celebrated orator, was, after the expiration of his prætorship, proconsul of Asia for three years. He gained considerable reputation as one of Cæsar's lieutenants in Gaul. At the commencement of the civil war, he, in opposition to the advice of his brother, attached himself to Pompey. After Cæsar had defeated the republicans at Pharsalia, both Quintus and his son solicited the favor of the conqueror, by unjustly imputing their misconduct to the orator. So far was Cicero from resenting this injustice, that he used his utmost efforts for their safety and interest. Both perished in the proscription of the second triumvirate.

Cimberius, i, the brother of Nasua, who headed the 100 cantons of the Suēvi, who had left their native country, and encamped on the banks of the river Rhenus, (Rhine,) with the view of crossing that river, and settling in Gaul.

Cimbri, ōrum, (sing. Cimber, ri,) a German nation, supposed to be descended from the Asiatic Cimmerians, whose country was, from them, called the Chersonēsus Cimbrīca, (Jutland,) which now forms part of the kingdom of Denmark. About 113, B. C. the Cimbri, leaving their territories, which were both narrow and barren, and being joined by the Teutōnes, a neighboring people, defeated several German nations, and a Roman consul with his army, who had been sent against them. They invaded, and seem to have overrun, a great part of Gaul; and being strengthened by the accession of many of the tribes who inhabited that country, marched against Rome. After slaughtering the whole army of Cæpio and Mallius, except ten men and two generals, C. Marius marched against them, slew 120,000 and took 60,000 prisoners. Though only an inconsiderable people in the days of Tacitus, it is manifest, that the sagacity of that profound historian was apprehensive of the final destruction of the Roman state by the hordes of Germany, which actually happened about 300 years after his death.

Cingetōrix, īgis, a nobleman who headed that party in the state of the Trevīri, which was formerly attached to Cæsar. In consequence of his fidelity to the Romans, he was, by means of his father-in-law, Indutiomārus, declared a public enemy, and his estate confiscated.

Cingetōrix, īgis, one of the four kings of Cantium, (Kent,) who, by order of Cassivelaunus, made an attack on Cæsar's naval camp.

Clepsydra, æ, f. an instrument contrived to measure time by water. The merit of this invention belongs to the Egyptians, as well as the discovery of the sun-dial.

There were different kinds of Clepsydræ among the ancients; which, however, were all constructed on this principle, that the water ran through a narrow passage from one vessel to another, and that on the surface of the water in the lower vessel, to the side of which a scale of hours was affixed, floated a piece of cork, which shewed the hour. It is manifest the water would be discharged with a rapidity proportioned to the quantity, and that, of course, it ran fastest when the vessel was full, and gradually became slower as the less water remained. Hence if the upper vessel discharged its water in twelve hours, and the under one was an exact cylinder having its height divided into 144 equal parts, the water in the first hour would rise twenty-three of these parts, in the second hour, twenty-one, in the third, nineteen, &c., and the last or twelfth hour only one part. The state of the atmosphere would have considerable influence on the clepsydra, a defect which the ingenuity of a modern French philosopher, William Amontons, has completely remedied. By means of several important inventions he also freed it from other less inconveniences to which it was subject; and rendered it a very accurate divisor of time.

Cocosātes, um, a people of Aquitania in Gaul, whose country lay along the coast of Oceānus Cantabrīcus, (Bay of Biscay.) to the north of the territories of the Tarbelli. Their chief town was Cocōsa.

Clypeus, i. a round shield of a smaller size than the Scutum, which see.

Cohors, tis, a division of the Roman legion. See Legio.

Comius, i, one of the nation of the Atrēbātes, hence called Comius Atrēbas, whom Cæsar appointed king over that people in return for his important services. He afterwards fell under the suspicion of Labiēnus, who employed C. Volusēnus Quādrātus to kill him in an interview. This perfidious design did not succeed. But in the scuffle, Comius was wounded in the head. He was, from that period, a violent enemy to the Romans. Being at last defeated, he was obliged to submit to Antony, which he did, on condition that he should not appear before any Roman. On these terms, Antony granted him peace.

Condrūsi, ōrum, a people of Belgic Gaul, who lived on the river Mosa, (Mæse, or Meuse.) north of Silva Arduenna.

Considius Longus, (Caius, i,) a partisan of Pompey, who was at one time the governor of Adrumētum. He committed several acts of enormous cruelty. Considius afterwards commanded at Tisdra a garrison of Gætulians, and, on hearing of the defeat of his party, fled from that town with his treasures. Escaping from these barbarians and taking the road for Numidia, he was pursued by them, and to obtain possession of his money, they put him to death.

Consul, ūlis, a consul; the official title of the two chief magistrates of the Roman state. They were first created after the expulsion of the kings, A. U. 244. They had the same badges as the kings, except the crown, and nearly the same power. In time of war they had supreme command; one accompanied the army as commander-in-chief, and the other remained at Rome; or, if necessary, commanded another army, leaving the government in charge of the Prætor. They levied soldiers, appointed the greater part of the officers, and provided what was necessary for their support.

When any dangerous conjuncture arose, the consuls were armed with absolute power by the Senate, which solemnly decreed that they should take care that the republic received no harm. If any serious tumult or sedition occurred, they called the citizens to arms by proclaiming "Let those who wish to save the republic follow me;" and this was usually sufficient to check it.

The authority of the consuls was first impaired by the creation of Tribunes of the people, and afterwards by the Emperors. The office however was retained, and the consuls, after their power was gone, were still employed in consulting the Senate, administering justice, managing the public games and the like; and the year was usually characterized by their names.

At first the consuls were chosen from the Patricians only, but afterwards from the Plebians also. They were elected annually, and to be a candidate it was necessary to be forty-three years of age,—to have gone through the inferior offices of Quæstor, Ædile, and Prætor,—and to be present in a private station.

Proconsul, ûlis, a proconsul, a person invested with consular authority for the government of a conquered country. The consuls, at the expiration of their offices, were generally appointed proconsuls, and soon after quitted the city to take charge of their province. Their powers, though subject to the will of the senate and authority of the people, were very extensive. They had the appointment of the taxes and of the contributions imposed on the country, and it cannot be denied, that avarice and rapacity too often trampled on the principles of justice and humanity. To the honor of the Senate it must be mentioned, that they frequently punished acts both of extortion and cruelty. These crimes, however, were generally very flagrant before they became the subject of prosecution.

Proconsularis, is, e, of or belonging to a proconsul, or the proconsulship, proconsular.

Consularis, e, adj. of or belonging to a consul; consular; one who had been a consul; a man of consular rank.

Cotta, æ, (Lucius Aurunculæius,) a lieutenant in Cæsar's army, who suspected the stratagem of Ambiörix, and therefore endeavored to convince his colleague Sabinus of the impropriety of following the treacherous advice of that crafty Gaul, but without effect. Unwilling that any enmity, from difference of opinion, should exist between them, he at last yielded, and his compliance cost him his life. Ambiörix, at the distance of two miles from the camp, lay in ambuscade, and when crossing a large valley, made a furious attack on the Roman forces, in which Cotta, after displaying singular bravery, was killed, and almost the whole of the two legions.

Crassus, i, (Marcus Licinius,) surnamed Dives, on account of his prodigious wealth, was, in early life, very poor, but by trafficking in slaves, and by other dishonorable practices, soon acquired great riches. To escape the cruelties of Cinna, he fled to Spain, where he had formerly passed some years with his father, when governor of that country; and remained eight months concealed in a cave. On hearing of Cinna's death, he raised 2,500 men, for whom he procured shipping, sailed to Africa, and attached himself to Metellus Pius. The friendship of Crassus with Metellus was not of long continuance. He then formed an alliance with Sulla, and was of great service to him in the civil war. The military talents of Crassus were greatly inferior to those of Pompey, who, on that account, necessarily stood higher in the favor of Sulla. Hence the enmity of these two powerful citizens, which all the address and eloquence of Cæsar could scarcely subdue. The great object of Crassus seems to have been the accumulation of wealth. Besides buying the estates of the proscribed, he had recourse to other base and scandalous means in order to increase his overgrown fortune.

Crassus was not however, destitute of bravery or generosity. He was honored with an ovation for putting an end to the war with Spartacus by a decisive engagement, in which 12,000 of the slaves were killed. He used frequently to lend money to his friends without interest. After entertaining the populace at 10,000 tables, giving to every citizen corn to support him for three months, and consecrating the tenth part of his property to Hercules, he was worth 7,100 talents. He used to say that no man, who could not maintain an army ought to be called rich. His slaves whom he had ingenuity enough to employ so profitably that they not only defrayed their own expenses, but added greatly to the wealth of their master, were, in number, equal to an army.

A reconciliation between Crassus and Pompey was, at last, effected by Cæsar. The iniquitous combination of these three men to destroy the liberties of their fellow-citizens, was called the first triumvirate. Less solicitous for honor than riches, Crassus, in this division of the empire, chose Syria for his province, in expectation of making large additions to his fortune. Without the authority of the senate, he crossed the Euphrates and advanced against that country. But he was deceived by Agbārus, an Arabian, defeated by the Parthians, and his army nearly annihilated. He then fled with a small number of his soldiers to Carræ, a town of Mesopotamia, and was prevailed on to meet Surēna, on pretence of negotiating a peace, where he was treacherously put to death. The Parthians cut off his head, and, in contempt of his avarice, poured melted gold into his mouth. The bond of union between Pompey and Cæsar, which had been greatly weakened by the death of Julia, was finally dissolved by that of Crassus. They had now recourse to arms, and their struggles for the superiority terminated in the final extinction of Roman liberty.

Cretenses, ium, the inhabitants of Creta, æ, vel, Crete, es, f. a large island in the Mediterranean Sea, opposite to Mare Ægeum, (Archipelago.) From its principal city, it is now called Candia. Cres, Cretis, m. et Cressa, æ, f. a native of Crete or Candia. Cretis, idis, of Crete or Candia, with relation to a female, or to a noun feminine.

Curiosolitæ, arum, and Curiosolites, um, a people of Gallia Celtica, among Armoricas Civitates, whose country was afterwards called Bretagne

D.

DACI, orum, the inhabitants of Dacia a country corresponding to the modern Wallachia, Transylvania, Moldavia, and that part of Hungary which lies to the east of the Tibiscus or Teiss; B. VI. Ch. 25.

Danubius, i, the Danube, the largest river in Europe, rises in the black forest in Germany, (according to Strabo and Pliny, in the mountain Abnoba,) runs in an easterly direction, through Austria, Germany, Hungary, part of Turkey in Europe, and discharges itself into Pontus Euxinus, (the Black Sea.) The ancients gave the name of Ister to the eastern part of this river, after its junction with the Savus, (Save.) Though of great breadth and depth in many places, it is not generally navigable on account of the cataracts. Strabo, Diodorus Siculus, Tacitus, and Pliny, have given descriptions of this river in many respects different, and all exceedingly inaccurate. With the whole course of the Danube the Greeks and Romans were very imperfectly acquainted. Their knowledge of the countries to the north of this large river, was almost wholly obtained by vague report from unlettered barbarians; and, of course, very incorrect.

In the decline of the Roman empire, it became better known to that people, in consequence of almost all the barbarous nations, who assailed that state, commencing hostilities by ravaging the country on the banks of the Danube. But learning had sunk with the state, and no minute or accurate account of this river is found in classic authors.

Decumāna (porta), the rear gate of the Roman camp, (See Castra) so called because the tens of the maniples were stationed there.

Decurio, ōnis, m. (from decem, ten,) an officer of the cavalry among the Romans, who commanded ten men. Each Turma, or troop of horse, had three Decuriōnes, and each Decurio chose a subaltern, who was, on that account, called Optio.

Delectus, ūs, (from deligo, to choose,) a military term to denote the levying or enrolment of soldiers. The consuls, after they entered on their office, appointed a day, on which all who were of the military age (from 17 to 46,) should be present in the capitol. On the day appointed, the consuls seated in their curule chairs, assisted by the military or legionary tribunes, held a levy, unless hindered by the tribunes of the commons. It was determined by lot in what order the tribes should be called. The consuls ordered such as they pleased to be cited out of each tribe; and every one was obliged to answer to his name under a severe penalty. They were careful to choose those first who had what were thought lucky names; as, Valerius, Sabinus, Statorius, &c. Their names were written down on tables, hence, Scribere milites, to enlist, to levy, or to raise soldiers.

Diablintes, ium, et Diablitæ, et Dianlitæ, arum, a people of Gallia Celtica, on the river Meduāna, (Maine.) Their chief town was Neodunum, afterwards Diablintes, now Jublens.

Dictator, ōris, m. a Dictator, an extraordinary Magistrate at Rome, who possessed absolute authority over not only the lives and fortunes of his fellow citizens, but even over the laws themselves. A free government could admit of such an officer being appointed only on important and alarming conjunctures. We find from Roman history that the first Dictator was chosen during the wars with the Latins, (499 B. C.) and that his appointment was a consequence of the plebeians refusing to enlist, and of the consuls being unable to protect the state. Unless when threatened with imminent danger, either from domestic sedition or foreign wars, the consuls held the highest office, and the laws set bounds to their powers; but the Dictator knew no restriction. Twenty-four Lic-tors preceded him, and, whilst he remained in office, the functions of the other magistrates, with the exception of that of Tribunes of the people, were suspended. He proclaimed war, levied forces, and marched against the enemy; or made peace or disbanded them whenever he pleased. Execution followed his decision, and from his judgment lay no appeal. At the expiration of his office, which could not exceed six months, he might be called to an account for his conduct; but few instances of it occur in the annuals of Rome. Bravery does not extirpate credulity, nor does greatness of mind obliterate the fictions of ignorance. Though a nation of intrepid warriors, the Romans were credulous and superstitious. Hence to avert a plague, to remove some dreadful calamity, or to stop the progress of an invading enemy, they sometimes named a Dictator to drive a nail into the temple of Jupiter, which trivial and absurd ceremony they thought possessed these virtues. They sometimes too appointed a Dictator to hold the comitia, or to celebrate public festivals, and once to choose Senators. But for these purposes, except on particular occasions, the state had seldom recourse to the election of that magistrate.

Dies, ei, m. & f. a day, or that space of time which elapses from the first appearance of light in the morning, till the return of darkness at night. It is more generally used to denote the time the sun is visible, or above the horizon, which strictly speaking constitutes a solar day. The term has frequently a more extended signification, and includes the night. This forms the Astronomical day, and has also been called the Natural or Civil day. It exceeds the Siderial day, or a complete revolution of the earth on its axis, by three minutes and fifty-six seconds. Different nations begin the day at different times. Among the Romans the natural day began when the sun first appeared above the horizon, which was called the first hour, and ended with that luminary disappearing, which was the twelfth hour. This mode of dividing that space of time during which the sun is visible into twelve parts, though still followed in Turkey, must have been attended with great inconvenience. The hours thus varied with the length of the day and those of the night were subject to the same alteration. Besides, the hours of these two portions of time could be equal only twice a year, viz: at the Equinoxes, (See Hora.) The civil day began at midnight, when the third watch commenced. With us, and most of the nations of Europe, the day is reckoned from midnight to midnight. The Jews began their day at sun-setting, and like the Romans divided it into twelve hours; and the night with them also consisted of twelve hours. It may not be improper to observe that astronomers generally compute from noon to noon, reckoning in a numeral succession from one to twenty-four hours, and not by two twelves agreeably to common usage.

Dis, itis, the god of riches, Pluto.

Divīco, ōnis, a nobleman of great influence among the Helvetii, who commanded the army in the war against Cassius, and was at the head of the embassy sent by that state to Cæsar, after three-fourths of their forces had crossed the Arar, (Saône), and he had attacked and killed a great part of the other fourth.

Divitiācus, i, a nobleman of the Ædui, who had great influence with Cæsar, in consequence of his steady attachment to the Romans.

Druīdes, um, v. Druīdæ, arum, (a term of doubtful etymology), Druids, the priests of the ancient Britons, Gauls, and Germans. Besides supreme authority in all matters of religion, their power extended to all public and private differences, and what is of much greater consequence, to making, explaining, and executing the laws. This exorbitant jurisdiction was necessarily attended with every mark of power. They were exempted from taxes and military service, and their persons were held sacred and inviolable. Among the Gauls there were only two classes of any note, the Druids and Equites, of which that of the Druids was the more illustrious. Their authority in many instances, surpassing that of the nobles, it is not surprising that they were, in general, sons of the first families. The worship and sacrifices of these priests were performed in deep groves, chiefly under an oak, which was their favorite tree. It was reckoned unlawful to commit any of their doctrines to writing; hence, many of their peculiar tenets are now unknown. It is generally supposed they believed in the immortality of the soul, and also the metempsychosis. Of natural philosophy, astronomy, arithmetic, and botany, it cannot be doubted their knowledge was very considerable. To the study of rhetoric they paid great attention, and to the charms of their eloquence, much of the admiration and power which they enjoyed, may be justly ascribed. Britain was, according to Cæsar, the great school of the Druids, whose chief settlement was Anglesey, called Mona by Tacitus. The natives of Gaul and Germany, who wished to be thoroughly versant in the mysteries of Druidism, resorted to this island to complete their studies. At what time the Druids were wholly suppressed in Britain, is uncertain. But from the introduction of Christianity, their power and influence began to decline. It is worthy of remark, that some of their superstitious doctrines, and modes of predicting future events, are not, at this day, entirely forgotten in many parts of the island.

Dubis, is, m. the Doux, a river of Gallia, (France,) which originates in a small lake near mount Jura, and after a southwest course of sixty leagues, falls into the Arar, (Saone,) near to Ca-billōnum, (Chalons.)

Dumnōrix, īgis, one of the Ædui, and brother of Divitiācus. He persuaded the noblemen of Gallia, (France,) not to go with Cæsar into Britain, withdrew privately from the Roman camp, and was killed by the soldiers who were sent in pursuit of him, in consequence of his obstinacy in refusing to return. His character will be found in B. G. I. 18.

Durocortōrum, i, n. the capital of the Remi, now called Rheims, on the Vesle, one of the branches of the river Axōna, (Aisne.)

E.

EBURŌNES, um, (Eburōnes, in Greek), a people of Gallia Belgica, whose territories lay on both sides of the river Mosa, (Mæse, or Meuse,) at its junction with the Sabis, (Sambre.) On their being dispossessed, they were succeeded by the Tungri. They were under the vassalage of the Treviri. Cæsar attempted to extirpate this nation; but this barbarous design, even from his own account, he was unable to carry into full effect.

Eburovices, um, a people of Gallia, (France,) on the left bank of the Sequāna, (Seine.) The Lexovii were between them and the sea. Their chief city was at first called Mediolānum, and afterwards Eburovices, now Evreux.

Elusātes, ium, a people of Aquitania, who lived on the river Atur, (Adour,) whose principal city was Elūsa, æ, f. (Euse.)

Equites, (from equus and eo,) cavalry. Of these the number belonging to each legion was 300, called justus equitātus, or ala. They were divided into ten turmæ, or troops of thirty each; and each turma into three dēcuriæ, or bodies of ten men. The office of the Equites at first was to serve in the army. They were sē lected both from the patricians and plebians; they were required, when chosen, to be 18 years of age, and to possess a fortune of 400 sestertia, ($15,472.) See Gr. App. V.

Eratosthēnes, is, a native of Cyrēne, (Cyrenæus,) the scholar of Callimāchus, and of Aristo of Chios, and the second who was intrusted with the Alexandrian library, devoted his time to criticism and philosophy. He was eminent as a poet and mathematician, but more distinguished as an astronomer and geographer. He died in the year 194 B. C. in the 82d year of his age. B. VI. Ch. 24.

Essui, ōrum, supposed to be also called Saii, ōrum, a people of Gallia, whose territories lay on the Olēna, (Orne,) adjoining to the Diablintes and Auleri Eburōnes.

Esubii, ōrum. This word occurs only in B. G. III. 7, where the readings are very different. Some copies have Esubios, or Eusubios, and others Lexuvios. The Greek has Unellos, to which Dr. Clarke, in a note, seems to give the preference, although he has retained Eusubios in the text.

Evocāti, (from evōco, to call out,) veteran soldiers, who had served out their time and received their discharge, but who were sometimes again called out into public service. This class were highly respected, and were exempted from the drudgery of military service to which the other soldiers were subjected.

Excubiæ, arum, watches either by day or night. Vigiliæ, watches by night only. These were relieved at the end of every three hours; hence the night, from sunset till sunrise, was divided into four watches, called the first, second, third, and fourth. See Gr. App. I.

Exercītus, ūs, (from exerceo, to exercise,) an army, a body of men trained to, or exercised in military service. (Agmen, from ago, an army on the march, or in marching order. Acies, an army drawn up in a line, or in battle array.) A consular army consisted of two Roman legions, (See Legio,) with the proper number of cavalry, and two legions of the allies with their cavalry, making in all about 20,000 men, or in the time of Polybius, 18,600.

F.

Fabius, i, (Caius,) one of Cæsar's lieutenants.

Fabius, i, (Quintus Fabius Maximus) a Roman consul who defeated the Avernī and Rutēni.

Funditōres, um, (from funda, a sling.) Slingers, a class of warriors usually joined with the Velītes, but not properly a part of them. They were armed with slings and stones, or bullets of lead, which from practice they threw with great precision and with so much force that neither buckler nor head-piece could resist their impetuosity. They were generally obtained from the Balearic Isles, Achaia, Crete, Arabia, &c., the Balearians being considered the best. See Velītes.

G.

GALBA, æ, the name of a branch of the Sulpicii, v. Sulpitii, or, according to others, the surname of the founder of that tribe.

Galba, æ, the king of the Suessiōnes at the time Cæsar invaded Gaul. On account of his knowledge and love of justice, he was appointed commander-in-chief of the forces raised by the Belgian states, against the power of Rome, in the second year of the Gallic war.

Galba, æ, (Sergius) was the son of C. Galba, and grandson of Servius, or Sergius Galba, a celebrated orator and the first distinguished character of that family. He held the rank of lieutenant in Cæsar's army during the Gallic war, and afterwards joined the conspiracy, which the Republican party formed against the life of that ambitious and unprincipled general.

Galea, a helmet, a defensive piece of armor, made of brass or iron, which came down to the shoulders but left the face uncovered.

Gallia,* æ, now France, (See the map,) was an extensive and populous country of Europe, bounded on the north by the British Channel; on the east by the Rhine, Mount Jura and the Alps; on the south by the Mediterranean and Spain; and on the west by the Atlantic Ocean. In the time of Cæsar it was divided into three parts; Gallia Belgica, or the country of the BELGÆ (now Belgium) occupying the northern part; Gallia Celtica, or the country of the CELTÆ, or Celts, by far the largest, and occupying the middle portion; and AQUITANIA, lying between the Garumna (Garonne), and the Pyrenees,—much smaller than either of the others. Adjoining Gaul on the east, and separated from it by Mount Jura,

* Cæsar does not use this term always in precisely the same sense. In B. I. Ch. 1, it means the whole of Gaul not then subject to the Romans; and in the same chapter it is used to denote the central division, or that possessed by the Celts. It is used in the same restricted sense, B. III. Ch. 2.

lay HELVETIA, (now part of Switzerland,) extending from Mount Jura to the Rhine, on the east; and from Lake Lemannus (Geneva) and the Rhone on the south, to the Rhine on the north. On the south and eastern border of Gallia lay what was called PROVINCIA, the Roman Province. (See Provincia.) Each of these great divisions contained within them numerous nations or tribes, all living under their respective kings or chiefs, all of which were finally brought under subjection to the Romans. The whole of this extensive country was called by the Romans Gallia Transalpina, Gaul beyond the Alps, to distinguish it from the northern part of Italy, which they called Gallia Cisalpina.

In the 27th year before the Christian æra, and twenty years after the conquest of Gaul was completed by C. Julius Cæsar, Augustus Cæsar made a new division of the whole, including Provincia Romana and Helvetia, into four grand divisions, in which more attention was paid to equality in the extent of the provinces than to the nations that inhabited them. Aquitania was extended northward and eastward to the Liger, (Loire,) Gallia Belgica on its eastern border was extended southward, taking in part of Gallia Celtica, and the whole country of the Helvetii. These four divisions were Gallia Belgica, Gallia Celtica, Aquitania, and Gallia Narbonensis (formerly Provincia, or Provincia Romana). These four divisions were again subdivided into seventeen provinces in all. And it is this division which is exhibited in the maps of ancient geography commonly in use. In the map accompanying this work, the division of the country in the time of Cæsar, and the names by which these divisions were then known, have been preferred as more suitable for such a work as this.

The whole country of Gaul from the time of its conquest by Cæsar, 47 years B. C., remained subject to the Romans, and a part of their vast empire for five hundred and fifty years. On the final dismemberment of that empire, Gaul being conquered by the Franks, (or Freemen,) a confederacy of warlike nations bordering on the Rhine, was from them called France about the beginning of the sixth century.

Galli, òrum, the Gauls, or the inhabitants of Gaul. Gallus, i, a Gaul; one of the inhabitants of Gaul.

Gallus, i, (Marcus Trebius.) a prefect or Tribune of the soldiers, sent by P. Crassus, to forage among the Curiosolitæ.

Garites, um, a people of Aquitania; to the north of the Ausci.

Garumna, æ, m. the Garonne, a river of France, which rises in the valley of Arran, to the south of St. Bernard, runs with rapidity N. N. E. to Tolōsa, (Toulouse,) afterwards N. N. W. to Guienne, and falls into Oceānus Cantabrīcus, vel, Mare Aquitanicum, (the Bay of Biscay.) The general course of this river, which extends to about 250 miles, is northwest. After its junction with the Duranius, (Dordogne,) below Burdegalia, (Bordeaux,) it assumes the name of Gironde. According to Julius Cæsar's division of Gaul, the Garonne was the boundary of Aquitania, and separated that district from Gallia Celtica, It is navigable to Toulouse, and communicates with the Mediterranean by means of the Royal Canal, about 180 miles long, made through Languedoc by Louis XIV.

Genēva, æ, f. Geneva, a town at the western extremity of Lacus Lemānus, (the Lake of Geneva,) on the south bank of the Rhodānus, (Rhone.) From Geneva towards Mount Jura, Cæsar raised a mole or rampart of earth, nineteen miles in length.

In modern times, Geneva is a considerable city, nearly two miles in circumference, and contains thirty thousand inhabitants. Besides being neatly built, it is strongly fortified, and remarkable for its beautiful situation, fine walks, and delightful prospects. Calvin spent the latter part of his life at Geneva, and his followers have, ever since, held the government of the city.

Germania, æ, f. Germany, a large country of Europe, bounded on the south by the Danubius, (Danube;) on the east by the Vistūla, (Vistula;) on the north by Codanus Sinus, vel, Mare Suevicum, (the Baltic Sea;) and on the west by the Rhenus, (Rhine,) and Oceānus Germanicus, (the German Sea.)

Germānus, i, pl. i, ōrum, the people of Germany; Germans.

Getūli, ōrum, (sing. Getūlus, i,) the inhabitants of Getulia, or Gætulia, æ, f. Biledulgerid, a large country of Africa, to the south of Mauritania and Numidia. It formed part of the kingdom of Massinissa. Sallust, from books written in the Punic language which belonged to Hiempsal, gives the following character of the Getūli and Libyes:—"Africa was at first possessed by the Getulians and Libyans, a savage and untutored people, who lived on the flesh of wild beasts, or grass of the field, like cattle; subject to no established customs, laws or government, a race of wanderers, who had no settled habitation, and who lay down to rest wherever night overtook them."—Sal. Bel. Jug. 18.

Gladius, i, a sword. The Roman sword was short, straight, and heavy, both for cutting and thrusting. It was worn on the right

- side, so as in drawing not to interfere with the shield. The long sword of the cavalry was curved, and was worn on the left side.
- Gordūni, ōrum, a people of the northern part of Gallia Belgica, subject to the Nervii, whose territories lay along the sea-coast, to the north of the Morīni.
- Graiocēli, ōrum, an ancient nation of Gaul, whose territories seem to have been adjacent to those of the Centrōnes and Caturiges, a people who lived among the Alps.
- Grudii, ōrum, a neighboring nation to the Gordūni. Their country was bounded on the north by the mouths of the Scaldis, (Scheldt.)

H.

- Harūdes, um, a people of Germania, (Germany), on the north bank of the Danubius, (Danube), towards the source of that river.
- Hastāti, ōrum, the name given to the first rank of the Roman legion (See Legio.)
- Helvetia, æ, f. Switzerland, a country of a triangular form, bounded on the north by the river Rhenus, (Rhine), and Lacus Brigantinus, (Lake of Constance), which separate it from Vindelicia and Germania, Germany; on the south by the Rhodānus, (Rhone), and Lacus Lemānus, (the Lake of Geneva), which divides it from Provincia Romāna; and on the west by Mount Jura which protected them from the Gauls. Hence it is manifest that Helvetia was of less extent than Switzerland. Cæsar (B. G. I. 1.) seems to consider the Helvetii as Gauls. In Lib. I. cap 24, he says, Helvetii—phalange factâ, by which is to be understood simply, that they fought in closé order, not that they drew up their troops precisely in the form of the Macedonian Phalanx, so celebrated in ancient history.
- Helvetii, ōrum, the people of Helvetia; the Helvetians.
- Hercynia, æ, f. a very extensive forest of Germany, the breadth of which, according to Cæsar, was nine days journey, and its length exceeded sixty. It extended from the territories of the Helvetii, Namnētes, and Raurāci, along the Danubius, (Danube), to the country of the Daci and Anartes; then turning to the north, it spread over many large tracts of land, and is said to have contained many different animals, unknown in other countries, of which Cæsar describes two or three kinds. Since the other forests of Germany were only branches of the Hercynian, some writers have considered it as covering nearly the whole of that extensive territory. As the country became more inhabited, the grounds were gradually cleared, and few vestiges of the ancient forest remain in modern times.

Hiberna, ōrum, winter quarters. The wars of the Romans were prosecuted chiefly in the summer. When the weather and the state of the country became unfavorable to military operations the troops were withdrawn from the field, and led into winter quarters, (hiberna.) These were strongly fortified and furnished with every accommodation, like a city, containing storehouses, (armaria,) workshops, (fabricæ;) an infirmary, (valetudinarium;) &c. Hence, from them many towns in Europe, and particularly in England, are supposed to have had their origin. This appears to be indicated by the terminations cester, or chester, from castra.

Hibernia, æ, f. Ireland, a considerable island in Mare Atlanticum, (the Atlantic Ocean.) It is washed on the east by Oceānus Verginius, (St. George's Channel;) which separates it from England; on the north by Mare Hibernicum, (Irish Sea;) which divides it from Scotland; and on all other parts by Mare Atlanticum, (the Atlantic Ocean;) of which St. George's Channel, and the Irish Sea, form but very small parts.

Hiberni, ōrum, the inhabitants of Hibernia.

Hispania, æ, f. Spain, a large country of Europe, bounded on the south by Fretum Gaditanum, or Herculeum, (the Strait of Gibraltar;) on the east by the Mediterranean, which was known among the Romans by the appellation of Nostrum Mare, and among the Greeks, of Mare Internum; on the north by the Pyrenæi Montes, (Pyrenees;) which separate it from Gallia, (France;) and Oceānus Cantabricus, (the Bay of Biscay;) on the west by Lusitania, (Portugal, included in Hispania Ulterior,) and Mare Atlanticum, (the Atlantic Ocean;) which the Greeks called Mare Externum. Its greatest length, from east to west, is 600 miles, and its greatest breadth 550. The superficial contents of this country are about 148,000 square miles. Spain, including Portugal, was, by the Romans, divided into two parts, Hispania Citerior, (Hither Spain;) and Hispania Ulterior, (Farther Spain;) hence, duæ Hispaniæ, the two Spains, or Hispaniæ, Spains. The former, or northern, comprehending an extent of country equal to three-fourths of modern Spain, the latter, or southern, the rest of the country. These two divisions were sometimes governed by proconsuls, but more commonly by prætors.

In the reign of Augustus, Hispania Citerior was, from Tarrāco, its principal city, called Tarraconensis, and Hispania Ulterior was divided into Lusitania and Bætica. The former appellation was derived from the Lusitani, the most powerful of the nations who inhabited that country, and the latter, from Bætis, the Gualquivir, a very large river, which watered that province.

Hispani, ōrum, the people of Hispania.

Hora, æ, f. an hour. Among the Romans it was the twelfth part of the day. The first hour commenced with the rising of the sun, and the twelfth ended with his setting. It is manifest that the portion of time denominated an hour by them, was constantly changing, and was of equal length to our hour only at the equinoxes. At these two periods of the year, and at them only, their first hour corresponded to our 7 o'clock in the morning; the second to eight, third to 9, fourth to 10, and fifth to 11; but their sixth hour or noon (meridies) coincided exactly with our 12 o'clock noon, or mid-day throughout the whole year. Their 7th then answered to our 1 in the afternoon, 8th to 2, 9th to 3, 10th to 4, 11th to 5, and 12th to 6. At the summer solstice, or longest day, the sun rises at Rome a few minutes past 4 o'clock, and sets the same number of minutes before 8, consequently their hour is, at that time, nearly $\frac{1}{4}$ longer than ours, and at the winter solstice it will be as much shorter.

I.

Iccius, i, m. one of the ambassadors whom the Rhemi sent to Cæsar in the second year of the Gallic war.

Iccius, i, (sc. portus), a harbor in the country of the Morini, in Gallia Belgica, which, according to some, was Boulogne, and, according to others, Vissant, or Calais. Ptolemy mentions it as a promontory, although it cannot be doubted that there was likewise a cognominal harbor. From his description, this seems to be the place which he had in view. It could not be Calais. Cæsar set out from Iccius Portus, when he sailed the second time for Britain.

Idus, uum, f. the Ides, one of the divisions of the Roman month. In March, July, and October, the Ides were on the 15th, and in the other months, on the 13th. Like the Kalends, and Nones, the Ides were reckoned backwards. (See Gr. App. I.)

Illyricum, (Croatia, Bosnia, and Slavonia), a country opposite to Italy, bordering on the Adriatic. It was bounded on the south by Macedonia; on the east by Mæsia and Pannonia; on the north by

NOŕicum; and on the west by Histia and Mare Adriaticum, vel. Supërum, (the Gulf of Venice.)

Imanuentius, i, m. a Briton, the father of Mandubratius, and king of the Trinobantes. He was killed by Cassivellaunus.

Impedimenta, òrum, baggage; (from impedio, to hinder.) The heavier baggage of the Romans, such as tents, mills, &c. was carried on beasts of burden; sometimes, though more seldom, on baggage wagons, (carri.) Every thing else was carried by the soldiers themselves, each of whom usually carried provisions for fifteen days, usually corn, sometimes dressed food, a saw, a basket, a mattock or axe, a reaper's hook and leathern thong, a chain, a pot, usually three or four stakes, sometimes more, for the vallum, amounting in all, exclusive of armor, to 60 pounds; and under this load they commonly marched 20 miles a day, sometimes more.

Indutiomärus, i, a chief man among the Treviri, father-in-law to Cingetörix, who attacked Labiënus, but was repulsed, and slain.

Italia, æ, f. Italy, a large and celebrated country of Europe, bounded on the south by Fretum Siculum, (the Strait of Messina,) which separates it from Sicily; on the northeast by Mare Adriaticum, or Supërum, (the Gulf of Venice,) which divides it from Græcia, (Greece,) now part of Turkey in Europe. The Alps, (Alps,) form the boundary between Italy and Germany on the north; and on the southwest it is washed by that part of the Mediterranean, formerly called Mare Tyrrhënum, Tuscum, or Infërum, now the Tuscan Sea. The Appeninus, (Appenines,) forms a ridge of mountains which extends from the Alps to Rhegium, (Reggio,) the whole length of the country. The sources of all the rivers in Italy are found in these mountains. Roma, (Rome,) for many years the seat of universal empire, was the capital of Italy. From it, the inhabitants of Italy were frequently called Romani, a name originally given only to the natives of that city and its territory, which was long very small.

Itäli, òrum, the people of Italia; Italians.

Itius Portus, a harbor in the country of the Morini, from which Cæsar sailed on his second expedition against Britain. See Iccius.

J.

JUGUM, i, a yoke. This consisted of two spears or pieces of wood set upright in the ground, a little space apart, over which a third was laid across the top, the whole resembling the Greek II.

Under this frame the soldiers of conquered armies were often obliged to pass naked, (nudi,) i. e. without their armor, which was previously laid down.

Jumenta, ōrum, beasts of burden, (horses, mules, asses, &c.) used by the Romans for carrying their heavier baggage. (See Impedimenta.)

Junius, i, (Quintus, i,) a Spaniard who was frequently sent by Cæsar to converse with Ambiōrix.

Jura, æ, m. a chain of mountains which, extending from the Rhodanus, (Rhone,) to the Rhenus, (Rhine,) separated Helvetia, (Switzerland,) from that part of Gallia Celtica which the Sequāni possessed, now called Franche Compté. Vosëgus, (Vauge,) is a branch, or an extension of Mount Jūra.

Justus equitātus, the complement of cavalry attached to a Legion; three hundred in number, exclusive of the horsemen of the allies

K.

KALENDÆ, or Calendæ, arum, f. the Kalends, the name given by the Romans to the first day of every month. A priest was appointed to give notice to the people of the change of the moon, or when the new moon was first visible. This term appears to be derived from the Greek verb καλέω, I call. (See Gr. App. I.)

L.

LABERIUS, (Quintus, L. Durus,) a tribune of the soldiers in Cæsar's army. He was killed in Britain, B. G. V. 15.

Labiënus, i, (Titus, i,) one of Cæsar's lieutenants in the Gallic war. In the beginning of the Civil war he deserted to Pompey, escaped from the battle of Pharsalia, and was killed in that of Munda.

Latobrīgi, ōrum, a people who appear to have been neighbors of the Helvetii Raurāci and Tulingi, but of whom little is known with certainty.

Legātus, i, m. a lieutenant-general, who was both appointed by, and acted immediately under, the consul, or Commander-in-chief. The number of these officers varied in proportion to the greatness or importance of the war. Each legion had at least one, often two. When separated from the main army, sent into winter quarters, &c. the lieutenant-general, being the deputy of the commander, had the honor to be the highest officer.

At their first institution, the Legati were counsellors to the governors of provinces, and decided all causes of minor importance; but held no military rank. Hence the word primarily denoted an Ambassador. Their admission into the army naturally resulted from that place of intimacy and confidence. Under the emperors the term became a common appellation for all invested with the highest military command in foreign countries.

Legio, ōnis, f. a legion, or body of soldiers consisting of different numbers at different times. In the early part of the reign of Romulus, the legion contained 3,000 foot, and 300 horse, which he, on the increase of the citizens by the admission of the Sabines, raised to 4,000. To that number 1,000 was added during the war which Hannibal carried on in Italia, (Italy), about 216 years B. C. but a reduction of 500 had taken place before the time Polybius wrote his history. Livy states that the legion consisted of 5,000 foot, and Vegetius, of 6,000 foot. It cannot be doubted that these historians recorded the exact number, which constituted a complete legion in their respective times. The legion consisted of ten cohorts, each cohort of three maniples, and each maniple of two centuries; and in the order of battle the troops were drawn up in three lines, first the Hastāti; second, the Principes; and third, the Triarii. Those who formed the first line were called Hastāti, from their fighting with Hasta, a long spear, which was afterwards laid aside on account of its being inconvenient. They were the flower of the Roman youth. The second line consisted of the same number of maniples, but of men more advanced in life, and of greater military experience, who were called Principes, probably from their being at one time the first line. Their arms were heavy. The Triarii made up the third line, and seem to have been a body of reserve. They were frequently, from Pilum, a javelin, called Pilāni, and the Hastāti and Principes, Antepilāni, from being stationed before them. The Velites generally skirmished before the lines, sometimes between them, and appear to have been what the moderns call Irregulars. They had light armor, hence called expediti, levis armaturæ, &c. The archers and slingers were attached to this body. According to that historian, twenty Velites seem to have belonged to each maniple. They were, in battle, not formed into cohorts, or maniples, but fought in such parties and in such places as the commander judged most advantageous.

In the early ages of the Roman state, their army in battle order was drawn up, like the Macedonian phalanx, in a continued line. This fact rests on the authority of Livy. The disposition into three lines, and arranging in maniples at some distance from each other seems an improvement of later times. When the Hastāti yielded to the superior force or bravery of the enemy, they fell back to the Principes, who filled up the spaces between the maniples, and with them they renewed the charge. If both were forced to give way, the Triarii came up, and a third attack was made on the enemy. Hence, ad triarios ventum est, it is come to the last push; matters are in the utmost danger. The cavalry fought on the wings, but their exact form or position is not certainly known. It probably did not differ very much from the practice of the moderns. If after the whole force was brought into action the enemy still prevailed, they of necessity submitted to a defeat.

All the cohorts of the legion were manifestly on an equal footing in the army of Cæsar, and no preference seems to have been either acknowledged or claimed. The only vestige of the ancient division was the officers retaining their former appellations, as Primus hastātus, Primus pilus, &c. Cæsar frequently kept the third line as a body of reserve.

Lemānus (Lacus), the Lake of Geneva, is a most beautiful expanse of water, in the form of a crescent, the convex side of which is upwards of fifty-four miles long. Its hollow side is towards Switzerland, and its greatest breadth measures about twelve miles. The Rhodānus, (Rhone), descending from the Alps, traverses the whole length of the lake, and renders the water at its entrance turbid, on account of the quantity of earth and mud brought down from these steep mountains. Like the other waters and lakes of Switzerland, for nearly an hour in the evening, after the sun is hid behind Mount Jura, it shines with a splendor resembling burnished gold, by the reflection of the solar rays from the Glaciers.

Leponti, ōrum, a people of the Alps, near the source of the Rhodānus, (Rhone), on the south of that river.

Levāci, ōrum, a people in the northern part of Gallia Belgica, on the Scaldiš, (Scheldt), between the Nervii and Grudii. The Centrōnes, Grudii, Levāci, Pleumosii, and Gordūni. were vassals of the Nervii. B. G. V. 39.

Leuci, ōrum, a Belgic nation who lived between the Mosa, (Meuse), and the Mosella, (Moselle), near the source of that river.

Lexovii, ōrum, a people of Gallia Celtica, whose country was bounded on the north by the Sequana, (Seine), and on the west by Fretum Gallicum, or, Britannicum, (the English Channel.)

Liger, ěris, or Ligěris, is, m. the Loire, a large river of Gaul, which takes its rise in the country of the Helvii, runs N. N. W. and after a course of 200 miles, falls into Oceānus Cantabricus, (Bay of Biscay.) According to the division of Gaul made by Augustus, the Loire was the northern boundary of Aquitania.

Lingōnes, um, a people of Gaul whose territories included Mount Vosegus, (Vauge), consequently the sources of the rivers Mosa, (Meuse), and Matrōna, (Marne.) Their chief town was Andomadūnum, or Andomatūnum, afterwards Lingōnes, now Langres.

Liscus, i, one of the Supreme magistrates of the Ædui, who along with Divitiācus and other chiefs of that nation, was in Cæsar's camp in the Gallic war, and informed him of the conduct and plans of Dumnōrix.

Lituus, i, a clarion, bent a little at the end like an augur's staff. It was used for the cavalry. The tuba was straight and employed by the infantry. The cornu was bent almost round. The buccina was commonly used for changing the watches.

Lorica, æ, a coat of mail, generally made of leather, covered with plates of iron in the form of scales, or iron rings twisted within one another like chains. It is also used to denote a battlement, or defence of towers and walls, constructed of stone or of hurdles.

Lucinius, i, (Quintus, i) a centurion of the first rank, who was killed in attempting to rescue his son when surrounded by some of the troops of Ambiorix, after that king had treacherously persuaded Aurunculeius Cotta and Q. Titurius Sabīnus, lieutenants, with the army which they commanded, consisting of one legion and five cohorts, to leave their winter-quarters among the Eburōnes.

Lugotōrix, ĩgis, one of the four kings of Kantium, (Kent;) some copies read Cingetōrix (B. G. V. 22).

Lutetia, æ, f. Lutetia the capital of the Parisii, (Paris, now the capital of France,) was originally a fortress on a small island in the Sequana, (Seine.) There are two other islands in the Seine at Paris covered with buildings, and connected with each other and the town, by means of bridges. Paris, situated in a plain on both sides of the Seine, is of a circular form, and upwards of eleven miles in circumference. It contains many stately edifices, and the finest collections of medals, statues, and paintings, in the world. Every thing excellent in Rome, and in the other cities of Italy, has been conveyed to Paris to enrich these collections and to adorn the city.

M.

MAGETOBRIA, æ, f. a city of Gallia, (France), at which Ariovistus defeated the combined forces of the Gauls. This victory put the country under his dominion.

Mandubratius, i, one of the nation of Trinobantes, who, on his father's being killed by Cassivellaunus, fled from Britain to Cæsar then in Gaul, who took him and the state under his protection.

Manilius, (Lucius, i,) a proconsul, who was obliged to fly from Aquitania, with the loss of all his baggage.

Manilius, i, (Tuscūlus,) one of the conspirators against Cassius Longinus, Proprætor of Farther Spain.

Manipūlus, i, (See Legio.)

Marcomāni, or Marcomanni, ōrum, a people of Germania, (Germany), whose territories were bounded on the west by the Rhenus, (Rhine), and on the south by the Danubius, (Danube), corresponding to part of the modern Circle of Swabia. They afterwards expelled the Boii, and took possession of their country, now called Bohemia.

Mare Nostrum, the Mediterranean Sea, to which the Romans gave this name, from its bounding their native country, Italia, (Italy), on three sides. By the Greeks it was called Mare Internum; and the Allantic Ocean, Mare Externum. In Scripture, this collection of water is denominated the Great Sea, which, though of small extent, when compared with the Pacific Ocean, &c. is the largest inland sea in the world. The modern appellation is manifestly derived from its situation, being wholly surrounded by land, except the narrow strait of Gibraltar, which connects it with the Atlantic Ocean.

The length of the Mediterranean is about 2,300 miles, and its breadth varies from 900 to 300 miles. Tides are scarcely known in this sea, except in the Gulf of Venice, and on the coast of Tripoli. There is a constant influx into the Mediterranean, both from the Atlantic and Pontus Euxinus, (the Black Sea.) That part of it which is east of the Archipelago, or of the island Candia, is called the Levant.

The principal islands in the Mediterranean, are the Baleares,

(Majorca and Minorca,) Sardinia, (Sardinia,) Corsica, (Corsica,) Sicilia, (Sicily,) separated from Italia, (Italy,) by Fretum Siculum, (the Strait of Messina,) Melita, (Malta,) and Creta, (Candia.) In the Levant, besides some other islands of less extent, are Rhodos, (Rhodes,) and Cyprus, (Cyprus.)

Matrōna, æ, f. the Marne, a river of Gallia, (France,) which formed part of the ancient boundary between Gallia Belgica and Gallia Celtica. It takes its rise at Sangres, runs northwest to Châlons, then westward, passes by Meaux, becomes navigable at Vitry, and at Charenton, a little above Paris, falls into the Sequana, (Seine,) after a course of about ninety-two leagues.

Mediomatrices, um, vel. i, ōrum, a people of Gallia Belgica, between the Mosella, (Moselle,) and the Rhenus, (Rhine.) The Treviri were their neighbors on the north. Their chief town was Divodūrum, afterwards Mediomatrici, now Metz. At one period they were a powerful nation, and possessed a very extensive country. But the conquest of Gallia, (France,) by the Romans, destroyed their power, and confined them to a narrow territory.

Meldi, ōrum, a people whose country was included between the rivers Matrōna, (Marne,) and Sequana, (Seine.) The modern town, Meaux, is of some note, and contains 6,000 inhabitants. The Meldi mentioned B. V. 5, were a Belgic tribe living on the Scaldis (Scheldt.)

Menapii, ōrum, a people of Gallia Belgica, whose territory was separated from Insula Batavorum, (Holland,) by the Mosa, (Meuse.) The Toxandri were their neighbors on the south.

Mensis, is, m. a month; a term originally employed to denote that portion of time which elapses between two successive changes of the moon. (See Gr. App. I.)

Messala, æ, (Marcus,) a noble Roman who was consul with Marcus Puppius Piso, in the 60th year B. C.

Mettius, i, (Marcus, i,) a man allied to Ariovistus by the rights of hospitality, whom Cæsar joined in commission with C. Valerius Procillus, on an embassy to that king. As soon as they entered his camp, without suffering them to speak, Ariovistus commanded both to be put in irons. He thrice drew lots to determine whether they should be burned alive upon the spot, or reserved for another time. The lots being always favorable, their lives were preserved. After the defeat of Ariovistus, Cæsar himself in the pursuit fell in with Procillus, and Mettius was likewise recovered and brought back to the Roman camp.

- Minucius, i, (Lucius M. Basilius,) one of Cæsar's officers. To C. Fabius, and L. Minucius Basilius, he gave the joint command of two legions, which were stationed among the Rhemi.
- Mona, æ, f. the Isle of Man, an island in the Irish Sea, nearly equidistant from England, Scotland, and Ireland. It is thirty miles long, and eight broad. The soil is fertile, the air salubrious, and the inhabitants live in general to a great age. The sovereignty of this island formerly belonged to the Dukes of Athol; but it was sold in 1765 to the crown. Tacitus and others call Anglesy, Mona, but Cæsar is more correct.
- Morini, ōrum, a people of Gallia Belgica, whose country lay along the coast opposite to Cantium, (Kent.)
- Moritagus, i, the king of the Senones, at Cæsar's arrival in Gallia, (France.)
- Mosa, æ, f. the Mæse, or Meuse, a river of Gallia, (France,) rising a little to the west of Mount Vosegus, (Vauge,) runs north, passes a number of celebrated towns, receives, at Namur, the Sabis, (Sambre,) joins the Vahālis, (Wahal, or, Waal,) below the island of Bommel, and falls into the German Sea. The course of this river, which extends to 160 leagues, is north.
- Munatius, i, (Lucius M. Plancus), one of Cæsar's lieutenants, who, with Caius Trebonius, had the command of three legions which were settled in Belgium, during the winter.
- Muscūlus, a species of moveable shed or pent-house on wheels, shaped like an arched wagon, usually sent before the large towers to prepare the way for their advance, by cutting down trees, filling up ditches, removing obstructions, and making a smooth and solid road even up to the enemy's walls.

N.

- NAMEIUS, i, a nobleman of the Helvetii, who, with Verudoctius, was at the head of the embassy which that nation sent to Cæsar, to request permission to march through the Roman province.
- Namnētes, or, Nannētes, um, a people of Gallia Celtica, who lived on the north bank of the Ligēris, (Loire,) where it falls into the sea.
- Nantuātes, um, a people, whose country lay on the south of Lacus Lemānus, (the Lake of Geneva.)
- Narbo, ōnis. f. Narbonne, a town of Provincia, to the south of the river Atax, (the Aude,) near the sea-coast, which afterwards gave name to that division of Gallia. (France,) called Narbonensis.

Nasua, æ, the brother of Cimberius, who commanded the 100 Cantons of the Suevi, who had encamped on the bank of the Rhenus, (Rhine,) with the design of crossing that river.

Naves, ium, (sing. navis,) ships. The kind of ships used by the Romans were chiefly two, viz: Naves Longæ, ships of war, and Naves Onerariæ, ships of burden. The Naves longæ were so called because they were of a longer shape than the others. They were commonly impelled by oars, and were distinguished by a helmet at the mast head. They were also ranked as birēmes, tri-rēmes, quadrēmes, and quinqvirēmes, according as they had two, three, four, or five rows or tiers of oars. According to the generally received opinion, these rows or tiers ran from the prow to the stern, as exhibited in the following wood cuts, taken from antiques, the first of which has one row and the second two. Over these were erected decks on which sometimes towers were constructed, from which the enemy might be more conveniently and successfully assailed.

NAVES LONGÆ.

The Naves Onerariæ, or ships of burden, were broader and rounder than the vessels of war. They were impelled by sails and distinguished by a basket, (corbis,) suspended from the mast head; whence they were sometimes called corbitæ.

Naves Actuariæ were ships contrived for lightness and expedition. They had but one bank of oars, or at most two, on each side. They were of different kinds, distinguished by different names; as, Celōces, Lembi, Phasēli, &c., but the most remarkable were the Naves Liburnæ, a kind of light galleys used by the Liburni.

Nemētes, um, a people of Gallia Belgica, probably a tribe of the Germans, on the west bank of the river Rhenus, (Rhine,) between the Tribōci and Vangiōnes. Their principal city was Noviomāgus, (Spire.)

Nervii, ōrum, a powerful and warlike nation of Gallia Belgica, whose country lay on both sides of the Scaldis, (Scheldt, near the source of that river, afterwards Hainault, and Nord. They revolted and attacked the Roman troops under Cæsar; but were totally routed. Their mode of defence against the attacks of cavalry was simple and effectual. The different readings B. G. Lib. II. 17, are numerous, yet the idea conveyed by all is not very materially different. In the place where the Nervii wished to raise a barrier, they, probably at a considerable distance from each other, half cut two rows of young trees, so that they continued to grow, bent them longitudinally, and gave their branches a lateral direction. The middle space between these rows was planted or filled up with briars and thorns, which intermixing with the trees that formed the outside of the fence, rendered the whole so close and impervious, that it not only stopped the progress, but even the view of the invaders.

After ramis the common text has entatis, which Oudendorp and others reject as a mere gloss, unnecessary to the sense. It is also wanting in the best MSS.

Nonæ, arum, f. the Nones, the second division of the Roman month; so called, it is supposed, because from that day to the Ides nine days intervened. In the months of March, May, July, and October, the Nones fell on the seventh, and in the other months on the fifth. (See Gr. App. I.)

Noreia, æ, f. a city of Noricum, the capital of the Taurisci. B. I. 5. Noricum, i, n. or Noricus ager, a large country of Germany, between Italia, (Italy,) and the Danubius, (Danube). It comprehended the greater part of Austria, all Saltzburg, Stiria, and Carinthia. Their chief city was Noreia, which was besieged by the Boii, in the inroad which they had made upon Noricum, before they entered into alliance with the Helvetii.

Norīci, ōrum, the people of Noricum.

Noviodūnum, i, n. (B. G. II. 15,) a town of the Suessiōnes, (Soissons, or Noyons.) Another of the Ædui, (B. G. VII. 55,) now Nevers, on the banks of the Ligēris, (Loire). And a third belonged to the Biturīges, (B. G. VII. 14,) now Neuvy or, Neufry, about twenty miles west from Nevers.

Numidia, æ, f. Algiers, a country of Africa, bounded on the north by the Mediterranean; on the west by Mauritania, (Morocco and Fez;) on the south by Gætūlia; and on the east by Afrīca Propria, (Tunis.)

Numidæ, arum, and, Nomādes, um, the inhabitants of Numidia, described by Sallust, in the Jugurthan war, as faithless, unsteady, and fond of revolutions in the state.

O.

OCELUM, i, n. Oux, or Exilles, a town on the frontiers of Gallia Cisalpina, Citerior, or Togata, in Alpes Graiæ.

Octodūrus, i, (Octodōrus, in Greek,) Martigny, a town, or village, of the Verāgri, (Vicus Veragrōrum, Cæsar, B. G. III. 1,) on the Drance, near its junction with the Rhodānus, (Rhone,) at a considerable distance above the entrance of the latter into Lacus Lemānus, (the Lake of Geneva.)

Orcynia, æ, f. a name given by Eratosthenes, and some other Greeks, to Hercynia Silva; which see.

Orgetōrix, īgis, was, according to Cæsar, the richest and most noble of the Helvetii. Prompted by a love of power, he formed a conspiracy among the nobles, and persuaded the people to quit their country. When his ambitious views were discovered by the state, he was obliged to answer to the charges preferred against him. Orgetōrix, by means of his vassals and debtors, rescued himself, from the hands of his judges, and escaped. But whilst the state was endeavoring to support its authority by force, he died, as was suspected, by his own hands.

Osismii, ōrum, a people of Gallia Celtica, one of the nations which went under the general name of Civitātes Armoricæ. Their country afterwards formed part of the province of Bretagne. It is now called Finisterre.

P.

PADUS, i, m. the Po, the largest river of Italy, anciently called Eri-dānus. The northern branches of the Po, descending from the Alps, render it largest in the warmest months of summer, by the melting of the snow towards the summit of these lofty mountains. It disembogues into Mare Adriaticum, or Hadriaticum, (the Gulf of Venice;) by seven mouths, of which two were formed by nature, the other five by art.

Pæmani, ōrum, a people of Gallia Belgica, on the east bank of the Mosa, (Meuse.) They had the Cæræsi on the south, the Treviri on the east, and Silva Arduenna on the north.

Paludamentum, i, the military robe or cloak of the Roman commander; sometimes also worn by the chief officers. It was of a scarlet color, bordered with purple. The elevation of this upon a spear above the Prætorium, or general's tent, was often the signal given for commencing battle.

Parisii, ōrum, the inhabitants of Lutëtia, from whom it was afterwards called Parisii, now Paris, the capital of France. (See Lutetia.)

Passus, ūs, a pace, (two steps,) was reckoned nearly equal to five feet. (See Gr. App. VI. 5.) Of these 125 made a stadium, and 1000 made a mile; hence, mille passuum, a mile.

Pedius, i, (Quintus) a grandson of one of Julius Cæsar's sisters, was one of his lieutenant-generals in the Gallic war, and appointed in his will co-heir with Octavius, who had Pedius for his colleague in his first consulship. He passed a law, from him called Lex Pedia, declaring the death of Julius Cæsar to have been murder, and subjecting the assassin to capital punishment.

Peligni, ōrum, a people of Italy, whose country lay between the sources of the rivers Sagrus, (Sangro;) and Aternus, (Pescara;) both of which fall into the Gulf of Venice.

Petrosidius, i, (Lucius, i,) a standard bearer of the army which, under the command of Q. Titurius Sabīnus and Lucius Aurunculeius Cotta, wintered among the Eburōnes. These troops were, in consequence of a stratagem of Ambiōrix, attacked by him on disadvantageous ground two miles from the camp, and almost wholly cut off. Petrosidius having, with a few of his men, returned to the camp, threw his standard within the rampart, and was killed fighting with great bravery before the fortifications.

Pictōnes, um, a people of Gallia Celtica, on the south bank of the Ligēris, (Loire,) where it falls into the sea.

Pilāni. (See Legio.)

Pirustæ, arum, a people of Illyricum, on the east coast of Mare Hadriaticum, (the Gulf of Venice.)

Piso, ōnis, (Lucius Calpurnius, i,) Cæsar's father-in-law, who was consul with A. Gabinius Paulus, in the year of the city 696. In their consulship, Cicero was banished from Rome, and Clodius was supported by Piso, in procuring that disgraceful sentence, (B. G. I. 6.)

Piso, ōnis, (Lucius, i,) the grandfather of Piso above mentioned, was a lieutenant of Cassius, both of whom fell in an engagement with the Helvetii, (B. G. I. 12.)

Piso, ōnis, surnamed from his country, Aquitanus, a nobleman of Aquitania, whose father had been supreme magistrate in that country, and called Friend by the Romans, (B. G. IV. 12.)

Plancus, i, (L. Munatius, i,) a lieutenant in Cæsar's army, to whom he gave the joint command with C. Trebonius, of three legions cantoned in Gallia Belgica. After the death of Julius Cæsar, L. Munatius Plancus joined Antony and Lepidus. With the latter he was consul. He is said to have founded Lugdunum, (Lyons.)

Pleumosii, ōrum, a people of Gallia Belgica, supposed to have lived on the Scaldis, (Scheldt,) near the place where the city Tournay now stands.

Pluteus, i, a kind of moveable gallery on wheels, in form resembling the Musculus, (which see,) but used chiefly to protect the archers stationed in it, in order to clear the walls with their arrows, and so facilitate the approach of storming parties and the erection of scaling ladders.

Pompeius, i, (Cneius,) a Roman who was well skilled in the language of the Gauls, and acted as interpreter to Quintus Titurius. After the credulity of that lieutenant had placed himself and his men at the mercy of Ambiōrix, he sent Cneius Pompeius to the king of the Eburōnes, begging him to spare their lives. (See Titurius.)

Præconinus, i, a lieutenant who was himself killed, and his army defeated at Apollonia.

Præfectus, i, an officer who commanded the allies, and who in the extent of his command resembled the legionary tribune. The commander of the cavalry of a legion was called præfectus alæ.

Prætor, ōris, m. a Prætor; (from Præ and eo,) literally, one who goes before. In the early ages of the Roman State, this term is supposed by some to have been a general appellation of all the Roman Magistrates, afterwards of the general of the army; even the Emperors were ambitious to include it among their other titles. But the word commonly denoted a Roman judge who administered justice both among his fellow-citizens, and also among the foreigners who resided in Rome. In dignity the Prætor ranked next to the Consul. He had power to alter laws, repeal them, and enact new at pleasure.

Prætoria cohors, Prætorian cohort, a select band of troops forming the general's body guard.

Preciāni, ōrum, a people of Aquitania, who are supposed to have lived at the foot of the Pyrenæi Montes, (Pyrenees,) near Mare Cantabricum, (the Bay of Biscay.)

Primopilus, i, (sometimes primus pilus,) the chief centurion of the legion. This name belonged to the first centurion of the first maniple of the Triarii. He was entrusted with the eagle or main standard of the legion; in pay he ranked among the equites, and had a place in the council of war with the consul and tribunes.

Provincia Romāna, the Roman Province; that part of Transalpine Gaul in the possession of the Romans previous to the conquests of Cæsar. It extended along the shore of the Mediterranean, from the Pyrenees to the Alps, and was bounded on its northwest side by the Mount Cebenna, (or Cevennes,) and on the north, eastward, by the Ambani, Sequāri, and Helvetii. In the new division of Gaul afterwards made by Augustus, its boundaries remained as before, but as all Gaul was now become a Roman Province it ceased to be distinguished by that name, and was called Narbo-ensis, from Narbo its principal city. (See Narbo.)

Pulvio, ōnis, (Titus, i,) a Roman centurion of distinguished valor, who, to decide a dispute with L. Varēnus respecting superiority of courage, rushed forth from the camp, when attacked by the Nervii, and displayed great bravery without the fortifications. Nor was his rival for military fame, inferior to him either in bravery or generosity; B. V. Ch. 44. (See Varenus.)

R.

RAURACI, ōrum, a people of Gallia Celtica. on the northern extremity of Mount Jura. The Rhenus, (Rhine,) was their boundary on the east.

Remi, ōrum, a people of Gallia Belgica, whose country lay to the north of the Matrōna, (Marne). Their chief town was Durocor-tum. now Rheims.

Rhedōnes, um, a people of Gallia Celtica. The Rhedōnes were one of those nations reckoned among the Civitates Armoricae. Their country is now called Bretagne.

Rhenus, i, m. the Rhine, a celebrated river of Europe, which takes its rise in Mount Adūla, (St. Gothard.) in the country of the Grissons, passes Lacus Brigantinus, (Lake of Constance,) and continues to run nearly west about 75 miles, when it reaches Basti. On leaving this city, it takes a northerly direction and becomes the boundary between France, or the Netherlands, and Germany, till it divides into two branches, which, with the German Sea, formed, what was anciently called, Insūla Batavōrum, (Holland, or the United Provinces.) After a course of 600 miles, and receiving several rivers on both banks, the Rhine discharges itself into that part of Mare Atlanticum, (the Atlantic Ocean,) called Oceānus Germanicus, (the German Sea.)

Rhodānus, i. m. the Rhone, a large and rapid river of Europe, which has its source in Mount la Fourche, near St. Gothard, in the canton of Uri, not more than two leagues south from that of the Rhenus, (Rhine,) passes Lacus Lemānus, (the Lake of Geneva,) five leagues below which it disappears between two rocks for a considerable way, rises again, flows with great rapidity in a southern direction, and discharges itself by three mouths into that part of the Mediterranean formerly called Gallicus Sinus, (the Gulf of Lyons.) The course of the Rhone is about 400 miles, during which it falls 5,400 feet. In Strabo's time it was navigable a good way up; but its mouths are now so full of rocks brought down from the mountain by its impetuous current, that no ship can enter them. The Rhone is largest in summer, and is at its greatest height soon after the longest day. This is most probably occasioned by the heat of the sun melting part of the snow on the Alps during the summer months.

Roma, æ, f. Rome, one of the most celebrated cities of antiquity, stood on the banks of the Tiber, about fifteen miles from the sea. Romūlus, from whom the name is derived, laid the foundation of this city on Mons Palatinus, 15th April, 753 B. C. From a very small beginning it gradually increased, until its circumference, according to Pliny, was not less than twenty miles. After the lapse of many years, Rome became the capital of Italia. (Italy,) and, at the commencement of the Christian Era, the known world was in subjection to that gigantic power. It was divided into twenty-four regions or wards, had seven great, and thirteen smaller aqueducts, thirty-seven gates, and six hundred and forty-four tow ers on the walls. To ascertain its population when in the height of power, is perhaps impossible; but it could not fall much below four millions.

Roscius, i, (Lucius, i,) a lieutenant, to whom Cæsar gave the command of the third legion, which he was to march into the territories of the Essui.

Rufus, i, (P. Sulpicius, i,) one of Cæsar's lieutenants, to whom he gave the charge of the port in Gallia, (France), from which he sailed for Britannia, (Britain), and a garrison sufficient to protect it during his absence.

Rutēni, ōrum, a people of Aquitania, on the river Tarnis, (Tarne.)

Rutīlus, i, (M. Sempronius, i,) an officer of Cæsar, who had, with T. Labiēnus, the joint command of the two legions which that general ordered to march into the territories of the Sequāni.

S.

SABINUS, i, (Caius Calvisius,) an officer in Cæsar's army, whom he sent into Ætolia, in Græcia, (Greece), with five cohorts and a few men.

Sabīnus, i, (Q. Titurius, i,) a lieutenant in Cæsar's army. He, and L. Aurunculeius Cotta, had the command of the troops which were stationed among the Menapii, and in other parts of Gallia Belgica. When in their quarters on the frontiers of the Eburōnes, the artful stratagem of Ambiorix, king of that tribe, to cut off these lieutenants and their two legions succeeded, through the credulity and obstinacy of Sabinus. A few of the private soldiers escaped the sword of the Gauls. (See Cotta.) This officer is sometimes called simply Titurius, or, Sabīnus.

Sabis, is, m. the Sambre, a river of Gallia Belgica, which has its rise in what is now called Picardy, runs northeast and falls into the Mosa, (Meuse), near Namur.

Sagittarii, ōrum, archers; men who fought with bows and arrows, attached to the velites. (See Legio.) The best archers were the Cretans. The Romans did not use the bow in the early times of the republic, and when introduced they had scarcely any archers except those of the auxiliary troops.

Samarobrīva, æ, f. (i. e. the bridge of the Samāra.) Amiens, a town of Gallia Belgica, on the south bank of the river Samāra, (Somme.) It was afterwards called Ambianum, from its inhabitants; hence the present name

- Santōnes, um, a people of Gallia Celtica, to the north of the river Carantōnus, (Charente.) Their chief town was Mediolanum, afterwards Santones, now Saintes.
- Scaldis, is, the Scheld, or the Scheldt, a river of Gallia Belgica, which takes its rise about fifteen miles south of Camaracum, (Cambray), in the province of Picardy, runs north, and dividing into two branches, falls into the German Sea. Cæsar erroneously makes it a branch of the Mosa, (Meuse.) (B. G. VI. 33.)
- Scorpiōnes, a species of military engine for throwing darts and javelins, similar to the Balista, or probably only another name for the same. (See Balista.)
- Scutum, i. m. a shield; a part of the defensive armor of the Roman infantry, which they wore on their left arms to protect their bodies against the arrows, darts, and other missile weapons thrown by the enemy. It consisted of thin pieces of wood joined by plates of iron, and covered with thick skin or hide. The most common form was oval, extending to four feet in length and two and a half in breadth. When a soldier had not his shield he was said to fight nudo corpore.
- Seduni, ōrum, a nation of Helvetia, (Switzerland), on the north bank of the Rhodanus, (Rhone), above Lacus Lemanus, (the Lake of Geneva.)
- Sedusii, ōrum, a nation of Germany, on the northeast bank of the Rhenus, (Rhine.) Their country was watered by the Mœnus, (Maine.)
- Segōnax, ācis, one of the four kings who reigned in Cantium, (Kent), at the time Cæsar invaded Britain.
- Segontiāci, ōrum, a British nation on the south of the river Tamēsis, (Thames.) They appear to have been subject to Cassivelaunus, at the time Cæsar attempted to add this island to the Roman empire. (B. V. Ch. 21.)
- Segusiāni, ōrum, a people of Gallia Celtica, to the west of the Rhodanus, (Rhone.) Their country was traversed by the Ligēris, (Loire), towards the source of that river.
- Senōnes, um, a warlike nation of Gallia Celtica, who lived on the Sequāna, (Seine.) about 70 miles above Paris.
- Septimius, i, (Lucius, i,) a tribune of the soldiers, sent along with Achilles, by Ptolemæus king of Egypt, to murder Pompey, in whose army he had formerly been a centurion.
- Sequāna. æ, the Seine, a river of Gallia, (France), has its source near Nevers in Bourgogne, runs in a northwest direction, and falls into that part of the Atlantic called Fretum Britannicum, (the British Channel), at Havre de Grace. The course of this beautiful and picturesque river extends to 250 miles. Paris, the capital of France, originally a fort on a small island in the Seine, above 120 miles from the sea, now stands on both sides of this river, over which there are, in that city, 12 bridges.
- Sequāna, æ, f. a district of Gallia, (France), bounded on the east by Mons Jura, (Mount Jura), which separated it from the country of the Helvetii; on the north by Mount Vosegus, (Vauge), which divided it from that of the Leuci; on the west by the country of the Ædui and Lingōnes; and on the south by that of the Ambarri and Allobrōges.

- Sequani ōrum, (sing. Sequānus, i,) the people of Sequāna. This nation headed one of the factions of the Gallic states, and the Ædui the other.
- Sesuvii, ōrum, (or Sesovii,) one of the Armoric states in Gaul, the situation of which is not known.
- Sextius, i, (Publius S. Bacūlus,) a centurion of the first rank in Cæsar's army, in the Gallic wars.
- Sextius, i, (Titus, i,) one of the three lieutenants whom Cæsar sent to augment his army, in the sixth year of the war in Gallia, (France.)
- Sibutzates, um, a people of Aquitania, whose country lay along the Atur, (Adour.) Of their history nothing is known.
- Sigambri, ōrum, a German nation, who lived on the east bank of the Rhine, to the south of the river Rura, (Roir.)
- Sifanus, i, (Marcus, i,) one of Cæsar's lieutenants, whom he ordered to levy troops for the war in Gallia, (France.)
- Silius, i, (Titus, i,) an officer whom P. Crassus sent to the Venēti, to procure grain and forage with Velanius. But the Venēti, seized them in expectation of regaining their hostages by this measure.
- Sotiates, ium, a people of Aquitania, whose country extended along the Garumna, (Garonne.) Their territories formed part of what was afterwards called Novempopulana, bounded by the Garonne, Pyrenees, and Bay of Biscay.
- Suessiones, Suessones, um, a people of Gallia Belgica, whose country was bounded on the south by the Matrōna, (Marne.) Although a brave and powerful nation, they were obliged to submit to the arms of Cæsar.
- Suevi, ōrum, a nation of Germania, (Germany,) who inhabited a large tract of country, Suevia, æ, f. lying between the Albis, Elbe, and the Vistula, (Vistula,) on the northern side of Silva, Hercynia. They made many inroads on the Roman territories.
- Sulpitius, i, (Publius, i,) one of Cæsar's lieutenants. Q. Tullius, Cicero, and P. Sulpitius, were stationed among the Ædui, at Cabillo, v. Cabillonum, (Chalons.) and Matisco, (Mascon,) on the Arar, (Saone.) These two officers were entrusted with the care of provisions.

T.

TAMESIS, or Thamesis, is, m. the Thames, one of the largest rivers of England, rises in Cotswold hills in the western extremity of Gloucestershire, runs eastward, and after passing through London, falls into the German Sea. With respect to commerce, this is the first river in the world. It is navigable about 130 miles, and the tide flows up as far as Richmond in Surrey, which taking the course of the river, is 70 miles.

TARBELLI, ōrum, a people of Aquitania, whose country extended along the sea-coast, from the Pyrenæi Montes, (Pyrenees,) to the territories of the Cocosates.

TARUSATES, ium, a people of Aquitania. The Tarbelli were between them and the Bay of Biscay.

Tasgetius, i, a nobleman of the nation of the Carnūtes, whose forefathers had possessed the sovereignty of that state.

Taximagūlus, i, one of the four kings who reigned over Cantium. (Kent.) They seem to have all been under the power of Cassivellaunus.

Tectosāges, um, and Tectosāgi, ōrum, a very valiant people of Gallia, a branch of the Volcæ, near the Pyrenees. (See Volcæ.)

Tenchtēri, ōrum, a people of Germany, on the river Rhenus, (Rhine,) south of the Sigambri.

Terrasidius, i, (Titus, i,) one of Cæsar's lieutenants, whom he sent into the country of the Esubii.

Testūdo, ĩnis, f. I. A wooden tower used by the Romans for protecting the soldiers when employed in undermining the walls of a town, or in battering them with the ram, (See Aries.) It was erected of wood, and covered with hides, earth, or any other kind of substance which is with difficulty set on fire.

II. When the soldiers of a company advanced to an assault, they frequently stood close together, and formed a shade or screen of their shields, to protect their bodies against the missile weapons, thrown by the enemy from the walls. This defence they also called Testūdo, from the resemblance which the locked shields had to the shell or covering of the tortoise, (See the following wood cut,) but it must not be confounded with the tower or mantelet just described.

TESTUDO.

Tigurinus Pagus, one of the four cantons or districts, into which Helvetia (Switzerland,) is divided according to Cæsar, comprehending the modern cantons Zurich, Schwitz, Schaffhausen, and the lands of the Abbey of St. Gal.

Tigurini, ōrum, the people of Pagus Tigurinus.

Titus, i, a common prænomen among the Romans.

Titurius, i, (Quintus T. Sabinus,) one of Cæsar's lieutenants, often called simply, Titurius, killed by Ambiorix. (See Auruncaleius.)

Tolōsa, æ, Thoulouse, or Toulouse, a town of Aquitania, beautifully situated on the north bank of Garumna. Tolōsa was one of the most flourishing cities of Gaul, afterwards the residence of a Roman colony, and, at a later period, the metropolis of the Visigoths.

Tolosates, ium, the inhabitants of Tolōsa.

Trebius, i, (Marcus T. Gallius,) an officer sent by Cæsar to the Curiosolitæ, to procure provisions.

Treviri, ōrum, or (sing. Trevir, iri,) a nation of Gallia Belgica, between the Mosella, (Moselle,) and Silva Arduenna. Their chief city, Augusta Trevirōrum, now Triers, or Treves, stands on the east bank of the Moselle, over which it has a large bridge.

Tribuni, ōrum, (sing. Tribunus, i,) militum, Tribunes of the soldiers; officers in the Roman army, who had the command of a division of a legion. To take care of the works and camp, to communicate the watchword to the guards, and to give judgment in certain cases, formed the duty of the military tribunes. Romulus first appointed the tribunes, to whom he gave that name from their being only three in number, one out of each tribe. But afterwards, each legion had six tribunes. The right of nomination belonged first to the kings, then to the consuls, or dictators, and, at a later period, to the people.

Trinobantes, um, a nation of ancient Britain, inhabiting the counties now called Essex and Middlesex. Cassivellaunus was their king at the time Cæsar invaded this island.

Tulingi, ōrum, a people of Germany, between the rivers Danubius, (Danube,) and Rhenus, (Rhine.)

Turōnes, um, or, i, ōrum, a people of Gallia Celtica, on the banks of the river Loire, about 140 miles from the sea. Their name is perpetuated by the modern appellation of the country, Touraine, and their city Tours, anciently Turōnes.

Turris, is, a tower. The towers used in the Roman military works were of two kinds, the fixed and the moveable. The fixed towers were erected on the agger, or mound, and were raised sufficiently high to overlook and command the enemy's ramparts, and from them showers of arrows, darts, and other missiles were thrown by means of various engines. The moveable towers (See wood cut, next page,) were pushed forward on rollers or wheels fixed below. To prevent them from being set on fire they were covered with raw hides and pieces of coarse woollen cloth. They were of immense size, sometimes forty or fifty feet square, and higher than the walls, or even the towers of the city. When brought up against the walls, a place was seldom able to stand out long. Sometimes they were provided with a species of drop or platform, which being let down reached from the tower to the top of the wall and formed a species of bridge by which the assailants took possession of the walls.

TURRIS.

U.

UBII, ōrum, a people of Germany, whose territories were on the Rhine opposite to the Sigambri.

Unelli, ōrum, a people of Gallia Celtica, on the northwest of what is now called Normandy. Their country was bounded on three sides by the sea. Their chief town was Coriallum, (Gouril.) Off the coast of the Unelli, lay the islands of Cæsarea, (Jersey,) Sarnia, (Guernsey,) and Redūna, (Alderney,) which have long been in possession of the British.

Usipētes, um, or Usipii, ōrum, a people of Germany, on the right bank of the Rhenus, (Rhine.)

V.

VAHALIS, is, m. Wahal, or, Waal, the left branch of the Rhenus. (Rhine.) It joins the Mosa, (Meuse,) at the island of Voorn, and falls into the German sea below the Breil.

Valerius, i, (Caius V. Cabūrus,) a chief man among the Gauls in Provincia, whose original name appears to have been Cabūrus.

- On being made a Roman citizen, by C. Valerius Flaccus, he, as was usual, took the name of his patron.
- Valerius, i, (Caius, V. Flaccus,) a noble Roman, who conferred the freedom of the city on C. Valerius Cabūrus.
- Valerius i, (Caius V. Procillus,) the son of C. Valerius Cabūrus, was the chief man in Provincia. Cæsar, on account of his knowledge of the Gallic language, sent him and M. Mettius to hold an interview with Ariovistus, king of Germany. The German king imprisoned them both, but they were afterwards rescued by the Romans during the flight of their army.
- Vallum, the ramparts of a Roman encampment, composed of the earth dug out from the ditch, and having sharp stakes stuck into it to keep it together. (See Castra.)
- Vangiōnes, um, a people of Gallia Belgica, on the west bank of the Rhenus, (Rhine.) They were originally from Germany, and, at one time, had probably lands on both sides of that river. Their chief town was Borbetomagus, now Worms.
- Velanĭus, i, (Quintus, i,) sent by Cæsar with Silius to procure corn from the Venēti, who detained them in order to receive the hostages which they had given to that general.
- Velauni, ōrum, a small tribe in Gallia Celtica, on the sources of the Ligēris. Their chief city was Anderitium, now Javoli, or Javoux.
- Velites, light-armed troops. They were equipped with bows, slings, seven javelins or spears with slender points like arrows, so that, when thrown, they bent, and could not easily be returned by the enemy; a Spanish sword, having both edge and point; a round buckler (parma), about three feet in diameter, made of wood and covered with leather; and a helmet or casque for the head, generally made of the skin of some wild beast. When the army was drawn up in order of battle, the velites were placed in the spaces or intervals between the maniples, or else on the wings. (See Legio.)
- Velocasses. (See Bellocasses.)
- Venēti, ōrum, a nation in the west part of Gallia Celtica, whose chief town was Venetiā. Their country lay on the sea coast, northwest from the mouth of the Liger, (Loire.)
- Veragri, ōrum, a people who lived in that part of Provincia, now called Dauphine, on the south bank of the Rhodanus, (Rhone,) above Lacus Lemanus, (the Lake of Geneva.)
- Verbigēnus, i, (sc. pagus,) or, Urbigēnus, one of the four divisions of Helvetia, (Switzerland,) included the cantons of Friburg and Bern, with the districts of Neufchatel and Vallengin.
- Vergobretus, i, the title of the supreme magistrate among the Ædui, who was created yearly, and had the power of life and death over his countrymen.
- Veromandui, ōrum, a people of Gallia Belgica, between the Nervii and Suessiones. Their chief town was Augusta Veromanduorum, (St. Quentin,) on the right bank of the Samāra, (Somme.) Like most of the other nations of Gallia Belgica, they were originally from Germany.
- Vertico, ōnis, a nobleman of the Nervii, who was in Cicero's camp, when attacked by the Eburōnes, and prevailed on a slave to carry a letter to Cæsar, communicating information of that event.

- Verudoctius, i, one of the Helvetii. He and Nameius were at the head of the embassy sent to Cæsar, requesting permission to march through Provincia.
- Vesontio, ðnis, f. Besançon, the chief town of the Sequáni. on the east bank of the river Dubis, (Doux.)
- Vigilia, æ, f. a watch, the time a Roman soldier remained on guard during the night. Of these there were four, each three hours long. (See Gr. App. I.
- Vineæ, arum, f. a shed, used by the Romans for protecting the soldiers in besieging towns. It consisted of four upright posts, upon which was fixed a roof of hurdle or wicker-work. Above the hurdles were spread raw hides, a little earth, &c. to protect it from fire. The size of the vineæ differed according to circumstances. The whole rested upon wheels, so that this mantelet would be easily moved, and under it the besiegers either worked the ram, (See Aries,) or tried to undermine the walls. (See Pluteus.)
- Virdomárus, one of the Ædui, more distinguished by political influence, than by noble birth. Cæsar, at the request of Divitiácus, raised him to the highest dignity in the state.
- Viridövix, icis, the leading man among the Unelli, who headed a powerful army in an attack on Sabínus, one of Cæsar's lieutenants stationed among them, who defeated Viridövix by an artful stratagem.
- Vocátes, ium, a people of Aquitania, supposed by some to be the same with Vasátes, whose territories lay on the south bank of the Garonne, about ninety miles from the mouth of that river. Their chief town was Cossio.
- Vocio, ðnis, king of the Noríci, to whose sister Ariovistus was married.
- Vocontii, ðrum, a nation of Gaul, on the banks of a small stream called Druna, (Drome,) which falls into the Rhodānus, (Rhone,) about 100 miles from the mouth of that river. Their chief town was Dia, Die.
- Voségus, i, or Vogesus, m. Vauge, is a branch of Mount Jura, stretching in a northern direction, in which are the sources of the Arar, (Saone,) the Mosa, (Meuse,) and the Mosella, (Moselle.)
- Volcatius Tullus, Volcatii Tulli, an officer, who, according to Cæsar, sustained, at Dyrrachium, (Durazzo,) with three cohorts, the charge of a whole legion.
- Volcæ, arum, a numerous and powerful nation of Gaul, between the Garumna, (Garonne,) and the Rhodānus, (Rhone,) divided into the Arecomíci, and Tectoságes, q. v.
- Volusenus, i, (Caius, i,) an officer whom Cæsar sent with a galley to survey the coast of Britain opposite Gaul, and to acquire as correct information as he could, respecting the harbors and landing places, previously to his sailing against that island.

BULLIONS' SERIES OF GRAMMARS, ENGLISH, LATIN AND GREEK,

ON THE SAME PLAN,

FOR THE USE OF Colleges, Academies & Common Schools.

(Published by Pratt, Woodford & Co., N. Y.)

In preparing this series, the main object has been, First: To provide for the use of schools a set of class books on this important branch of study, more simple in their arrangement, more complete in their parts, and better adapted to the purposes of public instruction, than any heretofore in use in our public Seminaries: and Secondly, to give the whole a uniform character by following, in each, substantially, the same arrangement of parts, using the same grammatical terms, and expressing the definitions, rules, and leading parts, as nearly as the nature of the case would admit in the same language; and thus to render the study of one Grammar a more profitable introduction to the study of another than it can be, when the books used differ so widely from each other in their whole style and arrangement, as those now in use commonly do. By this means, it is believed, much time and labor will be saved, both to teacher and pupil,—the analogy and peculiarities of the different languages being constantly kept in view, will show what is common to all, or peculiar to each,—the confusion and difficulty unnecessarily occasioned by the use of elementary works, differing widely from each other in language and structure will be avoided,—and the progress of the student rendered much more rapid, easy and satisfactory.

These works form a complete series of elementary books, in which the substance of the best Grammars in each language has been compressed into a volume of convenient size, handsomely printed on a fine paper, neatly and strongly bound, and at a moderate price. The whole series is now submitted to the judgment of a discerning public, and especially to teachers and superintendents of schools, and seminaries of learning throughout the United States.

The following notices and recommendations of the works separately, and of the series, both from individuals of the highest standing in the community, and from the public press, will furnish some idea of the plan proposed, and of the manner in which it has been executed

I. THE PRINCIPLES OF ENGLISH GRAMMAR

Comprising the substance of the most approved English Grammars extant—with copious exercises in PARSING and SYNTAX. Fifth edition with an APPENDIX, of various and useful matter, pp. 216, 12 mo. New-York, Robinson, Pratt & Co.

This work, on the plan of Murray's Grammar, has been prepared with much care, and with special reference to the wants of our Common Schools. It comprises in a condensed form, and expressed in plain and perspicuous language, all that is useful and important in the works of the latest and best writers on this subject,—an advantage possessed in an equal degree by no similar work now in use. It is the result not only of much study and careful comparison, but of nearly twenty-five years experience in the school room, during which, the wants of the pupil and the character of books best adapted to those wants, have been carefully noted; and its adaptation to the purpose of instruction has now been thoroughly tested and approved in some of the best schools in this country. It is beautifully printed on a fine strong paper, neatly and firmly bound, and forms one of the most complete, useful, and economical school books ever offered to the public. The following are a few extracts from,

NOTICES AND RECOMMENDATIONS.

The undersigned have great satisfaction in recommending to the public, "The Principles of English Grammar," by Prof. BULLIONS, of the Albany Academy. Proceeding upon the plan of Murray, he has availed himself of the labors of the most distinguished grammarians, both at home and abroad; and made such a happy use of the helps afforded him, that we know of no work of the kind, in the same compass, which is equal to it in point of merit. Among its many excellencies, it is not the least, that Prof. B. has given a practical illustration of every principle from the beginning to the end; and the possession of his Grammar entirely supersedes the necessity of procuring a separate volume of Exercises on the Rules of Syntax. In a word, we can truly say, in the language of the author, "that there is nothing of much importance in Murray's larger Grammar, or in the works of subsequent writers, that will not be found condensed here."

[An Extract from the Minutes of the Board of Trustees of the Albany Female Academy.]

At a meeting of the trustees of the Albany Female Academy, held on the third instant, the book committee reported, that they had examined Professor Bullions' English Grammar, recently published in this city: and that in their opinion, it contains all that is useful in the most improved treatises now in use, as well as much valuable original matter: that from the copious exercises in false syntax, it will supersede the necessity of a separate volume on that subject; and recommend that it should be used as the text book in this institution.

On motion, it was resolved, that the report of the committee be accepted, and the treatise on English Grammar; by the Rev. Peter Bullions, adopted as the text book in this academy.

Sing-Sing, November 1, 1834.

DEAR SIR—I have examined your English Grammar with no small degree of satisfaction; and though I am not in the habit of recommending books in this manner, I am constrained in this case to say, I think you have conferred another important favour on the cause of education.

The great defects of most of the English grammars now in use, particularly in the omission of many necessary definitions, or in the want of perspicuity in those given, and also in the rules of construction, are in a great measure happily supplied. I am so well pleased with the result of your labors, that I have adopted it, (as I did your Greek Grammar) for both our institutions.

Yours respectfully,

NATHANIEL S. PRIME, Principal of Mt. Pleasant Academy,

REV. P. BULLIONS,

The undersigned hold the responsibility of recommendation as an important one—often abused, and very frequently used to oblige a personal friend, or to get rid of an urgent applicant. They further appeal to their own conduct for years past, to show that they have only occasionally assumed this responsibility; and therefore feel the greater confidence in venturing to recommend the examination, and the adoption of the Rev. Dr. Bullions' English Grammar, as at once the most concise and the most comprehensive of any with which they are acquainted; as furnishing a satisfactory solution of nearly all the difficulties of the English language; as containing a full series of exercises in false syntax, with rules for their correction; and finally, that the arrangement is in every way calculated to carry the pupil from step to step in the successful acquisition of that most important end of education, the knowledge and use of the English language.

A cursory examination of the English Grammar of Dr. Bullions, has satisfied me, that it has just claims on public favour. It is concise and simple; the matter is well digested; the exercises excellent, and the typographical execution worthy of all praise. The subscriber takes pleasure in recommending it to the notice of Teachers, and of all persons interested in education.

The English Grammar of the Rev. Dr. Bullions, appears to me, to be the best manual which has appeared as yet. With all the good points of Murray, it has additions and emendations, which I cannot but think would have commended themselves to Murray himself, and if I were a teacher of English Grammar, I would without hesitation prefer it to any other book of the kind, Extract of a letter from Rev. BENJAMIN HALE, D.D., President of Geneva College N. Y.

REV. DR. BULLIONS.—Dear Sir—I have lately procured a copy of your English Grammar, and given it such attention as my time has permitted, and I do not hesitate to express my conviction, that it is entitled to higher confidence than any other English Grammar in use among us, and my wish, that it may come into general use. I have seen enough to satisfy me, that you have diligently consulted the best sources, and combined your materials with discrimination and judgment. We have, as a faculty, recommended it by placing it on the list of books to be used by candidates in preparation for this college. I have personally recommended it, and will continue to recommend it, as I have opportunity.

Very respectfully, dear sir, your friend, &c.

Extract of a letter from Rev. CYRUS MASON, D.D., Rector of the Grammar School in the University of New-York.

University, New-York, June 13th, 1842.

REV. DR. BULLIONS.—Dear Sir—At the suggestion of the late Mr. Leckie, head classical master in the Grammar School, we began to introduce your grammars at the opening of the present year. We have made use chiefly of the Greek and English Grammar. The result thus far is a conviction that we have profited by the change, which I was very slow to make; and I doubt not that our farther experience will confirm the good opinion we entertain of your labors in this department of learning. Wishing you a large reward, I remain, very truly yours,

C. MASON, Rector.

NOTICES FROM THE PUBLIC PRESS.

FROM A REPORT PRESENTED TO THE JEFFERSON Co. ASSOCIATION OF TEACHERS, on the English Grammars now in use, the merits of each, and the best method of teaching them. By the Rev. J. R. BOYD, Principal of Black River Institute.

“2. The Grammar by Prof. BULLIONS of the Albany Academy, is constructed on the same plan as that of Brown; and while it is not so copious in its exercises, nor so full in its observations upon the language, yet it is far more simple in its phraseology, more clear in its arrangement, more free perhaps from errors or things needing improvement, and at the same time contains all that is necessary to be learned in gaining a knowledge of the structure of our language. The Rules of Syntax and observations under them, are expressed generally in the best manner. The Verb is most vividly explained, and that portion of the work contains much not to be found in other grammars, while it judiciously omits a great deal to be found in them, that is unworthy of insertion.

“It is excellent upon Prosody, and upon Poetic Diction and gives an admirable summary of directions for correct and elegant writing, and the different forms of composition. The typography of the book cannot be too highly commended—a circumstance that greatly affects the comfort and improvement of the learner.

“This grammar is equally well adapted to the beginner and to the advanced scholar. The course of instruction which Prof. B. recommends in the use of his grammar, seems wisely adapted to secure in the readiest manner the improvement of the pupil. The book is not so large as to appal the beginner, nor so small as to be of little use to those advanced. On the whole, in my judgment, no work has yet appeared, which presents equally high claims to general use. It is copious without redundancy—it is well printed, and forms a volume pleasing to the eye. It is lucid and simple, while in the main, it is philosophically exact.—Among the old Grammars, our decided preference is given to that of Prof. Bullions.”

[From the Albany Argus.]

PRINCIPLES OF ENGLISH GRAMMAR.—This work besides containing a full system of grammar, is rendered more immediately useful for academies and common schools, by containing copious examples in good grammar for parsing, and in bad grammar for correction; and all of these are arranged directly under the rule to which they apply. Thus, instead of two books, which are required, (the grammar and the exercises,) the learner finds both in one, for a price at least not greater than the others.

[From the Newburgh Journal.]

BULLIONS' ENGLISH GRAMMAR.—It is not one of the smallest evils connected with our present system of common school education, that our schools are flooded with such a variety of books on elementary subjects, not only differing in arrangement, but frequently involving absurd and contradictory principles. And to no subject are these remarks more applicable, than to English Grammar. And until some one elementary work of an approved character shall be generally introduced into our common schools, we despair of realizing a general proficiency in this important branch of education. It is with pleasure, therefore, that we witness the increasing popularity of “Bullions' English Grammar.” From a familiar acquaintance with the work, from the publication of the first edition, we have no hesitation in pronouncing it the best Grammar with which we are acquainted. The perspicuity of its definitions, the correctness of its principles, the symmetry of its arrangements, as well as the neat and accurate form in which it is presented, and withal the cheapness of the work, are so many recommendations to its general use.

[From the Albany Evening Journal.]

Professor BULLIONS' English Grammar is obviously the fruit of sound and enlightened judgment, patient labor and close reflection. It partakes of the character both of an original work and of a compilation. Following the principles of Murray, and adopting in the main the plan of Lennie, the most distinguished of his successors, the aim of the author, as he states in his preface, has been to correct what is erroneous, to retrench what is superfluous or unimportant, to compress what is prolix, to elucidate what is obscure, and to determine what is left doubtful, in the books already in use. In laboring to accomplish this excellent design, he has contrived to condense, in very perspicuous language, within the compass of a small, handsomely printed volume, about 200 pages, and costing but 50 cents, all that is requisite in this form to the acquisition of a thorough knowledge of the grammar of our language. It contains so great a number of exercises in parsing and syntax, judiciously interspersed, as to supersede the necessity of separate manuals of exercises now in use. Among other highly useful things to be found in this book, and not usually met with in works of this nature, are some very valuable critical remarks, and a pretty long "list of improper expressions," which unhappily have crept into use in different parts of our country. Under the head of Prosody, the author has, it is believed, given a better explanation of the principles of English versification, than is to be found in any other work of this nature in this country. In short, I hazard the prediction that this will be found to be decidedly the plainest, most perfect, and most useful manual of English grammar that has yet appeared.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS.

The following, are extracts from letters from County Superintendents of Common Schools in the State of New-York, to whom copies of the work had been sent for examination.

From ALEXANDER FONDA, Esq. Dep. Supt. of Com. Schools, Schenectady Co. Schenectady, March 30, 1842.

DEAR SIR—I acknowledge the receipt of a copy of your English Grammar, left upon my office desk yesterday afternoon. When in your city some three weeks since, I was presented with a copy by S. S. Randall, Esq.; from the examination I was enabled to give it, and from the opinion expressed in relation to it, by one of the oldest and most experienced teachers of this county, to whom I presented it, as well as from the knowledge I possessed by reputation of its author, I had before I received the copy from you, determined to introduce it as far as I was able, as a class book in the schools of this county.

From CHAUNCEY GOODRICH, Esq. Dep. Supt. of Com. Schools, Onondaga Co Canal, June 24, 1842.

DEAR SIR—Your favor of the 1st instant has just come to hand. The Grammar referred to has been received and examined. I am fully satisfied of its superior merits as a grammar for common schools, over any other work I have seen. I shall take the earliest measures for its introduction into the schools under my supervision.

From ROSWELL K. BOURNE, Esq. Dep. Supt. of Com. Schools, Chenango Co. Pitcher, June 30, 1842.

DEAR SIR—Sometime since I received a copy of a work on English grammar, by the Rev. Peter Bullions, D.D. for which I am much obliged. I have given the book as close an examination as circumstances would permit. The book is well got up, and exhibits the thorough acquaintance of the author with his subject. I think it well calculated for our common schools.

From GARNSEY BEACH, Esq. Dep. Supt. of Common Schools, Putnam Co. Patterson, July 2, 1842.

DEAR SIR—Yours of the first ult, was received on Thursday last. As it respects your Grammar I have carefully examined it, and without entering into particulars, I consider it the best I have ever seen, and as such, I have recommended it to the several schools under my care.

From O. W. RANDALL, Esq. Dep. Supt. of Common Schools, Oswego Co. Phoenix, July 2, 1842.

Mr. P. BULLIONS,—Dear Sir—I have for the last two weeks devoted some considerable time, in perusing your system of English Grammar, and in reply to yours, requesting my views of the work, I can cheerfully say, that its general arrangement, is admirably adapted either to the novice or adept. The § 27th and § 28th on verbs, with the attendant remarks, are highly important, and essential to the full completion of any system of grammar. The work taken together is remarkable for simplicity, lucidity and exactness, and is calculated not only to make the correct grammarians, but also a correct prosodians. Whatever may be its fate in the field, it enters with a large share of merit on its side, and with full as fair prospect of success as any work extant.

From W. S. PRESTON, Esq. Dep. Supt. of Com Schools, Suffolk Co. N. Y. Patchogue, L. I. July 6, 1842.

Prof. P. BULLIONS,—Dear Sir—Some time since I received a copy of your English Grammar, for which I am much obliged. I have devoted as much time to its perusal as circumstances would permit, and can say of it, that I believe it claims decided preference over the Grammars generally used in schools throughout this country, and indeed I may say, over the many works of that science extant.

From JAMES HENRY, Esq. Dep. Supt. of Common Schools, Herkimer Co. Little-Falls, July 11, 1842.

Prof. BULLIONS,—Sir—I have read with as much attention as my avocations would allow, the work you had the kindness to send me, upon English Grammar, and so far as I am capable of forming an opinion of the merits of your book, I concur generally in the views expressed in the extract from the report of M. Boyd, as contained in your circular.

From D. H. STEVENS, Dep. Supt. of Common Schools, Franklin Co. N. Y.
Moirs, Aug. 27, 1842.

REV. P. BULLIONS,—Dear Sir—On Wednesday the 24th instant, the committee determined upon a series of books, and I have the happiness to inform you, that your English Grammar will be reported on the first Wednesday in October. at the next meeting of the Association, as the most brief, perspicuous and philosophical work, upon that subject within our knowledge.

From R. W. FINCH, Esq. Dep. Supt. of Common Schools. Steuben Co. N. Y.
Bath, Sept. 11, 1842.

DEAR SIR—Having at length given your English Grammar a careful perusal; and having compared it with all the modern works on the subject, which have any considerable claims to merit, I am prepared to make a more enlightened decision, and one that is satisfactory to myself. The work has my decided preference.

From J. W. FAIRFIELD, and CYRUS CURTISS, Esqrs. Dep. Superintendents of Common Schools, Hudson, N. Y.

Hudson, Sept. 15, 1842.

REV. P. BULLIONS,—Sir—We have examined a copy of your English Grammar, with reference to the introduction of the same into our public schools, and we take pleasure in saying that the examination has proved very satisfactory. We cannot, without occupying too much space, specify the particular points of excellence which we noticed in the arrangement of the different parts, the clearness of expression and illustration, and the precise adaptation of the Rules of Syntax, to the principles previously laid down. It is sufficient to say, that we believe it to be, in all the requisites of a good school book, superior to any other English Grammar which has come under our observation.

II. THE PRINCIPLES OF LATIN GRAMMAR, &c.

This work is upon the foundation of ADAM'S LATIN GRAMMAR, so long and so well known as a text book in this country. The object aimed at was to combine with all that is excellent in the work of Adam, the important results of subsequent labors in this field,—to correct errors and supply defects,—to bring the whole up to that point which the present state of classical learning requires,—and to give it such a form as to render it a suitable part of the series. The following notices are furnished.

From REV. JAMES W. ALEXANDER, Prof. Belles Lettres in the College of New-Jersey.
Princeton, N. J. Aug. 15, 1842.

I have examined with some care the Latin Grammar of the Rev. Dr. Bullions. It is, if I may hazard a judgment, a most valuable work, evincing that peculiar apprehension of the pupil's necessities, which nothing but long continued practice as an instructor can produce. Among our various Latin Grammars, it deserves the place which is occupied by the best; and no teacher, as I think, need hesitate a moment about introducing it

[From the Biblical Repertory, or Princeton Review, Jan. 1842.]

THE PRINCIPLES OF LATIN GRAMMAR, &c.—This completes the series proposed by the learned author, who has now furnished us with an English, a Latin, and a Greek Grammar, which have this peculiar recommendation that they are arranged in the same order, and expressed in the same terms, so far as the differences of the languages permit. The basis of this manual is the well known Grammar of Adam, an excellent summary, but at the same time one which admitted of retrenchment, addition, and emendation, all which have been ably furnished by Dr. Bullions. We have not made a business of perusing the work laboriously, but we have looked over the whole and bestowed particular attention on certain parts; and therefore feel at liberty to recommend it with great confidence, especially to all such teachers as have been in the habit of using Adam's Grammar.

III. THE PRINCIPLES OF GREEK GRAMMAR, &c.

The object of this publication was to provide a comprehensive manual of Greek Grammar, adapted to the use of the younger, as well as to the more advanced class of students in our schools and colleges, and especially of those under the author's own care. To this end, the leading principles of Greek Grammar are exhibited in rules as few and brief as possible, so as to be easily committed to memory, and at the same time so comprehensive and perspicuous, as to be of general and easy application.

The following notices of this work, from different sources, will show the estimate formed of it by competent judges.

BULLIONS' GREEK GRAMMAR.—We have examined the second edition of Dr. Bullions' Greek Grammar, and consider it, upon the whole, the best grammar of the Greek language with which we are acquainted. The parts to be committed to memory are both concise and comprehensive; the illustrations are full without prolixity, and the arrangement natural and judicious. The present edition is considerably reduced in size from the former, without, as we apprehend, at all impairing its value.

It discovers in its compilation much labor and research, as well as sound judgment. We are persuaded that the general use of it in our grammar schools and academies would facilitate the acquisition of a thorough knowledge of the language. Judicious teachers pursuing the plan marked out by the author in his preface, would usually conduct their pupils to a competent knowledge of the language in a less time by several months than by the systems formerly in use. We therefore give it our cordial recommendation.

Extract of a letter from Rev. DANIEL D. WHEDON, A.M. Professor of Ancient Languages and Literature, in the Wesleyan University, Middleton, Ct.

Wesleyan University, March 29, 1842.

Rev. Dr. BULLIONS,—Dear Sir—Although I have not the honor of your personal acquaintance, I take the liberty of addressing to you my thanks for your excellent Greek Grammar. Notwithstanding many personal, urgent, and interested appeals in favor of other grammars—and our literary market seems to abound with that kind of stock—the intrinsic superiority of your manual over every rival, induced me, after I saw your last edition, to adopt it in the Greek department of the Wesleyan University, and the success of my present Freshman class, amply justifies the course.

Extract of a letter from HENRY BANNISTER, A.M. Principal of the Academy in Fairfield, N. Y.

Fairfield Academy, May 12, 1842.

REV. DOCT. BULLIONS,—Sir—Sometime since I received your English and Greek Grammar, of each, one copy; and, if it is not too late, I would now return you my sincere thanks. I have not found in any work, suitable for a text book in schools, an analysis of the verb so strictly philosophical, and at the same time so easy to the learner to master and to retain when mastered, as that contained in your work. The editorial observations on government, and indeed the whole matter and arrangement of the Syntax, especially commend your work to general use in schools.

[From the Princeton Review, for Jan. 1840.]

It is with pleasure we welcome a second edition of this manual, which we continue to regard as still unsurpassed by any similar work in our language. The typography and the quality of the paper are uncommonly good. We observe valuable additions and alterations. For all that we can see, everything worth knowing in Thiersch is here condensed into a few pages. We have certainly never seen the anatomy of the Greek verb so neatly demonstrated. The Syntax is full, and presents the leading facts and principles, by rules, so as to be easily committed to memory. To learners who are beginning the language, and especially to teachers of grammar schools, we earnestly recommend this book.

[From the New-York Observer.]

BULLIONS' PRINCIPLES OF GREEK GRAMMAR, &c. 2d edition. With pleasure we hail the second edition of this valuable work, and are happy to find that the revision which it has undergone has resulted in decided improvements. Formed, as it is, on the basis of that most symmetrical of all modern grammars. Dr. Moor's Greek Grammar, which its learned author never lived to complete. It is now made to embrace not only the general rules, but all the minutiae essential to a critical knowledge of that ancient and elegant language. One of the chief excellencies of this model, and one that is fully retained in this grammar, is to be found in the simplicity, perspicuity, conciseness, and yet fulness of the definitions and rules for the various modifications of the language. The sense is clearly expressed, while scarcely a particle is used that could have been dispensed with. We have no hesitation in expressing the opinion, that Dr. B. has produced the most complete and useful Greek grammar that is to be found in the English language.

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE SERIES.

From the Rev. JOHN LUDLOW, D.D. Provost of the University of Penn.

No one I think can ever examine the series of Grammars published by Dr. Bullions, without a deep conviction of their superior excellence. When the English Grammar, the first in the series, was published in 1834. it was my pleasure, in connexion with some honored individuals, in the city of Albany, to bear the highest testimony to its worth; that testimony, if I mistake not, received the unanimous approval of all whose judgment can or ought to influence public opinion. I have seen, with great gratification, that the 2d and 3d in the series, the Latin and Greek, have met with the same favorable judgement, which I believe to be entirely deserved, and in which I do most heartily concur.

From the Hon. ALFRED CONKLING, Judge of the United States Court in the Northern District of New-York, published in the Cayuga Patriot.

BULLIONS' SERIES OF GRAMMARS.—By the recent publication of "THE PRINCIPLES OF LATIN GRAMMAR," this series of grammars (English, Latin, and Greek,) is at length completed. To their preparation, Dr. Bullions has devoted many years of the best portion of his life. In the composition of these books, he has shown an intimate acquaintance with the works of his ablest predecessors; and while upon the one hand, he has not scrupled freely to avail himself of their labors, on the other hand, by studiously avoiding all that is objectionable in them, and by re-modelling, improving, and illustrating the rest, he has unquestionably succeeded in constructing the best—decidedly the very best—grammar, in each of the three above named languages, that has yet appeared. Such is the deliberate and impartial judgment which has been repeatedly expressed by the most competent judges, respecting the English and Greek grammars; and such, I hesitate not to believe, will be the judgment formed of the Latin grammar. But independently of the superiority of these works separately considered, they possess, collectively, the great additional recommendation of having their leading parts arranged in the same order, and, as far as properly can be done, expressed in the same language. An acquaintance with one of them, therefore, cannot fail greatly to facilitate the study of another, and at the same time, by directing the attention of the student distinctly to the points of agreement and of difference in the several languages, to render his acquisitions more accurate, and at the same time to give him clearer and more comprehensive views of the general principles of language. The importance of using in academies and schools of the United States none but ably written and unexceptionable school books, is incalculable; and without intending unnecessarily to depreciate the labors of others, as a friend of sound education, I cannot refrain from expressing an earnest hope of seeing this series of grammars in general use. They are all beautifully printed on very good paper, and are sold at very reasonable prices.
